Graphic Story of Strike of Military Prisoners at Leavenworth Barracks

One of the Most Dramatic Events in Penal History Might Have Developed Into a Great Tragedy but for the Application of the Spirit of Democracy by a Stern but Sympathetic Regular Army Commandant—Long Sentences for Trival Offenses the Cause, Writes an Eyewitness.

By WINTHROP D. LANE.

AS a result of the visit of Col. Rice, the commandant of the military prison barracks at Fort Leavenworth to Secretary of War Baker, in accordance with his promise to the prisoners by which they were induced to end their strike, the prison authorities, under the supervision of Col. Rice, will prepare a statement of the case of every man confined there and forward it to the War Department. Secretary Baker has promised that each statement will be reviewed and clemency granted wherever an injustice has been done. To Col. Rice, the Secretary indicated that he thought it likely that many of the sentences had been unduly severe, having been imposed while the war spirit was at full tide in the army.

Because of the curious and unusual character of this strike and the fact that it has met with evidences of sympathy by the army and War Department officials, the Post-Dispatch reprints from "The Survey" the accompanying graphic account of it by an eyewitness, who had full opportunity to make observations of its causes as well as of its events.

THE strike of prisoners at the United States Disciplinary Barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., was no ordinary prison mutiny. It presented many of the characteristics of a typical labor disturbance in the world outside. True, it originated in the vague unrest that occasionally seizes prison populations the world over, but it soon crystallized about well-defined demands and took form in definite organization.

That it occurred in a military prison is one of the strangest things about this strange affair; yet, from the very nature of the demands that gave it force, it could not have occurred elsewhere. The 2300 men who took part in it were still units in the military machine; with the exception of 400 conscientious objectors they had once been soldiers. They were subject to military discipline. Their officers were Lieutenants, Captains, Majors and Colonels. They stood at attention or saluted when these officers passed. An unquestioning obedience was expected of them that is not expected of men in civil prisons.

Some of them, in the ordinary course of events, will be restored to military service. Yet they organized themselves in the approved labor union way and presented their demands just as if they had the full power of collective bargaining. In spite of walls separating one group from another, in spite of barred doors and double guards, they held mass meetings and discussed their grievances. In the mysterious fashion in which news travels through prison brick and stone, they informed each other of their thoughts and planned a course of action. They elected representatives to meet with their superior officers and voted on whether they would return to work. And they did this while 1000 armed soldiers of the Forty-ninth Infantry Regiment waited outside the prison walls, ready to enter and shoot at command.

Writer's Opportunity for Observation

My own opportunities for observing this affair were unusual. For several days before the strike occurred I had gone among the prisoners at will, trying to learn exactly what sort of place the Disciplinary Barracks was. I bore a note of introduction to the commandant, Col. Sedgwick Rice, from the Third Assistant Secretary of War, and a pass from the commandant allowing me to go anywhere inside the prison at any time. I had talked to prisoners alone, had visited them at work and in the cells at night, had played checkers and sat at mess with them, and had made friends with men and officers. I wanted a picture of the prison under normal conditions, and although I succeeded in getting this before and after the strike, I got also a picture of one of the most dramatic events in penal history.

To understand the origin of so baffling a thing as a prison strike, one must know something of the events that led up to it and the conditions that produced it. Two years ago the Disciplinary Barracks at Fort Leavenworth was a place for confining officers and enlisted men of the army and marine corps who had been sentenced by courtsmartial or other military tribunals.

With the entrance of the United States into the war, a new kind of soldier appeared upon the horizon. In private life this new soldier had been a clerk, a mechanic, a day laborer, a politician, a business man. He knew nothing of military method, etiquette, procedure, discipline. He was a civilian transported to a new jurisdiction, a new milieu, and subjected to a new code of criminal ethics. He violated rules of conduct that he had had only a few weeks or months to understand, and the punishments for which he did not know.

Having violated these rules, he was sent, if courtmartialed and found guilty, to the Disciplinary Barracks. He came there with war-time sentences hanging over his head. He may have quitted his post for five minutes, he may have been absent without leave for a week, he may have intentionally deserted; his sentence was not likely to be less than five years and was very likely to be 25. Hundreds of men now in the barracks, who never committed offenses or served penal terms in their lives before, now face 15, 20, 25 and even 30 years of prison, which to many of them might as well be confinement for life.

Not only was a new kind of military offender produced, but this offender came to the barracks in such numbers that nobody knew what to do with him. On April 1, 1918, the population of the barracks was 1508. By November it was 3005—exactly double. Today it is 3600. Men are doubled up in cells, 5 feet by 9, intended for single occupants, beds are placed in corridors that are meant to be empty, improvised buildings are used for sleeping quarters, a mess hall seating 1400 has to be used in three shifts for every meal; every discomfort of overcrowding has to be borne as well as the human mind can bear it. All of this created an unprecedented atmosphere of tension, rebellion and protest.

From the point of view of administration, the situation was still further complicated by the sending to the barracks of a large number of conscientious objectors. These men obstinately refused for the most part to regard themselves as criminals, even in the military sense. For the first time in the history of the barracks, large numbers of men refused to work. This brought about increased use of the solitary cells and increased tension between the objectors and the guards. Individuals were beaten up for following what they believed to be the dictates of their conscience.

Thus, the morale of the whole prison was unsettled. Officers lost touch with the inmates. Life became hectic, uncertain and escaped control.

The armistice was signed Nov. 11. At once prisoners began to ask what effect this would have on military offenders. Would clemency be shown to any of them? Would sentences be reduced? Individuals, through the influence of friends and the discovery of errors in courts-martial, began to be released. This demonstrated the power of organized appeal.

Then, on Jan. 25, came the order for the release of 113 conscientious objectors. Nobody resented the release of these men. It is doubtful if any prisoner ever resented the discharge of a fellow inmate; he doubtless envied it. The attitude of the men confined at Fort Leavenworth was one of envy, and of resentment that so many of their fellows should go forth while they themselves remained. Their quarrel was with the authorities, not with the men released. These last became, in their eyes, additional centers of propaganda for their own release in the world outside.

The Spark That Became a Flame

Before the discharge of these objectors nothing had happened to reveal the full strength and nature of the men's sullenness. The embers of discontent were there; the officers felt them, the prisoners felt them. Only a spark was needed to set them off. That spark came on the afternoon of Saturday, Jan. 25, when a negro, who was playing cards with a white man in the yard, assaulted his opponent. Others mixed in the fray, and although guards and officers quickly broke up the fight, two negroes were taken to the hospital with injuries.

News of this affair spread quickly through the prison. There is no segregation of blacks from whites in the barracks, and the number of blacks is, of course, greatly in the minority. For the first time in their lives many Southerners in the prison had been compelled to live on equal terms with negroes. Hotheads among them gave leash to their race prejudice and Northerners as well, strung to high tension by the conditions described, joined in the melees. Any activity that gave vent to passion seemed welcome. Men went mad, and in three days 15 negroes lay in the hospital, beaten or disabled. Every negro in the prison feared for his life. The number of guards on duty was increased, and so far as possible negroes went about under the protection of these guards. Nevertheless, individual attacks occurred and the hospital sheets do not reveal the full extent of injuries inflicted. The sight of a negro going about with a bandaged arm or a swollen jaw or a patched head or even with fresh blood oozing from a new wound, was not uncommon.

How these race riots formed the opening of a strike that quickly showed no inherent connection with them will remain one of the mysteries of that week. A dozen or more white men who had taken part in the attacks were placed in solitary confinement, and this undoubtedly had the effect of adding to the discontent and of heightening the tension.

On Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 29, the "first gang," composed of about 150 prisoners working outside the walls, quit on their jobs. They were excavating for a new building and they simply threw down their shovels and spent the afternoon

Fate of River Barge Line Up to Business Men Now

St. Louis Backward In Supplying Freight

Mississippi Valley Must Supply the Cargoes or Lose the New Service—Opportunity Is Ripe for Demonstration of Its Effectiveness, but It Must Be Seized Without Delay if Region Is to Retain This Advantage.

By CLARK McADAMS.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.

EARLY last summer, when the transportation facilities of the United States had proven inadequate to the needs of the country in the war, the people of the Mississippi Valley asked the Government to bring to the immediate relief of the railroads the Lower Mississippi River between St. Louis and New Orleans.

The Government did this. It started promptly with such equipment as it could muster, and let contracts for a larger and more efficient equipment some part of which is to become available this year. The total outlay on the Lower Mississippi on the Warrior River and on the Erie Canal is in excess of $18,000,000. The principal outlay is for the Lower Mississippi. It is to have powerful steel towboats and steel barges.

THE valley has then an opportunity such as it may never have again. The railroads, which killed river traffic, are under Federal control. They cannot cut rates and drive the boats off the river. There is a widespread demand for extensions of this service to the Upper Mississippi, the Missouri, the Ohio and other tributaries. Congress has been asked to devote to this end a vast sum of money. There is not a city on any of these rivers that does not want this.—CLARK McADAMS.

When the armistice came there was alarm in the valley lest the Government abandon what had been instituted as a war service. Happily the Government did not do this. Its boats are still running. The contracts for new equipment are being filled. A 20 per cent differential has been given the waterways. Joint traffic rates with the railroads have been arranged.

The Government is making a sincere effort to revive traffic upon the inland waterways. It believes that this traffic can be revived and can be made of great value to the country. The President has said so. Mr. McAdoo has said so. Mr. Hines, the present Director-General of Railroads, said so in Washington a few days ago.

May Never Have Opportunity Again.

The Valley has then an opportunity such as it may never have again. The railroads, which killed river traffic, are under Federal control. They cannot cut rates and drive the boats off the river. There is a widespread demand for extensions of this service to the Upper Mississippi the Missouri, the Ohio and other tributaries. Congress has been asked to devote to this end a vast sum of money. There is not a city on any of these rivers that does not want this.

What is the chance of getting it?

Simply this: If the service which the Government has already established on the Lower Mississippi succeeds, we shall get it. If that service fails, we shall not get it.

Upon the contrary, we shall lose what we have already gained.

The interest of every city in the valley which wants river service is at this time identical with the interest of St. Louis, which has it. If the boats succeed on the lower Mississippi, our common cause shall become irresistible. If they fail, so, too, will the common cause of river traffic fail.

Mr. Hines says he realizes that a fair thorough test of this matter cannot be made in a day. How patient he will be, or how sympathetic the Government may continue, we can only surmise. Mr. Tomlinson, who is the Federal director of all the Government waterways projects, says that every obstacle to success which the Government can remove has been removed. Mr. Sanders, who is in charge of the service on the Lower Mississippi, says the outcome now depends wholly on the business men of the Mississippi Valley. The Government, at no expense to us beyond the construction of terminals and docks, is testing the practicability of river traffic.

Result Up to Business Men.

What are the attractions of the river service to the shipper? Consider the item of sugar: The saving in freight charges on sugar carried by boat between New Orleans and St. Louis is 9 cents per 100 pounds. The boats sail from New Orleans weekly. Except when there is ice in the river, which occurred only three weeks this winter, the schedule of the boats is unbroken.

The damage to freight in the four months the boats have been running has been negligible. It is borne by the Government. The down trip is made in six days and the up trip in 12 days, which compare favorably with shipments by rail. The terminal facilities at New Orleans are superb. There are none finer in the country. The City of St. Louis is completing and has already in operation a modern dock equipped with dock machinery and accessible to freight cars. The city also owns the property back of the docks on which additional railroad tracks may be laid.

Chicago, which by reason of being on used water, is more accustomed to differentials than is the valley, has made most inquiries about river traffic. Chicago is availing herself of it, and will do so increasingly. She wants an open waterway to the Gulf. If she sees that the only way in which she can get it is to help make successful the Government's experiment on the Lower Mississippi, she only sees what every city on these inland waterways must see and that quickly.

The business men of Kansas City maintained for seven years a boat service between that city and St. Louis which they gave up when the Government, on pain of commandeering it for war purposes, bought their equipment. The more farseeing among them are today sending shipments to St Louis by rail and thence by boat down the river, and up the river to St. Louis by water and thence to Kansas City by rail.

Champ Clark told at Washington last summer what is the matter with the Mississippi Valley states. He said that after the lats census every state on the Atlantic Coast except Maine sent additional Congressmen to Washington. Every state on the Pacific Coast did the same thing. Only two states on the Mississippi River and its tributaries got additional Congressmen under the census, and both of those states showed their increase in population where they touch used water. Illinois got two of them in Chicago, and Minnesota one at Duluth.

"The trouble with us is that we have water and dont' use it," said the Speaker.

All river cities need river traffic. The Government has put them in the way to get it. Are they going to back the Government up, or sit idly by and see the opportunity pass?

St Louis Backward in Duty.

The City of St. Louis, which might have been expected to fill every barge that the Government boats have towed, and could easily have done so, has up to this time done very little. Great business houses, the heads of which have been active in working for river traffic, have up to this time given the boats nothing. On the down trips the cargoes have been fair; on the up trip they filled no more than 10 per cent of the capacity of the barges. This is a situation which cannot continue. There is no lack of freight moving between St. Louis and New Orleans. Its bulk is immense. Freight traffic on the railroads running between these points was never heavier than it is at this time.

What should be done is to deluge the boats with freight. Nor should St. Louis alone be expected to do that. Vital as the success of the Government experiment is to her, it is no less vital to every other city in the valley, which has nothing to hope for if this experiment fails, If the service on the Lower Mississippi is made a success, that can be the most powerful argument for extension of the service, as its failure can become the most powerful argument of an always aggressive opposition.

Every argument in opposition to the service on the Lower Mississippi has been swept away by the service itself. There has been plenty of water. The schedules have been promptly kept. Doubtless the same objections would be swept away by actual service upon the other waters above and below us.

There remains only one thing—for all in the valley to do their part. They must furnish the freight or lose the service.

New Washington Letter Gives Hint of What He Would Have Us Do Today

Made Public by One of His Descendants, It Shows That, While He Preferred to Keep Out of European Entanglements as Long as It Could Be Done With Honor, He Wished to Be Ready to Do Our Part Well if We Should Be Forced In.

By W. LANIER WASHINGTON,

Hereditary Representative of Gen. Washington in the Society of the Cincinnati, and a Direct Descendant of two of George Washington's Brothers.

(Copyright by Edwin Wildman.)

WHILE not pretending to have inherited the qualities of character, or the intellect, judgment and vision, that have made the name and fame of George Washington immortal, it is possible that a descendant of his family may have developed lines of thought that have been influenced by association and family tradition, and which may have contributed somewhat to a more or less intimate understanding and appreciation of the processes of deduction which impelled the Father of his Country in arriving at the wise conclusions and decisions that ever characterized his exceptionally clear reasoning.

—The New— Washington Letter

MOUNT VERNON, Sept. 9, 1799.

MY Dear Sir: Brigadier-General Washington (Brigadier-General William Washington, who led the American forces at the battle of Cowpens) called upon me on Saturday evening and went off again on Sunday morning. His anxiety to get to Carolina as soon as possible (having been detained to the eastward longer than he expected) prevented him passing more time with me. He gave me the model of the cannon (the model of the cannon referred to was inherited by the writer of this paper) which you was (sic) so good to present to me, and by him I wrote a hasty line to you acknowledging the receipt of it, &c.

"This morning I had the pleasure to receive, under a blank cover from the War Office, your obliging favor of the 3d of August, and a letter addressed to Brigadier Washington, which I shall forward so as to get to his hands before he leaves this State.

"Permit me, my dear sir, to repeat my thanks for the model of the cannon, and to assure you of my grateful acknowledgment for the kind and friendly sentiments contained in your letter. No man can wish more sincerely than I do that we may not be drawn into the conflict in which the European Powers are now involved; but at the same time, no one is more anxious that we should make every possible preparation to meet such an event, if it should be unavoidable. In order to do this, we should embrace the present moment to make our establishment as respectable as circumstances will permit, and neglect no opportunity of introducing into them every improvement in the military art that can be useful, let it come from what quarter so ever it may.

"I am sorry to inform you that Mrs. Washington has been confined by a fever for some days past; she seems at present to be a little better; but is still very low. She is thankful for Mrs. Rutledge's kind regards, and most sincerely reciprocates them, in which she is joined by, my dear sir, your affect, friend & obed't ser.

"His Excellency
"Govr. Rutledge.

It is hoped, therefore, the writer may be deemed not presumptuous in the expression of opinions, based on his own conclusions arrived at after a painstaking and lifelong study of the character and writings of Washington, as to his belief of what would have been the attitude of George Washington had he been confronted with the complex problems that have arisen in Europe, and in the United States in particular, since, through her efforts to impose her so-called kultur upon the free and democratic nations, Germany plunged the world into the most stupendous war in history.

It is a fact well known to those who have studied the life of Washington that he was at heart first of all an Englishman—loyal to the mother country, imbued with its traditions and believing in its institutions, but broadened in experience and in democratic ideals by his pioneer life in England's great American colony. It is also now understood that Washington came of pure English stock, and that his ancestry as fas as it has been traced—for several centuries—discloses no strain other than English. Indeed, it has been authoritatively established that George Washington is in the sixteenth generation in direct descent from Edward I, Plantagenet, surnamed "Longshanks," King of England, in the thirteenth century, to whom he bore a marked resemblance in physique and in mental and moral characteristics.

With the tradition of this ancestry it is not surprising that England counted Washington one of her most loyal sons and that he served her with loyalty in her colonial military forces for many years preceding the events that brought about the Revolution.

Those who have been inclined to regard Washington as the leader of the revolution against the mother country should know that it was with expressed sorrow, and only after thoughtful consideration, that he felt compelled to take up arms against a tyranny inspired by a British monarch of German blood and instincts, and a ministry chosen for its pliability to carry out his autocratic purposes. George III was not an Englishman in blood, ideals or instincts, and this fact is more fully recognized and appreciated today than ever before. It is better understood also that his ideals of colonial government did not represent those of the mass of the English people and that he was compelled to employ German mercenaries to fight the English colonists who were in revolution against his policies, which were closely identical with those of the recently deposed German Emperor.

After the American colonies had secured their independence, Washington, while advising against foreign entanglements, nevertheless strove to bring about an understanding between the United States and England would insure friendly and close relations That he was not ungrateful to France for the timely important assistance that was given, when it was probably a determining factor in the fight for independence, is so well understood as to need but passing comment. It is true, also, that he sought to establish friendly relations with Germany and all the countries of the civilized world in his endeavor to maintain a government free from entangling alliances, that the new nation in whose foundation he had played so important a part might work out its destiny in harmony with the rest of the world.

Washington was not, however, at any time unaware of the grave possibility that the United States might be drawn into the great conflict that raged on the European continent during his administration. The entrance of the United States as an ally of Great Britain was at times more than a possibility, and was avoided only by the exercise of Washington's supreme restraint and clear head.

In the opinion of the writer, who bases his judgment upon a critical study of the situation, there can be not the slightest doubt but that Washington would have advocated the fullest cooperation of the power of the United States, had a situation developed in Napoleon's ambitious program through which English institutions and the freedom of the world had been imminently threatened.

These conditions seem almost analogous to those which arose in 1916, and can there be any doubt that Washington would have advised otherwise than that the United States should throw its full weight, with all its resources, into the fight on the side of the free nations in their heroic struggle to maintain their independence against an overyhelming horde which sought to enforce upon them an odious autocracy?

Washington's messages to Congress during his administration and his farewell address are pragnant with admonition and warning. Indeed, he urged upon the deaf ears of Congress the necessity for adequate preparedness; and forcibly pointed out the imminent danger of the United States being drawn into the European maelstrom.

Among the inherited family papers in the possession of the writer is the copy of a letter written by George Washington, addressed to Gov. Rutledge of South Carolina, in which he expressed his views as to grave necessity for military preparation. It is deemed appropriate to embody it in this paper, and it is printed in full herewith as it also discloses the easy and dignified style that always characterized Washington's writings.

This letter, written but 71 days before Washington died, is penned in the hand of his secretary, Tobias Lear, on the specially made paper that Washington used in his personal correspondence, showing, in the water mark, the Washington crest, surrounded with his name, "George Washington." It is indorsed in Wash-

Medieval Army Punishments.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It seems to be a characteristic of human nature to be looking for dangers from without when most of the dangers that threaten us are from within. All of the wildest ravings of the most pronounced I. W. W. would not cause the "insubordination, disloyalty, mutiny or refusal of duty in the military or naval forces of the United States that has been caused by the actions of the officers of the very army itself in dealing out inhuman punishment to the soldiers guilty of petty offenses. Gen. Ansel in his testimony before the Senate Committee on Military Affairs relates instances where a man was sentenced to 40 years 'imprisonment at hard labor for refusal to deliver up to a petty "shave-tail" Lieutenant a package of cigarettes. Another incident was cited where a man was sentenced to be shot because he had refused to attend drill when he was sick. Other cases were mentioned, but these two are typical of the reign of terror that has existed in our army. A knowledge of the fact that they would have meted out to them the most cruel and unusual punishments for petty offenses would tend more than anything else to cause disloyalty and mutiny in the army.

Negro Troops in the War.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In regard to your Sunday's article on "What Our Negro Soldiers Did in the Great War," we hasten to acknowledge our appreciation of your honest and frank declaration to the world of the good fighting done by them in helping to win the war and making the world safe for democracy and a decent place in which to live. As the power of the press is mighty, are we asking too much in defense of those colored fighters, as they have shown their worth "over there," in helping to establish safety of human life, let it be the same for them on their return home here in America. Laws by our legislators are enacted to stop the sale and manufacture of beverages. Why not legislate laws to prevent lynchings and burning at stake of humans? We appeal to the lawmakers of the Congress of these United States through the press to establish the claim of this being the leading Christian nation of the world by enacting laws punishable by death any person or persons found guilty by conviction of lynching, hanging or burning at stake any human life without due process of law. Then and not until then can we claim the right to be called a Christian nation.

Central or Roosevelt.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I wish to add my protests to those already made by many others against the calling of the Central School the Roosevelt. It may be called the Roosevelt by the School Board, but it will still be and ever will remain the Central in the minds and hearts of those who attended there. Only those who graduated from old Central can have the same intense interest in retaining the name.

On the other hand, what honor is attached to the naming of an old out-of-date school for ex-President Roosevelt, when our other high schools, the McKinley, Cleveland, Yeatman and Soldan, named for illustrious men, are beautiful, modern, artistic buildings.

May not a new school be named for Roosevelt, and keep Central, thus pleasing everyone?

MRS. PAUL D. HELTZEL.

Beck's Brilliant Remark.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I've been reading the speeches of some of our brillant leading(?) citizens. I have particular reference to one made at a banquet a short time ago in which the speaker denounces President Wilson's course of action at the peace table and declares that 100,000,000 Americans are sitting back in their chairs stupefied at the manner in which the President is casting the principles for which Lincoln fought, to the winds.

Of course, all that is rot, and the silliest thing any reactionary politician ever thought of. But what I want to know is the reason the men who hear these monomaniacs speak don't stop them? Are all our fighters in France? You know, my dear Mr. Editor, that the only way one can handle men who get up and yell around any sensational thing that enters their silly heads is to give 'em a good sound thrashing, a sort of grown-up variety like mother used to give us when we thought of something particularly original and devilish.

I just wish my fighting little old brother in the A. E. F. and I had been at that particular banquet! Oh, Lordy! When he had gotten about to that part where he tells about the American people 100,000,000 strong sitting back stupefied, I would have walked around the table toward him, quiet and dignified, and while he was waiting for his audience to realize just how stupefied they are, I would firmly, but forcibly slap his face and then let brother demonstrate the methods real red-blooded young America used in changing some of the ideas of our enemies, the Huns.

AMERICAN.

THE WEAPONS OF DEMOCRACY.

Error of opinion may be tolerated where reason is left free to combat it.—Thomas Jefferson.

Truth is the proper and sufficient antagonist to error, and has nothing to fear from the conflict, unless, by human interposition, disarmed of her natural weapons, free argument and debate, errors ceasing to be dangerous when it is permitted freely to contradict them.—Thomas Jefferson.

The truth that free speech is the only successful combatant of error is so fundamental and grounded in reason and experience that it is a maxim of free government. The right of free speech and free assemblage is a necessity of free government, which cannot endure without it. It ought not to be necessary to emphasize this truth in the minds of Americans who have proved that the free interchange of opinion is the principal process of democracy and the bulwark of our free institutions.

Yet many Americans—some in high official place—are in such a panic over revolutionary ideas and movements that they want to rush to measures suppressing free speech and free assemblage. They want to abandon the open combat between truth and error and between wisdom and folly. They want to adopt the suppressive methods of tyrants—the methods of error—the only methods by which revolutions are fostered and brought to a climax of blood and terror and chaos. In the drastic law reported favorably by the Judiciary Committee of the United States Senate for the suppression of anarchism and the Red Flag is the following clause:

> It shall be unlawful for any person to advocate or incite or to write or with intent to forward such purpose to print, publish, sell or distribute any document, book, circular, paper, journal or other written or printed communication in or by which there is advanced or incited the overthrow, by force or violence, or by physical injury to personal property, or by the general cessation of industry, of the Government of the United States or all government.

We have no sympathy with any of the objects of anarchism and violence which this law is intended to defeat. We are opposed to every one as violative of just principles, subversive of free government and destructive of all liberty and progress. We oppose all the methods of anarchism, which is now masquerading as Russian Bolshevism and I. W. W. direct action.

On the other hand, we protest against the method of suppressing by law all expressions of opinion except that regarded as orthodox in officialdom. We protest against binding the printing press and the forum so that it will be impossible to inform the public concerning the movements and arguments of anarchists and their revolutionary kindred. We protest against so binding the newspapers, periodicals and the public platform that they cannot expose and combat erroneous propaganda and destructive revolution. Under the proposed law it would be dangerous for any publication to expose any revolutionary propaganda. It is susceptible to construction that might make it dangerous to oppose anarchism by stating its errors and attacking them. Under a law of this kind error would flourish under cover; the underground propaganda would go on unexposed and unchecked by truth; the cellar demagogue would rage unresisted and uncorrected. The people would be kept in the dark.

The panic over revolutionary propaganda and the fever to suppress it by the censor and the police has been caused by German propaganda. Yet the countries in which German propaganda utterly failed were countries where free speech and publicity prevailed. German propaganda failed in this country. Why? Bernstorff himself admitted that his efforts in behalf of paid propaganda were futile because it was impossible in America to avoid publicity and exposure. American publicity overcame it and destroyed its value. German militarism, with all the power of victors applied without scruple or limit, was unable to suppress the free press in Belgium.

The peace of suppression, darkness and ignorance is a fool's paradise. Let us have laws protecting the rights of all Americans, chief among which is the right of free opinion, free speech and free assemblage. Let us enforce the laws safeguarding the rights of property and person against wrong and violence. Let us give opinion free discussion and destroy error with truth, cure folly with wisdom.

But let us not abandon the only effective weapon we have for the defense of justice, liberty and orderly progress—free press and free speech. Let us fight the battles of democracy in the open forum and the pure air and sunlight of freedom. Let us not abandon publicity—the greatest moral force in the world—let us encourage it and utilize it to the full. It is the one force that wrong and error cannot resist or survive. One flash of publicity in the face of error does more for truth than a volume of suppressive laws and an army of constables.

When we bind reason we unloose error; when we drop the free pen we take up the sword; when we choke the free voice we give reign to the demagogue and the apostle of unreason and violence. We unleash the powers of evil that work in darkness.

STATE POLICE.

Tennessee Legislators are considering the establishment of a State police force, and apparently the opinion is favorable. In Texas a legislative committee is investigating the State police force there, widely known as Rangers, and listening to arguments of persons who demand the force be abolished. In Texas the objection is made that the Rangers in many cases assumed the duties of police, court and executioner without much investigation. Most of these charges concern the border district when there was both Mexican and pro-German discontent there. There are many who, while not denying the injustice in isolated cases, assert that the Rangers saved a world of trouble there.

The Tennessee plan is to organize a force of 600 men to serve the Governor at call in cases of threatened outbreaks, such as mobs. There is to be a commander for each congressional district, a county chief and men named for smaller sections. These men are to be paid for actual service and subject to call at all times, and they must pay severe penalties if they do not respond.

LEADERS FOR THE INDUSTRIAL CRISIS.

From the New York Nation.

THE right of revolution stands above cavil or question as primary, sacred and inalienable. If a people wishes to change the mode or mechanics of its government, or in part to modify or wholly to discard the theory of government upon which its political organization is based, it has a clear right to do so. But it is a disgrace and an abiding shame to any people when such changes are effected by violence; because the fact simply proves that there is not enough intelligence functioning in co-operation with social progress, with the great essential movement of the world towards the far-off divine event, to make these inevitable and necessary transitions in an orderly way. * * *

The possibility of revolution in the United States, however, is clearly imminent, and where in our society is the intelligence, the constructive imagination and the experienced sense of affairs, that can take an accurate measure of its terms, co-operate with its beneficent tendencies, and insure its progress against the disgraceful and retarding accompaniment of violence? We do not point out this prospect with despondency, for its wholesomeness can not be doubted; nor do we raise our question in the mere rhetoric of despairing helplessness, for the needed ability is here and can be identified. Twenty men, and we can name them, by putting themselves disinterestedly at the service of this social process could clear its way of obstacles and enable it to fulfill itself easily and naturally. Perhaps as much may have been true of any prerevolutionary period; but whether so or not, it is true of this. * * *

The propertyless dependent class, as we said last week, is at present displaying a significant mass-intuition which has no proper interpreters and must have them if its outworking is not to be fraught with calamity. The authority of the old machine type of labor leader like Mr. Gompers is impaired beyond help and hope. Against all precedent, strikes are maintained during a period of unemployment, in the face of a considerable labor-surplus, and with a notable absence of disorder. The State of North Dakota has put all its political machinery under control of the Non-Partisan League, representing an economic interest, and has worked out constitutional and legislative measures that quite closely approach the economic principles that human society, the world over, seems in one way or another laboring to express. Out of the war, too, has come to the American people generally a profound dissatisfaction with its own theory of government; a clearer consciousness that what it has been all along calling representative government is really delegated government, and in practice as irresponsible and autocratic as any on earth. Was ever a time more unpropitious for the indolent and vicious blundering of officeholders, for the institutional voices of our society to cry their venal and stupid misrepresentations? On the other hand, was opportunity ever more favorable for the disinterested functioning of the order of intelligence we have described?

Twenty men, we repeat, could effectively interpret the present motion of society away from the theory of delegated political Government towards that of representative administrative Government. By clearing the confusion that prevails in economic terminology they could show what the final terms of the industrial strife really are. They could show that there is no clash of interest between capital and labor; that the essential opposition is between privilege and industry, between the political means of aggregating wealth and the economic means; they could discover to capital and labor their common enemy and bring a union of forces against it in an open field. This would clear the issue and enable the proceeding against it by orderly steps in a revolution by due course of law. If such intelligence is forthcoming and is conscientiously and disinterestedly applied, we may await the revolution with confidence and hope; and if not, then not.

MEMORY AND REMEMBRANCE.

LIKE a warm breath straying
Upon a breeze, freshly, from
The withered roots of sage:
Like the rustle amid dead leaf
Of the chilling fingers of Winter's wind,
Whispering crackling words, as though
Coming from between aged lips
That wert dry, hauntingly whispering:
Or yet like a cool waft amid
The heated tide, running chillingly
Along the brook's bank, whispering
Tremorous words and pressing a cooling touch
Unto its fervid lips.

Like the nodding of some bloom-heavy
Stalk, lingering late in the season's decline,
Richer in its colorfulness, sweeter
In its steeping of aged honey;
Like a whit of down, glistening
Like a broken bit of moonbeam, fretting
Through the rosy dawn, tickling
The grey nun Morning to laugh!
Like the sighing of the weary river
As she stretches her graceful length
Across the wastes, murmuring
Her complaint and remorsefully marking
Her way with woeful rune.
Like all of these is Memory
And Remembrance, her sister.

The Bell Telephone Co. started something when it began to spell Cabanne C-a-b-a-n-y. A man who hauls fertilizer out there has gone the company one better in the corruption of that historic name by putting it out on his circular thus:

Call Cabney 2549W

Thus do we see the danger of bad example. The telephone company undertook to spell Cabanne the way it thought the name should be spelled, and now everybody is doing it. The company had better get back to C-a-b-a-n-n-e. If it doesn't, we shall find before very long that the old French flavor of St. Louis has been resolved into Lafet, Debolver and Shoto avenues and such things as Destrehan become Dustpan street.

An American just returned from France says: "The Leviathan draws too much water to approach within less than a mile of the docks at Brest and she is coaled from lighters. When I went aboard there were 200 colored soldiers passing coal into her, and the way in which everybody was kept working nicely amused me immensely. On deck immediately over the toiling blacks was a brass band. It galvanized the men into action with tunes such as 'Your Boy Is on the Coal Pile Now,' 'Keep the Home Fires Burning,' etc., while the baskets went back and forth to music. When a man in the line had a moment's respite he would cut a pigeon wing or do a dance step. When the band stopped, all the men would look up and cry 'Carry on!' Everybody kept happy, and coal rolled into the ship fast enough to supply her in two days."

HOW JIM WENT "WEST."

HE lay where he fell in No Man's Land,
Where the grass was sere and brown;
When the world blew up with a monstrous crash,
And the darkness had settled down;
He sought to rise as his comrades passed,
But his legs would not obey,
And he grimly smiled as he realized
They were lying ten yards away.
Then he thought of paths those feet had trod
Since he stood at his mother's knee;
He smiled as he thought of his first stone bruise,
And the sting of a bumblebee;
He remembered the first pair of red-topped boots
That covered his legs of tan,
And how proud he was when his mother said
He was now a grown-up man.
His mother! Ah, yes, he remembered her,
With her smiling, comely face;
But many the years and miles he'd trod
Away from her resting place;
But memories came trooping past;
He felt the touch of her hand
As he lay, a broken, huddled heap,
In the heart of No Man's Land.
He opened his eyes as the sky grew bright,
And saw her beckoning him,
With arms outstretched at a portal wide,
Awaiting her little Jim;
So he hastened away, like a child at play,
And he ran to his mother's side;
And the huddled heap that he left asleep
Was the only thing that died.

Education Is Secretary Lane's Formula for Americanizing Large Illiterate Alien Section

Interior Department Head Indorses Federal Bill to Appropriate $13,000,000 a Year to Abolish Ignorance by 1926.

BY CHARLES W. WOOD.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.

"THE extent of our country's peril from ignorant, misguided and unreasoning radicalism is, unfortunately, underestimated.

"The danger does not come from discontent, for discontent is a national asset. We don't want American labor to become docile, for docility is not a virtue in American eyes. The great menace to America is illiteracy, for discontent, plus ignorance, equals disorder."

Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane is a most cheerful type of American, with an abiding faith in the American point of view. But it was his very appreciation of the American spirit which gave intensity to this alarm. He was speaking of the Smith-Bankhead "Americanization" bill, now before Congress, whose object it is practically to stamp out illiteracy in America before 1926.

The bill provides for the education of illiterates and aliens who cannot speak the English language, through a joint arrangement between the national Government and the various states. It calls for an appropriation of about $13,000,000 a year by the Government and an equal amount by the states which are to enjoy its privileges; not for the building of schools and new machinery of education but for the actual teaching of our language and our national ideals to native and foreign illiterates in every American community. It would make this elementary education compulsory to all minors up to the age of 21, but the intended course would not by any means be limited to them.

How Work Is to Be Done.

The work is to be carried on under the Bureau of Education of the Department of the Interior with the states. No State shall be allowed to participate in the national fund unless it first requires at least 200 hours of instruction a year to all minor illiterates within its jurisdiction, and of all minors unable to speak, read or write the English language, or until such minors have completed a course in English equivalent to that given in third-grade schools.

If there is any piece of legislation before the now expiring Congress which is more important than this, Secretary Lane has not heard of it. To him it means the Americanization of America; and any failure to push such legislation must, he is convinced, be due to a failure to appreciate how great and how vital a percentage of our inhabitants cannot read the Declaration of Independence or the Constitution of the United States. Herbert Kauffman, special assistant to the Secretary, gave me some of the figures.

"According to the last census report," he said, "there were more than eight and a half million persons more than 10 years old in the United States who were either totally illiterate or could not read or write the English language. That was in 1910. In 1918, due to the disclosures of illiteracy in the military examinations, we are led to believe that many must have passed 'literate' in this census who can barely sign their names.

Illiteracy in Cities.

"The South leads in native-born illiteracy, but a staggeringly large percentage of people in all our industrial centers can communicate with America only through interpreters. Sixteen per cent of the population of Passaic, for instance, cannot speak English, and 13 per cent of Lawrence and Fall River.

"Of the foreign-born wage earners in this country 5 years or more, only 31 per cent are naturalized and only 14 per cent have first papers. Only 8 per cent of the Russians residing here between 5 and 9 years have been naturalized, only 5 per cent of the Portuguese and only 4 per cent of the Greeks. No nation in the history of the world ever held so many aliens.

"And who in the main are these persons who cannot read our laws, know nothing of American traditions and are compelled by the very nature of their predicament to interpret the events of the day according to utterly alien standards?

"They are the men who comprise the rank and file of America's basic industries.

"Fifty-eight per cent of the employes of the steel and iron industries are foreign born; in the slaughtering and packing trades they number 61 per cent; in the woolen mills 62 per cent, and in the cotton factories 69; among the oil refineries they number 67 per cent and in the clothing business 72. One-quarter of those cannot read and write even in their own language.

"It is easy to say that anarchy is an alien growth and that it cannot take root on American soil. But how about this alien soil—this vast mass upon whose shoulders the basic industries of America rest? How, especially, about the sub-strata—those who cannot even read the danger signs in the mines and factories, no matter in what language they may be printed? Can we expect them to understand the principles of American democracy? Can we expect them to grasp the true economics of their own situation? On the contrary, isn't it most logical to believe that this group will always be first to fall prey to any mad fanaticism which may be preached?

Lane's Teaching Formula.

"Economically, the American nation cannot afford such an utter waste as there 8,500,000 illiterates represent."

This is the Secretary Lane's formula for teaching Americanism:

"I appreciate something. I admire something. I love something. I want you, my friends, my neighbors, to appreciate and admire and love that thing, too. That something is America.

"The process isn't one of science; the process is one of humanity. But as there is no way by which the breath of life can be put into a man's body, once it has come out, so there is no manner by which, with all our will, we can make an American out of a man who is not inspired by our ideals; and there is no way by which we can make anyone feel that it is a blessed and splendid thing to be an American, unless we are ourselves aglow with the sacred fire, unless we interpret Americanism by our kindness, our courage, our generosity and our fairness."

The obvious first essential, Secretary Lane said, if we wish to Americanize our neighbor is to establish communication. Therefore, we must teach him the language in which Americans communicate their thoughts. If the Smith-Bankhead bill now before Congress becomes a law, there will be no attempt to foist a cut and dried, political and economic orthodox creed upon our alien born. The education will be given by the several States in co-operation with the Federal Government through the Bureau of Education of the Department of the Interior and Secretary Lane is more interested in facts than formulas.

There will be no attempt to picture America as an ideal state. Secretary Lane does not think America is ideal. America is real, he emphasizes, and that too, is the great glory of it. America is unfinished, he says, and he hopes that it will always remain unfinished. He wants the aliens and the illiterates to know its achievements and to realize its further and greater opportunities, its failures and its glories and its slums, its liberality and its constant struggle for liberty, its quality and its inequality, its good and its bad.

America's Challenge.

"Especially," he said, "I want them to appreciate the magnificent challenge of America. It is a challenge to the ambition, the aspiration, the elemental creative passion of every man who touches our shores. Nothing is fixed here. Nothing is static. America is a living organism whose glory is not of the past, but in the passing. It is not a haven of rest from struggle. It is an inspiration to struggle and to reap the full reward of struggling.

"If one expects to live without work, he should go to Utopia, not here. And if he expects to profit by destruction, America has no place for him. But if he comes with a willingness to labor, to carve out his own destiny, to answer the challenge of this ever unfinished country, America is his to love and possess. If our laws are inequitable, it is his to help us change them. If our economic arrangements are imperfect, it is his to help correct them. If our social life is inadequate it is his to help end this. We need his music, his art, his culture and whatever of real worth he can bring us. We will not despise any truth because it comes to us from another land. In no mere arrogance of nationality or race can we greet the alien. Let us take him into our culture, our society, our language and our hearty good will and America will become still more worth while to all of us."

DAVID J. HILL PRESENTS OBJECTIONS TO LEAGUE PLAN

Member of Hague Council Would Have Restrictions That Governed in Hague Conventions.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—David Jayne Hill, speaking here today before Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution, said he would "Wish to qualify our participation in any compact by precisely the words that were employed in accepting The Hague convention in 1899 and again in 1907."

Hill, who is a member of the permanent administrative council of The Hague and a former Ambassador to Germany, quoted this restriction as follows:

"Nothing contained in this convention shall be construed as to require the United States of America to depart from its traditional policy of not intruding upon, interfering with or entangling itself in the political questions or policy or international administration of a foreign state; nor shall anything contained in the said convention be construed to imply a relinquishment by the United States of America of its traditional attitude toward purely American questions."

He said the occasion "does not require our entering into an unlimited obligation in all circumstances to assume protection of distant peoples; to enter into their disputes; to place our resources at the disposal of a central authority that may at some time be dominated by a combination of interests adverse to our own; to submit to foreign control our standards of life, our conditions and rewards of labor, and even power over our fortunes and our lives. There is no good reason why we should commit our posterity to such unnecessary hazards."

Events in the Social World

Lateness of the Lenten Season This Year Will Probably Defer Many Entertainments for Brides and Brides-to-Be for the Reason That April Is One of the Favorite Months for Marriages—However, a Number of War Brides May Be Expected Soon After Easter.

Embracing the Profession of Arms

WITH the Lenten season a little more than a week off—Ash Wednesday coming on March 5 this year—society will have but a short time left in which to play. The day preceding Lent, Mardi Gras, or Fat Tuesday, is so called from an old Parisian custom of leading a procession on that day with a fat ox (boeuf gras), hence the name Mardi Gras. Shrove Tuesday is the old English name for the day and a reminder that the period preceding Ash Wednesday was in ancient days a time of preparation for Lent, the chief part consisting in confession, or of being "shriven," hence Shrove Tuesday.

Before the war this day was chosen as one of celebration in this country, with much revelry and merrymaking and the carnival spirit rife, but this year Washington's Birthday seems to have been the day selected by the majority to celebrate, which goes to show that the spirit of patriotism has been inoculated in St. Louisans to such an extent by recent events than even in society's pastimes its influence is felt and the preference for a patriotic day celebration shown to that of a mere festal day, and also demonstrates that he who was "first in war and first in peace" to this day holds first place in the hearts of many of his countrymen."

The season of sackcloth and ashes starting late this year will bring Easter well along into April—the 20th—which leaves but scant time for the April bride to hold sway. So far no large weddings have been scheduled for April, which is always a favored month for brides, but before the waning of Lent and with the almost daily return of the men from overseas it is expected that a number of wedding plans will have been formulated to culminate immediately after Easter, which will not cause the month of sunshine and rain to lose its worth as a propitious one for bridal couples.

ONE of the fashionable and notable weddings of the pre-Lenten season will be that of Miss Mary Bullen, who will become the bride of Clifford R. Garrison on Wednesday evening. Miss Edith Piper will be Miss Bullen's maid of honor and Mrs. George Whitelaw and Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Moss will be the matrons of honor. George Whitelaw will be the best man, with Thomas Jefferson Moss and Meredith Jones acting as groomsmen. The bridegroom's little niece, Mary Elder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Elder, will be the flower girl and her brother, Garrison Elder and Oliver Garrison III will be ring bearers. The ceremony will take place at the residence of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. C. F. Gauss of 17 Washington terrace, with whom she and her mother, Mrs. Adele G. Bullen, reside. Miss Bullen was educated at the Mary Institute and has been a popular member of society since her debut. Mr. Garrison is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver L. Garrison of Brentmoor Park.

ANOTHER important marriage of the coming week is that of Miss Alice Rose Noel to Capt. W. F. Lovett which will be celebrated on Tuesday at high noon in the parlors of the First Presbyterian Church in the presence of the relatives and a few close friends. Owing to the death of the bride's grandfather, the late H. M. Noel, the arrangements will be very simply carried out and the only attendant will be the bride's young sister, Cynthia Wylie Noel.

Miss Noel is the daughter of H. G. Noel of the Sherwood Court Apartments. She received her education at Mary Institute and has taken an active part in numerous social affairs.

Capt. Lovett is the son of Mrs. Frank Lovett of Greenville, Ill., and has just received his discharge from the service. He was overseas with the Twenty-sixth Division for more than a year and since his return has been at Camp Logan. Miss Noel's brother, Lieut. Henry M. Noel served abroad with the same division and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross. He is expected home soon. After a honeymoon trip Capt. Lovett will take his bride to Houston, Tex., where they will make their home.

AN interesting engagement announced last week was that of Miss Marie Elsie Donk, daughter of Mrs. Edmund C. Donk of 3643 Castleman avenue, to Ensign Carl Ellwood Finch of the U. S. naval flying corps, stationed at Pensacola, Fla. Miss Donk was graduated from Mary Institute in the class of 1914 and later attended Washington University. She is a member of the Pi Beta Phi Sorority and is a popular member of South Side society. Ensign Finch is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Finch of Maplewood. He was graduated from the St. Louis University and also attended Washington University, and is a member of the Theta Xi Fraternity. No date for the wedding has been set.

THE largest wedding of the past week was that of Miss Alice Pomeroy Ladd, who became the bride of Emrich P. Schwaner. The ceremony was solemnized at 8 o'clock at the Second Baptist Church, with the Rev. Dr. Bitting officiating. The bride had her young sister, Miss Dorothy Ladd, as maid of honor, and Miss Martha Gerhart and Miss Elizabeth Udell were the bridesmaids.

Little May Brant, daughter of Mrs. Henry Brant of Quincy, Ill., and a cousin of the bride, was the flower girl. Armand Schwaner of Evansville, Ind., a cousin of the bridegroom, served as best man, and the bride's brothers, Chauncy Ladd, who is a radio operator and was home on a short furlough from Norfolk, Va., and Harry Ladd, were groomsmen.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Ladd of 4354 McPherson avenue, after which Mr. Schwaner took his bride south for a honeymoon trip. The bride was graduated from Hosmer Hall in the class of 1916 and has been a popular member of her set.

Mr. Schwaner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Schwaner of 5189 Cabanne avenue and was educated at Smith Academy and also the University of Missouri.

Upon their return from their honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Schwaner will be at home temporarily with the bridegroom's parents.

SO many hints are afloat about The Players' presentation of "The Harlequinade" Tuesday night at the Artists' Guild that invitations are being eagerly sought, each member of the organization being permitted to bring guests. It will be given for the first time on any stage and is produced by Clarence Stratton with permission of Granville Barker, the author.

The plot ranges from the time of ancient gods to a scene in a futuristic theater of the most ultra-modern possibilities, and will be staged and costumed with the usual Players' artistic success. After the play supper will be served in the crypt of the Guild, Mrs. Herman von Schrenk being chairman of the Hospitality Committee. Orrick Johns is president of the Players, Mrs. Ellis Fischel, secretary and Mrs. Orrick Johns, assistant secretary. The cast includes 20 people, 15 men and 5 women, the latter being Mrs. Herbert Cost, Mrs. Arthur Proetz, Mrs. Ralph Thompson, Mrs. Benjamin Chapman Jr., and Mrs. Laurence Ewald. Mrs. Wm. H. Lambert will be at the piano.

Miss Alpha Ruf Hatch, niece of Mrs. Frank A. Ruf of Cabanne avenue, departed Thursday for Boston, where she will be the guest of friends. Her brother, Lieut. Charles H. Hatch, departed the same day for Washington to rejoin his company.

THE marriage of Miss Gertrude Marie Dwyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Dwyer of 3031 Eads avenue, to Lieut. L. J. Dillon of Shipman, Ill., took place Wednesday morning at St. Francis Xavier's Church, with Rev. Father Francis O'Boyle, S. J., officiating. The ceremony was solemnized at 9 o'clock in the presence of a very small gathering, including relatives and close friends.

The couple had no attendants, and the bride wore her traveling suit of dark blue cloth, with hat to match. She wore a corsage of Ophelia roses. A wedding breakfast followed at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride is a graduate of the Sacred Heart Convent at Clifton, Cincinnati, and Lieut. Dillon received his commission at the Officers' Training Camp at Fort Riley, Kan. He was abroad with the American Expeditionary Forces for six months. After their honeymoon Lieut. and Mrs. Dillon will reside at Alexandria, Va., as he is stationed at Camp Humphrey.

Mrs. Hooper Winslow Welch has gone to Newport News, Va., to join her husband, Lieut. Welch who is stationed there in the Medical Reserve Corps. Mrs. Welch was until Nov. 22 Miss Floy Jestes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Jestes of 2906 Victor street.

A musical tea will be given Tuesday afternoon in the parlors of the Third Baptist Church, which will bring together about a thousand women who were associated in Food Administration work as members of the Organization and Investigation Division. Washington authorities frequently stated that it was the work of this body of women, following the plan of Mrs. George A. Bass, the chairman, which kept the prices of food commodities in St. Louis lower than in any other city during the war. Many of the former food volunteers are now co-operating with the Community Service Organization in their establishment of community centers. The hostesses for the Tuesday tea are: Mmes. George A. TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.—ADV.

KEEP URIC ACID OUT OF JOINTS

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Eat Less Meat and Take Salts.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out through the pores of the skin as a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which helps overcome uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.—ADV.

"Do More Than You Recommend Them to Do."

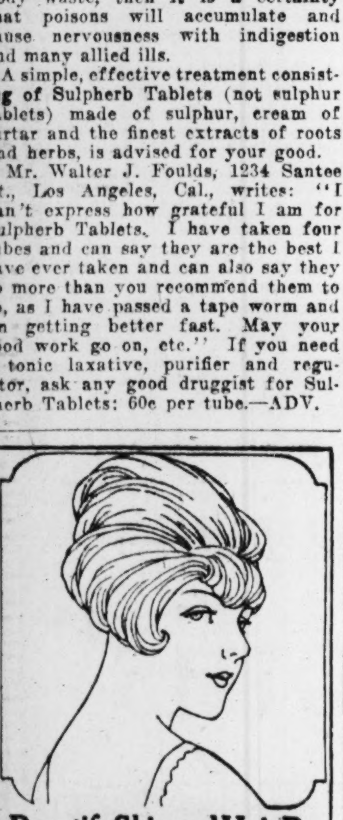
Says a Grateful User of Sulpherb Tablets.

Fine to Regulate Kidneys, Liver and Other Bodily Functions and Overcome Pimples, Bad Blood, Etc.

Probably this little message will help some woman, man, girl or boy, for if the blood is impure, if constipation exists, if the kidneys and the liver are not working to eliminate the body waste, then it is a certainty that poisons will accumulate and cause nervousness with indigestion and many allied ills.

A simple, effective treatment consisting of Sulpherb Tablets (not sulphur tablets) made of sulphur, cream of tartar and the finest extracts of roots and herbs, is advised for your good.

Mr. Walter J. Foulds, 1234 Santee St., Los Angeles, Cal., writes: "I can't express how grateful I am for Sulpherb Tablets. I have taken four tubes and can say they are the best I have ever taken and can also say they do more than you recommend them to do, as I have passed a tape worm and am getting better fast. May your good work go on, etc." If you need a tonic laxative, purifier and regulator, ask any good druggist for Sulpherb Tablets: 60c per tube.—ADV.



Beautify Skin and Hair By Daily Use Of Cuticura

Let Cuticura be your beauty doctor, one that really does something to purify and beautify your hair and skin. Bathe with Cuticura Soap and hot water to cleanse the pores. If signs of redness, roughness or pimples are present, or dandruff on scalp, touch gently with Cuticura Ointment before bathing or shampooing. They are ideal for all toilet uses.

Be sure to test the fascinating fragrance of Cuticura Talcum for perfuming the skin.

TODAY'S BEAUTY HELP

We find you can bring out the beauty of your hair to its very best advantage by washing it with canthrox. It makes a very simple, inexpensive shampoo, which cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly of all the dandruff, dirt and excess oil, leaving a wonderfully clean, wholesome feeling. After its use, you will find that the hair dries quickly and evenly, is never streaked in appearance and is always bright, soft and fluffy; so fluffy, in fact, that it looks more abundant than it is, and so soft that arranging it becomes a pleasure. Just use a teaspoonful of canthrox, which you can get from any good druggist, dissolve it in a cup of hot water; this makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head.—ADV.

SAILED WITH CARGO OF T N T AND DYNAMITE

Coxswain Ralph G. Neff, Home, Tells of Dangers in Armed Guard Service.

Coxswain Ralph George Neff, National Naval Volunteers, who has been released from active duty and returned to his home at Kinloch, relates that on one trip from New York to France the ship on which he sailed carried a cargo of T N T, picric acid, smokeless powder, dynamite and dynamite caps. This is an indication of the danger that attended the Armed Guard Service, to which he was assigned.

Besides the ordinary hazards of sea service and danger of submarines, the merchant ships often carried highly dangerous cargoes and faced the danger of collisions.

Neff joined the navy the day war was declared, and had many harrowing experiences. He enjoyed the life, however, increased his weight from 137 to 167 pounds, traveled to parts of the world he had not hoped to ever have an opportunity of seeing, and as a result is an enthusiastic booster of the service.

He was on the American liner New York, bound for Liverpool, when that vessel was torpedoed in January, 1918. A hole 24 feet wide and 30 feet long was blown in the bow of the ship, Neff said. The liner succeeded in making port without losing a member of its crew.

Neff was in charge of a gun crew, and directed fire against submarines on four occasions. The worst disappointment of his life, he told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday, was on one occasion when the ship on which he was sailing came upon an enemy submarine in a dense fog, and got so close to the U-boat before it was sighted that the guns could not be trained upon it. The submarine crew saw the merchant ship at the same moment and submerged.

LIGHT COMPANY DENIES MAKING FALSE INCOME TAX RETURN

President Answers Imputation of District Attorney's Suit Based on 1913 Report.

Hugo Wurdack, president of the Light and Development Co. of St. Louis, in a letter sent to newspapers, denies that any false income tax return was made in behalf of his company in the business of the year 1913, as is alleged in a suit filed last Thursday by the United States District Attorney against the corporation to recover $90,437 alleged to be due the Government. It is alleged by the Government that a false return for corporation income tax was made Feb. 24, 1914. Wurdack's statement follows:

"Referring to the publication of suit filed by United States District Attorney against the Light and Development Co. for income taxes due to the United States on account of the company's returns in 1913, and that payment of these taxes has been often demanded but refused by the company, I wish to say that the statement is wholly untrue.

"This company was organized in February, 1908. To say that the company's taxes should be based upon an earning in 1913 of $4,552,000, instead of an earning of $60,479, is so palpably absurd that the mere statement should be sufficient.

"This company, of which I am president, has made its annual income tax return each year since the passage of the Federal income tax law, and has paid all taxes due the Government. The accountants of the Federal Government and the Revenue Department have audited the books of the Light and Development Co. for each and every year since the passage of the income tax law, and we are at a loss now to know upon what theory this claim is based. But of this fact we are certain, that the return made by the officers of this company for the year 1913 correctly, accurately and truthfully states the facts regarding the income for the year, and that we have paid our taxes for the year 1913 upon this true and correct return."

COUSINS MET IN TRENCHES

St. Louisan Writes That He Is Now in Germany.

Anthony J. Pokojski of C Company, 356th Infantry who resided at 1416 North Twentieth street before entering the service, has written relatives here that he is stationed at Schweich, Germany, with the Army of Occupation.

Shortly before the armistice was signed he met his cousin, Frank Kolwa of 1919 O'Fallon street, in a trench near the Bantheville Wood. Pokojski was wounded by machine-gun bullets and gassed last summer.

D. S. C. FOR MISSOURIAN AND THREE ILLINOISANS

Named in List of Awards for Heroism, Issued by War Department.

The names of one Missourian and three soldiers from Illinois points outside Chicago appear in the list of awards of the Distinguished Service Cross, for extraordinary heroism in action, issued by the War Department for publication today. The citations are:

Corp. Owen R. Marriott, Headquarters Company, Tenth Field Artiery. For extraordinary heroism in action near Courboin, July 15. Corp. Marriott, a member of the regimental telephone detail, when it became impossible to maintain telephone communications, volunteered and carried messages under heavy shell fire, in spite of having been wounded in the knee. Mrs. Carrie Marriott, mother, Proctor, Mo.

Private Lewis M. Giescke, Company I, 132d Infantry. For repeated acts of extraordinary heroism in action near Brieulles, Oct. 9-12. Private Giescke administered first aid to many comrades under heavy shell fire and assisted them to the aid station. When his company was in need of water he went alone under heavy machine gun fire, in direct view of the enemy, and procured it. Each night he personally guided the ration detail through heavy bombardment. Toward the end of the engagement, after his platoon Sergeant and the other non commissioned officers had become casualties. Private Giescke took charge of the platoon, displaying unusual leadership. Herman Giescke, father, Poplar Grove, Ill.

Private Willies Rodgers, Company M, 130th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Consenvoye, France, Oct. 10. Although suffering painfully from an infected hand, Private Rodgers acted as stretcher bearer while his company was in action. He made five trips to the dressing stations, a total distance of about 25 miles, and was under shell fire at all stages of his journey. Nathaniel Rodgers, father, Argenta Ill.

Sergt. Harry N. Anderson, Battery E, Tenth Field Artillery. For extraordinary heroism in action near Greves Farm, July 15. Sergt. Anderson displayed notable courage in continuing to direct the fire of his piece under terrific bombardment after being twice wounded, continuing on duty until he was ordered to the rear. Mrs. W. Anderson, mother, Wagata, Ill.

$500,000 ART EXHIBIT HERE AT MUSEUM NOW

The most notable collection of paintings, antique furniture and pottery ever shown in St. Louis is in the west wing of the City Art Museum in Forest Park. Some of the finest pieces are here under consideration for possible purchase, and while the board of control is deliberating over the purchase the public will be allowed to see the works.

The most costly picture is an authentic "Madonna and Child" by Peter Paul Rubens. This painting belonged to the family of Viconte Bus de Gisignies of Brussels and is one of the many art treasures that have come to America because of the war. There are other pictures by Covpel, David Teniers, Govaert Flinck, Ravenstyn and several of the early American portrait painters.

The collection of antique furniture includes examples of the finest English, French and Italian carving, of which the most valuable is a sixteenth century Italian cassone, or bridal chest, bearing the coat of arms of the royal bride for the reception of whose trousseau it was made. It is elaborately carved in high relief, with a succession of figures from Greek mythology, and the interior is large enough to accommodate 20 or 30 dresses without folding.

There is a superb Gothic tapestry, one of the best ever shown here, and a remarkable example of stained glass of the thirteenth century, which was taken from an old church in the south of France. As stained glass making is the art from which modern painting was developed, this window is peculiarly important. It is in an absolutely perfect state of preservation and the colors are beautiful.

There is a large collection of antique Chinese pottery, including a rare black hawthrone vase and an altar garniture of five pieces on imperial porcelain, with intricate enamel design against a background of pure gold. This is the first Hon Yau altar set ever brought to St. Louis and one of the finest in existence.

UP IN THE AIR 100 HOURS

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—In the course of a discussion of the Aerial Navigation bill in the House of Commons Major-General John Seeley, Parliamentary Under Secretary of the Minister of Munitions, announced that the Government intended to make flying safer by providing a large number of airdromes, some of them military establishments and some civil. The Government, Gen. Seeley said, would pay the entire cost of exclusively military airdromes and would start the movement by providing for civil airdromes but that it was hoped before long the last named would become entirely self-supporting.

A British airship, according to Gen. Seeley, recently remained in the air for more than 100 hours. At an average speed of 50 miles an hour, the under secretary said, the airship must have covered more than 5000 miles. It was possible that the ship could have continued longer in the air, the speaker declared, notwithstanding severe wind.

DRAMA and MUSICAL EVENTS FOR THE WEEK

"MAYTIME," A MUSICAL ROMANCE, HERE TONIGHT

Love Story Runs Course Through Four Epochs, 1840, 1855, 1880 and 1918.

A musical romance is the title given to "Maytime," the charming operetta which comes to the city for the first time tonight at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater, after a run of more than a year in New York and prolonged seasons in Philadelphia and Chicago. There are now two companies on tour, each of which has had New York performances.

"Maytime" was adapted by Rida Johnson Young, the librettist, from a play that was a ruling success in the German theaters a few years ago, the title of which may be translated: "Once Upon a Time in May."

The story runs its course through four epochs, defined by the dates of 1840, 1855, 1880 and 1918. The heroine, Ottilie Van Zandt, first appears at the age of 16, in crinoline and pantalettes, at her father's ancestral mansion in Washington Square, New York. She is in love with her father's apprentice, Richard Wayne, but they are parted by her father, who gives his daughter to another.

In 1855 we are in Mme. Delphine's Night Club in New York, and thither comes P. T. Barnum, the showman, bringing two of his freaks to perform. Richard and Ottilie meet again after 15 years of separation, she the tragically unhappy wife of a man she does not love, and he grown rich and famous. She is so overcome at finding her former lover again that her husband accuses her of having an intrigue with Richard. To save her he announces that he has returned from his wanderings in Africa to marry a woman friend of Ottilie.

Lovers Meet Again in Old Age.

In 1880 we are back in the Van Zandt home in Washington Square. The family fortune has taken wings, and the contents are being sold under the hammer. Ottilie is now going on 66, and her lost lover is still older Richard buys everything and sends a friend to prevail on Ottilie to accept the gift. She hesitates, but the friend says: "Sometimes it is more generous to receive than to give."

In the final act the old Van Zandt mansion has been replaced by a modiste's shop. Ottilie and Richard are dead, but live again in the granddaughter of the former and grandson of the latter—a young Ottilie and Dick. This time it is the girl who is poor and the boy who is rich, but circumstances are equalized by a lucky discovery.

The incidental music, written by Sigmund Rombert, has been much praised, even by musicians. One of the airs, "Will You Remember Me?" has already become popular here. The settings, if the standard of the New York production is maintained, should be beautiful and lavish. The parts of the lovers are taken by Miss Carolyn Thomson and John Charles Thomas; and the comedy part of Matthew Van Zandt, who bobs up in the last act still spry and frisky at the age of nearly 100, is taken by John T. Murray.

Thurston, that clever and entertaining exponent of magic, is the attraction at the American this week, beginning with a matinee today. He is the sole survivor of the famous triumvirate, which included Hermann and Kellar. His acts deal in part with spiritualistic manifestations; among the titles are: "Gravitation Defied," "The Miracle," "Shadows of Life," "The Vampire," "Spirit Paintings" and "The Artist's Dream."

"Ziegfeld's Follies" will pay their annual visit at the American next week, with a company of 150, and such popular entertainers as Will Rogers, Marilynn Miller, Eddie Cantor, W. C. Fields, Ann Pennington, Allyn King and the Fairbanks twins. Next week's offering at the Shubert-Jefferson is a war play, "Seven Days' Leave."

Blanche Ring, popular musical comedy star, is the headliner this week at the Orpheum; in a program of songs especially written for her, and in her usual striking gowns. William Gibson and Regina Conelli present a one-act comedy, "The Homeymoon." A musical number of interest is that of Ota Gygi, violinist, and Mayon Vadie, dancer. Others on the bill are Florenze Tempest, Walter Brower, Helen Gleason and Walter Jarrett in a comedy turn, "The Submarine Attack," and Herman and Shirley in "The Mysterious Masquerader."

At the other theaters: Columbia, Anna Eva Fay, the celebrated mystic; Grand, the Four Casters, aerial performers; King's, the "Rainbow Revue; Gaiety, Hastings' show, with Dan Coleman, and Standard, "A Whirl of Folly." The headliner at the Garrick the first half of the week will be a gypsy act, "A Night in a Romany Camp."

$250 FOR FASHION SCENARIO

A prize of $250 will be awarded for the best scenario for the Fall Fashion Pageant, to be held during August in the Municipal Theater at Forest Park. An invitation to participate in the contest has been extended to amateur and professional playwrights of the city so that a closer relationship between the arts and industries may be established.

Rules have been issued for competitors. They must be residents of St. Louis or live within a radius of 50 miles from the city. The contest will close April 15, and announcement of the award will be made early in May. Copies of the rules may be obtained at the committee headquarters, 1627 Locust street.

TWO JUVENILE PLAYS BY JUNIOR PLAYERS THIS WEEK

"White Magic" Friday Night and "They Stole Little Bridget" Saturday Afternoon at Artists' Guild.

This is children's year in amateur theatricals, and the Junior Players, trained by Joseph Solari and Miss Alice Martin, will give the second of their dramatic entertainments of the season Friday night and Saturday afternoon at the Artists' Guild Theater. Two charming fairy plays. "White Magic" and "They Stole Little Bridget," will be presented. Both are from the pen of Netta Syrett.

There is only one scene for "White Magic," a forest. The cast of children is as follows: the Queen, Elizabeth Ward; the Witch, Grace Randal; Princess Philomene, Adria Sykes; the Dryad, Florence Rein; Prince Fortunas, Harry Hofmeister, Edelbert, Kenneth Holtgrewe; Malabo, Marjorie Montgomery; Twinkletoes, Frances Norpoth; Flower Foam, Marian Marquard; and Coblins, Agnes Harth, Pauline Parker and Katherine Sears.

There are three scenes in "They Stole Little Bridget"—one in a farmhouse kitchen one spring morning, the next on the afternoon of the same day, and the third a month later. The parts are assigned thus: Mistress Willow, Janice Milligan; Chloe, Eugenia Feiner; Lubin, George McCaslin; Bridget, Marjorie Fulton; Betty, Pauline Parker, and the pixies Red Cap, Marian Marquard; Green Jacket, Frances Norpoth; White Owl's Feather, Marjorie Montgomery, and Purple Plume, Janise Stewart.

In addition to the two plays, the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet" will be given by Maury Tuckerman and Verna Casserly. The costumes for the plays are designed by Miss Marguerite Breen, and the stage settings are in charge of Laurence Ewald.

"OVER AND BACK" A COMEDY BY ST. LOUIS U. STUDENTS

Musical Show Is to Be Presented at the Odeon March 1, Written by J. Francis Quinn.

An original musical comedy, "Over and Back," with music by J. Francis Quinn, S. J., of Chicago will be produced by students of St. Louis University at the Odeon on Saturday evening, March 1. The director of the production is Daniel A. Lord, S. J., of St. Louis University. He and Father Quinn collaborated in two previous musical comedies performed by St. Louis University students, "Full Steam Ahead" and "Rouge and Rapid-Fire."

The new works is military in subject, and more than three-fourths of the students taking part have recently been discharged from some branch of the military service. The scenes range from the front-line trenches and the reception there of the news of the armistice, to the return of the transports and the review of troops in New York. Among the incidental scenes is a burlesque on a grand opera rehearsal, and parodies on the impressionistic drama and the modern movie play.

Three St. Louis girls will take the feminine parts in the play, Misses Rose and Marion Cronk and Edna Reilly. The students in the principal roles are Lester A. O'Keefe, Alphonse McMahon, Lester O'Halloran, Willis Monaghan, Edward L. Butler and Lieut. Jerome Simon. There is promised a chorus of 40 voices and an orchestra of 23.

COMMUNITY SINGING TODAY AT SYMPHONY CONCERT

Frederick Fischer Will Lead Audience in "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

At the Symphony Orchestra's popular concert this afternoon at the Odeon, the community song feature will be revived in celebration of Washington's birthday. Under the leadership of Frederick Fischer, the audience will join in "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean."

The other numbers will be as follows: Halverson's march,, "Triumphal Entry of the Boyars;" Straus' overture to "The Bat;" Hosmer's "Southern Rhapsody;" selections from Puccini's "La Boheme;" the entr'acte from Gounod's "La Colombe;" entr'acte waltz, Hellmesberger; and Sousa's march, "Stars and Stripes Forever."

There will be no regular concerts this week, the next Friday and Saturday concerts occurring March 7 and 8, when Rudolph Ganz, pianist, will be soloist. Two succeeding regular programs will bring the season to an end, one without soloist on March 14-15, and another with Riccardo Stracciari, baritone, as soloist, on March 21-22.

NEGRO TENOR WHO HAS WON NOTICE TO SING HERE FRIDAY

Praised for His Operatic Selection as Well as for His Spirituals.

Roland W. Hayes, a negro tenor, who has recently won distinguished appreciation for his interpretation of the spirituals of his own race, and of airs in Italian from opera and art-songs in French, will give a recital Friday night at the large auditorium recently erected by St. Louis negroes at 4300 St. Ferdinand avenue.

A few weeks ago Hayes gave a recital at Aeolian Hall, New York, to which the newspapers of the city gave considerable attention. His "tenor of fine and pure quality," and his "vocal culture of a high order" were praised.

His program here will include the famous aria, "Cielo e mar," from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda," the popular dream song from Massenet's "Manon." He will sing groups of songs by H. T. Burleigh and Samuel Coleridge-Taylor, the leading negro composers of America and England, respectively, and several negro spirituals arranged by Burleigh, such as "I Stood on de Ribber of Jordan," "Peter, Go Ring dem Bells," and "O, Didn't It Rain?"

CONCERT AT WEBSTER ARMORY

Charles W. Clark, baritone, of Chicago, will be soloist of the Chaminade Choral Club's concert Wednesday night at the New Armory in Webster Groves. He has for years been known as a singer of artistry and intelligence not only in this country but in England and France.

His program will begin with airs from old operatic composers, Sacchini and Gretry. Then there will be a group of songs by Richard Czerwonky of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra; then a group by American composers, including the inevitable "The Americans Come" of Fay Foster and, finally, a group by Ernest Leo.

The club, under the direction of Leo Miller, will offer a number of choruses, including Coleridge-Taylor's "The Viking," Eichberg's "To Thee, O Country," Nevin's "The Rosary," and David Stanley Smith's "The Zingali."

'HARLEQUINADE' COMING FIRST TIME, ANY STAGE

Players to Give Calthrop-Barker Fantasy at Artists' Guild Tuesday Night.

The Players will produce at the Artists' Guild Theater Tuesday night, for the first time on any stage, "The Harlequinade: An Excursion," by Dion Clayton Calthrop and Granville Barker. The play, which is in five scenes, bears the motto: "Now, in any excursion, you get into all sorts of odd company."

It relates a lover's search for his true mate through many centuries and among many peoples. The range of the scenes is indicated by the following titles: "The Banks of the Styx," "An Italian Garden," "Lord Eglantine's Room," "The Ninety-ninth Street Theater" and "The Banks of the Styx."

On the banks of the Stygian River the lover encounters a company of ancient gods—Mercury, Charon, Momus. In the Italian garden he meets with characters from pantomime—Pantaloon, Columbine, Harlequin. A group of typical Britons greets him in Lord Eglantine's room, and at the Ninety-ninth Street Theater a company of modern New Yorkers. Throughout the action, Alice, an English girl, and her worldly uncle, sit at the side of the stage and comment upon the scenes. The dialogue is said to be humorous, poetic and whimsical. Music accompanies the various episodes.

The production is under the direction of Clarence Stratton. The stage settings have been designed by Stratton and Robb Leonard, and executed by a committee headed by Mrs. E. W. Pattison, assisted by Mrs. Emily Phelps, Harlan Frazer and Herbert Jackson. Mrs. Ralph Thompson is chairman of the Costumes Committee, and Mrs. Hermann von Schrenk of the Hospitality Commtitee.

The members of the cast are as follows: Alice, Mrs. Susan Lovett Cost; Uncle Edward, Clarence Stratton; Hipponax, Leslie H. Thompson; Mercury, Hazel M. Ewald; Charon, Percy Werner; Momus, T. W. Fry; Gelsomino, Clarence V. Beck; Columbine, Erma Perham Proetz; the Man of the World, Ralph Thompson; Clown, Arthur W. Proetz; Pantaloon, Robert M. Wilson; Harlequin, Herbert W. Cost; Richardson, Lucile Campbell Chapman; Quin, Harlan Frazer; Lord Eglantine, Alphonse McMahon; Mr. Talon, Robert Hanna; Sir George Rustic, Robert Kissack, Grace, Hazel M. Ewald; Arthur, Robert Kissack, and Psyche, Elizabeth Thompson. Betty Rood Lambert will be at the piano.

ST. LOUIS ITALIAN GRAND OPERA CO. OFFERS PROGRAM

Initial Appearance Tomorrow at the Odeon Singers Organized a Year Ago—Under Relief Fund Auspices.

The St. Louis Italian Grand Opera Company, organized a year ago by L.M. Molino, will make its first appearance tomorrow night at the Odeon, under the auspices of the St. Louis Chapter of the Italian War Relief Fund of America.

The feature of the program will be the presentation of the second and third acts from Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor." The cast, composed of St. Louis singers, will be as follows: Ashton, Bartolomeo Quero; Lucia, Miss Minerva Thompson; Edgar, Salvatore d'Agostino; Alisa, Miss Anna Franzen-Collina; Raymond, Henry Bourne; Arthur, Carlo Cappelli or Everett Taylor; and Norman, John Berezowski.

A ballet, "Scene Italiene," will be presented by pupils of Miss Alice Martin, in costumes representing the national dress of Southern Italy. Miss Kethleen Wheeler will give a solo dance, and Misses Marjorie Fulton and Evelyn Graham a duet dance. The ballet will be composed of Misses Verna Casserly, Eugenia Piner, Isabel Fulton, Virginia Halk, Ruth Harte, Marion Hofmeister, Audrey Milligan, Helen Norpoth, Grace Randal, Florence Rein, Margaret Steele, Ardia Sykes, Charlotte Tellman, Lila Louise Tellman and Elizabeth Ward. The proceeds will be used to buy food and clothing for Italian war orphans. Guido Panteleoni is chairman of the local chapter.

MOVIES OF OFFICERS' CAMP

Pictures Will Show Training Required for Applicants.

Moving pictures illustrative of the training requirements of members of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps will be shown the 170 men of the corps at Washington University in the Y. M. C. A. building on the university grounds, Forsythe boulevard and Liggett drive, at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow. Films provided by the Federal Bureau of Commercial Economics, as well as films of a lighter nature, will also be shown.

The Washington University Y. M. C. A. building is the sole building remaining of the group provided for the use of the students' army training corps unit last fall. It has been decided to permanently retain the "Y" building for such community use as that tomorrow night. Maj. Wallace M. Craigie, professor of military science and tactics, is planning to use the building for a lengthy film series for the benefit of the R. O. T. C. unit, showing, if possible, official films of the operations of the A. E. F.

Recital at the Y. M. C. A.

Burnett E. Lemen, baritone, will give a recital at the Central Y. M. C. A., Wednesday evening. Employes of the Grand-Leader have been invited to attend.

This Pretty Girl Tells How She Defies Age by Using Ordinary Oatmeal to Beautify Her Complexion

According to Mae Edna Wilder, the "wheels of time" may be turned backward if a little common sense is used in taking care of the skin. Like everything else, the skin needs food, care and attention. The pores, to do their work properly, should be kept open and scrupulously clean. After being thoroughly cleansed they should be fed, to nourish and bring to the skin that beautiful, youthful appearance every normal woman craves. Miss Wilder, though well past the time of life when most complexions fade, is famous for her beautiful complexion, and when asked how she retains her youthful appearance said:

"It is a simple process to appear youthful. No one comes within ten years of guessing my age. Here is my secret: Go to any grocery store and get 10 cents' worth of ordinary oatmeal. Put a small quantity of the oatmeal in a bag of cheesecloth about the size of your hand. Drop on or into the bag 10 drops of derwillo, which can be obtained at any up-to-date drug store, dip in warm water and use as you would a wash cloth. Wash your face, hands, arms, neck and shoulders, night and morning. Let it remain on the skin for a minute, thus allowing the pores to absorb the food value of the oatmeal. Wash off with warm water, rinse with cold water and dry thoroughly. Then apply derwillo. This is very important. In a short time your skin will undergo a marvelous change. A rosy hue mounts the cheeks, and a baby softness comes to the skin. The very first application will convince you that this combination is a most effective one for beautifying purposes. It is especially recommended for freckles, tan, sunburn, wrinkles, large pores, rough skin, as it freshens and beautifies the complexion and makes rough, red hands and arms smooth and white. It gives the skin the appearance of youth, and whatever success I have had in preserving my complexion I attribute to derwillo and oatmeal. Every woman, no matter what her station in life, can well afford to spend five or ten minutes night and morning in caring for her complexion. There is not enough money in the world to cause me to neglect mine. I have known women over fifty to follow this method and frequently pass for forty. Women thirty years of age look like girls in their teens. Just cut this out so you won't forget it; try it for a week, and at the end of that time you will thank me for publishing my formula."

MAE EDNA WILDER

NOTE—To get the best effect, be sure to follow the complete instructions given above. You have only to get derwillo and oatmeal. You need nothing else, and it's so simple that anyone can use it, and so inexpensive that any woman can afford it. Derwillo can be obtained in this city from department stores and all up-to-date druggists, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros., Enderle and Pauley Stores.—ADVERTISEMENT.

I Blame the Woman Who Lets a Man Drink, Says Druggist Brown

Cleveland. He Guarantees a Simple Home Treatment Given Without the Knowledge of the Drinker.

No wife has a right to let her husband drink; for alcoholism is a disease and a drunkard is a sick man, says Druggist Brown of Cleveland. A woman can cure this disease—stop a drinking husband in a few weeks for half what he would spend on liquor in the same time. The habit can be broken and the disease cured. Thousands of cases prove it, and every community has its reformed drunkard. Druggist Brown says the right time to stop the drink habit is at its beginning. Left to run its course it will deaden the fine sensibilities of the man you love. Begin with the first whiff of liquor on his breath, but do not despair if he has already gone from bad to worse until he has become a rum-soaked sot.

Druggist Brown knows the curse of strong drink, for he himself has been a victim. A loving sister, without his knowledge, rescued him from the brink of a drunkard's grave, and for 10 years kept her secret. She saved him from drink—rescued him from his own depraved, besotted self by giving him a secret remedy, the formula of an old European chemist. To pay his debt to her and to help other victims out of the murk and mire he has made the formula public.

Druggists everywhere dispense it daily as Prepared Tescum Powders, put up in doses. Get it of your own druggist and drop a powder twice a day in tea, coffee, milk or other drink. Soon liquor does not taste the same, the craving for it disappears, and lo! one more drunkard has been saved and knows not when or why he lost his taste for drink.

Warning Note: Tescum should be given only when it is desirable to destroy all taste for alcohol and all pleasure in its use. Those who encourage moderate drinking should not give it until the so-called moderate drinker reaches the danger line, as most of them do in time. Druggist Brown has such confidence in Tescum Powders that he personally guarantees results or he will refund out of his own pocket the price charged by the dispensing druggist. It is sold by Enderle, Johnson Bros., Pauley, Wolff-Wilson and other druggists.—ADV.

Come Mother, This Castor Oil Is What You Need---Don't Cry!

If you, mother, had to swallow the awful dose---Think back to your childhood days---Ugh!

Give your children Cascarets instead. Cascarets taste like candy. Every child loves to take a Cascaret. Besides Cascarets act better on the little liver and bowels when the child is bilious, constipated, feverish and sick. Cascarets are delightful---harmless---cheap!

Each 10 cent box of Cascarets, the pleasant candy cathartic, contains directions and dosage for children aged one year old and upwards. When the little one's tongue turns white, breath feverish, stomach sour, there is nothing better to "work" the nasty bile, souring food and constipation poison from the child's system. Give Cascarets, then never worry.

GRAPHIC STORY OF THE STRIKE AT THE LEAVENWORTH PRISON

talking and loafing. The guards in charge made only a nominal effort to induce them to resume work.

This was the first overt act of the strike. In that mysterious fashion in which news travels through walls and barred doors in prison, the whole place was soon humming with the exciting news that the first gang had struck. What did it mean? What were they striking for? How far did they intend to go? What was to be their method—violence and an attempt to overpower the prison authorities, or the quiet method of simply refusing to work? Would they try to get others to join them?

One of the members of the "first gang" was a conscientious objector. In civilian life he had been a newspaper reporter and a poet; he was known as a "radical!" That night he held a conference with friends in his wing. He told them that he had no desire to participate in a strike for such petty objects as the men of the first gang were then considering. No one had formulated that afternoon any statement of what was wanted. One prisoner wanted more tobacco; another wanted better food; another resented the treatment of negroes on an equality with whites; a fourth felt bitter because he wasn't getting his letters from home, a fifth wanted the privilege of writing more letters himself. This absorption in small desires, and utter disagreement of one man with another, characterized the early stages of the strike. Everyone was discontented, many were surly, but only by chance did any two agree upon the cause of their dissatisfaction.

The prisoner in question told his friends that if he did not join the strike with the other members of his gang, his own safety might be endangered. Local Kansas City newspapers, notably the Star, had for a week past been publishing wholly untrue stores of the bitterness existing among the prisoners toward conscientious objectors. Realizing that these stories were not true, this prisoner nevertheless feared that their very publication (they were, of course, read by many prisoners) might produce the antagonism described. A single unfortunate accident might turn against the objectors the passion that had already been aroused against the blacks. If he, an objector, incurred the enmity of his fellows by refusing to join the strike, he might be the unwitting means of bringing about a general hostility toward the 400 objectors still in prison. That night he went to his cell bed resolved to do what he could to make the strike a general demand for something more than extra tobacco and better food. Forty-eight hours later this man, H. Austin Simons, was the acknowledged spokesman of the strikers.

This was the night, also, of the fire in the Quartermaster's warehouse. The flames were discovered at about 6 o'clock in the evening and soon bore every appearance of getting beyond control. From my perch on a window ledge in the Adjutant's office, where my presence was barely tolerated (twice I had to show my pass to be allowed to stay), I saw the whole panorama of the prison yard. Two conflicts were going on—the effort to control the fire and the effort to prevent trouble among the prisoners. These were securely locked in their cell wings 200 yards from the fire, but 600 men (the number in some of the wings) can make short work of locks if they go about it in the right way.

Call for Men to Handle Rifles.

Soldiers from the 49th Infantry regiment, temporarily stationed at the post, had been called out to assist in the emergency. Squad after squad of 10 men each ran into the prison yard and disappeared in the direction of the cell wings. One could only guess to what use it might be necessary to put them. Two guards bearing a limp form, came from the direction of the quartermaster's warehouse and entered the hospital door. They were quickly followed by two more, and then by four carrying a stretcher with a body on it. In all, 11 men were taken into the hospital that evening, overcome by smoke or fatigue. Nine of these were prisoners, trusted inmates who had been allowed to help fight the flames.

Sparks flew over the hospital building and settled upon its roof. Heavy rolls of smoke poured through its screened porches and doors. One sighed with relief as he noted that it was built of stone, but quickly became alarmed at the recollection that its annex, containing many patients, was of wood.

An officer came running. "I want 10 men quick," he yelled, "men who know how to handle guns." The description seemed superfluous, and the men were off in an instant.

As an organic part of the strike, the fire had no significance. In two hours it was practically extinguished, without loss of life but with the loss of approximately $100,000 worth of clothing and supplies. Its occurrence, however, due as it was to the work of two or three prisoners who later confessed, was evidence of the spirit of unrest. Men were bent upon any measures that gave an outlet to their passions. The strain of it must have been very great on the 2500 men locked in their cells. The fire screwed the tension to a higher pitch, and left both officers and prisoners with raw nerves.

Next morning occurred the first blunder of the administation. Without consulting Col. Rice, the executive officer ordered that the prisoners be marched back to their wings immediately after breakfast and that they remain there for the morning. This did two things: it told the men that the officials were afraid that something might happen if they went to work, and it gave them further opportunity for agitation.

Commandant Called It I. W. W. Trouble.

During all of this time my own relations with the men had been friendly and cordial. It was known to them that I was on good terms with the officers and the commandant. This fact, and the circumstance that some of the prisoners were sure to regard me with suspicion if I went too freely back and forth from office to cell while such momentous events were on foot, induced me to hold myself somewhat aloof during the next two days. I still went freely about the yard and talked with individual prisoners, but I stayed away from the cell wings, where the men were discussing their plans. It was easy enough to keep in touch with the main current of events and I had no wish to be an interloper.

At 10 o'clock Thursday morning, Col. Rice said to me: "This I. W. W. trouble that we have been fearing has started with some of the men. I am going down to see about it. Will you come with me?" I accompanied him and several officers to the boiler room where about 30 prisoners were gathered together, talking to a Lieutenant from the executive office. Col Rice pushed to the center and faced the men. He is a large man whose military bearing is none the less impressive for being free and easy. To me, who have never been a prisoner under him, his face is generous and kindly. His manner is not pompous, not domineering. He asked me what the trouble was. In reply the spokesman said that the prisoners gathered there were not striking. They had no desire to strike. All they wanted was protection in keeping the boiler plant going. That morning, he said, the men had been called sneaks and scabs by other prisoners and had been threatened with violence if they did not stop working. This naturally frightened them and they had joined in a request for protection. Col. Rice told them that measures were being taken for their safety and left them with a strong plea that they continue to perform their duties.

From there he went to the sixth wing, where it was understood that several hundred prisoners were especially vocal in stating their grievances. This wing, like all the others, has eight tier cells. Its occupants gathered about the Colonel on the main floor and hung to the railings of the lower tiers. Col. Rice thus faced an audience that packed in close around him and rose half way to the ceiling.

"I want to talk with the men here who think they have grievances," he said. There was no response.

"What, nobody here thinks he has a grievance?"

Two or three shouted "I have," or put up their hands and started forward. Col. Rice offered to talk to them one at a time.

A man stepped forward and complained that he and several others had been transferred from an open cell to a closed cell without justification. Col. Rice asked the executive officer to take the man's number and to report to him the reason for the man's transfer.

"Now, where's the man who said the food was bad?" he asked.

A ruddy-cheeked fellow of medium height, lithe frame and clear eyes stepped forward, receiving a round of applause from some of the prisoners. He placed himself in front of Col. Rice, folded his arms and said:

The Complaint About the Food.

"The food, sir, in this place is rotten."

"What's rotten about it?" asked the Colonel.

"Why, it's rotten. It ain't fit to eat. A man can't work on it. A man can't keep himself fit on it. He becomes a wreck, sir."

"Is the bread rotten?"

"No, sir, the bread is the only thing that's good."

"Is the meat rotten?"

"Yes, sir, the meat is no good whatever. A man can't eat it."

"How do you know he can't?"

"Because I can't, sir."

"You know, don't you, that the meat you get is the same meat that soldiers eat? You know, don't you, we buy our meat from the Government, that the Government is allowed to buy only the best parts of the beef, and that the meat that comes into this institution is Government inspected? You are eating the same meat that the soldiers all over this country are eating."

"How about those stinking old sausages?" shouted a prisoner from the upper tier, to the great amusement of the others.

"What are you here for?" asked the Colonel, ignoring this remark.

"Disobedience, sir."

"You're a conscientious objector, aren't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Are you an I. W. W.?"

"No, sir, I never belonged to that organization."

"You're a Socialist, aren't you?"

"Yes, sir, I'm a Socialist."

"And in addition to being a conscientious objector, you're a constitutional objector, aren't you?"

Wanted Their Point of View.

"I don't know as I know exactly what you mean, sir."

"I mean you object to all forms of government and order."

"No, sir, I do not."

"Well, most Socialists do."

"I beg your pardon," shouted a prisoner from an upper tier, but said no more.

"Now, men," began Col. Rice, "I'm not down here to threaten you. That's not my purpose at all. I would really like to get your point of view. I would like to know what you think you're going to gain by your present conduct. I know many of you have grievances. Some of these grievances are real, and some are imaginary. I know what some of them are. I know there are men in here who can't understand why they have such long sentences. I know there are men here who can't understand why they have 15-20-25-year and even longer sentences, when other men who, in their judgment have committed similar offenses or no less serious offenses, have only two years."

The Colonel had struck home. A mighty shout and handclapping greeted this statement. The Colonel went on:

"But what I can't understand is why you think you are in a position to correct it. For aught you know, there may be others who are now trying to correct it. For aught you know, there may be people who are now trying to get clemency for you. I am not making any promises, but these people may be working hard and may have some chance of success. But what are you doing? You are making it so much harder for them by your present conduct. You are fixing it so that even when the time comes when something might be done for you, those who are making the effort will find their hands tied.

"I am perhaps in closer touch with what is going on here than you think. I have many sources of information and I hear much. If I had no other source than the anonymous letters from prisoners that come to my desk I would know, for example, that you are saying that you are 3600 strong, that there are only a few guards, and that you can take things into your own hands. It is true that there are only a few guards, but what you forget is that there are 4000 soldiers in this post, a soldier for every man and I can have 'em all here in five minutes." (General shifting of feet and sidelong glances.)

"Now, I know there are things about this institution that could be better. And we are working all the time to make them better. I know the service in the dining room is not all that I would like to have it. But there is exactly twice the number of prisoners in this institution that we can reasonably accommodate, and that is a condition that I cannot control. I didn't send you here. Don't imagine that I want to keep you. I'd like to get rid of the whole lot of you. You're no comfort to me."

Such was the groping, during the early stages of the strike, both by prisoners and officers, to find out what this spontaneous, inexplicable movement meant and how to quell it. No one knew yet just what was happening or would happen. No one knew how far the movement would go.

Col. Rice was a study during these first days. For four years he had been in charge of the Disciplinary Barracks and had never before seen the men un-

Why Be Fat?

The answer of most fat people is that constant dieting is hard, continual exercise is tiresome, exhaustive—then, too, it might be harmful to force the weight down. That was the old-fashioned idea. Today in Marmola Prescription Tablets, all these difficulties are overcome. Just a pleasant, harmless little tablet after each meal and at bedtime causes fat to vanish. This modern method is absolutely harmless, entails no dieting or exercise, and has the added advantage of cheapness. A large case of safe Marmola Prescription Table is sold by druggists at 75c. Or, if preferable, can be obtained by sending price direct to the Marmola Co., 64 Garfield Bldg., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this you have no excuse for being too fat, but can reduce two, three or four pounds a week without fear of any bad after-effects whatever.

A STUBBORN COUGH LOOSENS RIGHT UP

This Home-Made Remedy Is a Wonder for Quick Results. Easily and Cheaply Made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CUT YOUR SHOE BILLS WITH NEOLIN SOLES

"The answer to the problem of shoe wear lies in the use of Neōlin Soles"—so says H. L. Evans of Steubenville, Ohio.

"For five months," says Mr. Evans, "I have been wearing the same pair of Neōlin-soled shoes at my work at the La Belle Iron Works and they are good for two months more wear. As my work takes me to all parts of the mill daily where I have to walk over cinders, slag, etc., it is simply out of the question to buy anything else to take the place of Neōlin Soles."

You too—and your whole family—will find Neōlin-soled shoes wear long and so save money. You can get them in the styles you like at almost any good shoe store. And any repairman will re-sole your worn shoes with Neōlin Soles—scientifically made to be durable, comfortable and waterproof. They are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear any other heels.

Found at Last---a Real Hair Saver and Beautifier

Quickly Makes Dull, Harsh, Unattractive Hair Doubly Beautiful, Abundant, Soft and Fluffy—or Nothing to Pay.

Women Delighted—All Surprised by Quick Action of Parisian Sage.

It's amazing how much pretty hair does towards producing the appearance of youth and beauty so much desired by women of all ages. It's really a simple matter for any woman to merit this praise since radiant hair is only a matter of care.

When your hair becomes faded, dry, streaked and scraggly, when it falls out badly and new hair cannot grow, the roots must be vitalized and properly nourished. To do this quickly, safely and at little expense, there is nothing so effective as Parisian sage (liquid form) which you can get at all good drug and toilet counters.

It's guaranteed to abolish dandruff—stop scalp itch and falling hair, and promote a new growth or money refunded. It's in great demand by women of taste and culture, because it makes the hair so soft, lustrous, easy to arrange attractively and appear much heavier than it really is.

A massage with Parisian sage is a real delight—easy to use, not sticky or greasy, and delicately perfumed—an antiseptic liquid free from dangerous ingredients and guaranteed not to color the hair or scalp. If you want good looking hair and plenty of it use Parisian sage. Don't delay—begin tonight—a little attention now insures beautiful hair for years to come.—ADVERTISEMENT.

THOMAS W. GARLAND 409-11-13 Broadway

RAPHIC STORY OF THE STRIKE AT THE LEAVENWORTH PRISON

him in such a mood as this. He knew as much, and as little, about the causes of the unrest as anyone else knew. He seemed honestly seeking for the explanation, and while he disapproved the conduct of the men and found it difficult to talk to them in their present temper, he made himself do it. He bore at times the attitude of a patient, overtried father toward his children. In his reference to the force at his command, one felt that he was making this threat more from a sense of duty and in the hope that it would have the desired effect, than because he gloried in his opportunity to use it. Yet every man there knew that he could use it, and that this military traditions and training undoubtedly prompted him to that solution.

One felt another thing: If only Col. Rice would really take these men into his confidence! I knew that a month before he had made recommendations to the War Department that would, if approved, go far to remove the causes of this present disturbance. He had hinted at these in his remarks to the men in the sixth wing. But he could not bring himself to make the full confession—to prisoners.

"To Hell With the Work!"

That noon the men were lined up in the yard as usual, to be marched out to work. This was to be the final test. Would the prisoners acknowledge their obligations, or would—one shuddered as he filled in the alternative, with the infantrymen waiting outside.

An officer called out the gangs. "First gang," he shouted, and waited for it to form in line. No one stirred.

"There ain't no first gang," came a voice from the ranks.

"Second gang," shouted the officer.

"There ain't no second gang," came another voice.

"To hell with work. We want to go home," shouted a prisoner.

"Third gang," called the officer.

"There ain't no third gang," came from another quarter. The officer folded his sheet and turning to Col. Rice remarked that the prisoners of the United States Disciplinary Barracks seemed to be on strike.

Col. Rice stepped forward. He raised his voice and asked the men to tell him why they refused to work. Again he pleaded for individuals to come out and tell him what was the trouble. "I want your point of view," he said. "No one will be punished for coming out and speaking to me here. I know you have leaders and I want those leaders to come forth and speak to me, man to man."

No one moved. Two thousand prisoners stood with their arms folded, motionless except for the occasional shouting of individuals. In their ill-fitting coats and shapeless trousers with white numbers two and a half inches high sewed above each knee and across their backs they looked like what in the eyes of the law they were—a herd of branded criminals. Yet among them were many men of character and attainments, many ignorant youths who had got into trouble through sheer carelessness, many men who had committed offenses for which any civil court would punish them. What could such a conglomerate group have in common?

"We want to go home," shouted some. "We want better food," shouted others. One man brought a laugh by bawling at the top of his lungs, "Give us liberty or give up death."

Col. Rice walked up and down, now addressing several sentences at a time to the men, now begging individuals to come forth. Yet no one wanted to reveal himself as a leader in the presence of half a dozen prison officers. Few smiled, for, though they were suddenly realizing the proportions of their own mass movement, they did not know how to control it or give it direction.

"Here Is a Speaker, Sir!"

Suddenly the ranks opened and a small prisoner with closely shaven head and wearing a long ugly raincoat pushed forward. With his intent expression he had somewhat the appearance of a Franciscan monk. I had seen him at the Atlantic branch of the Disciplinary Barracks at Fort Jay and I knew him to be the close friend and legal ward of a man long prominent in social work. An officer called, "Here is a speaker, sir." There was a quick hush. Beginning in a low voice, the prisoner said:

> Sir, I have been here only a few days. I was transferred four days ago from the Disciplinary Barracks at Fort Jay. I am in no sense a leader of these men. I can speak for myself, however, and (here he raised his voice so that he could be heard throughout the yard) I think I speak for many others in these silent ranks when I say that our object in thus seeming to oppose authority is that this is the only way in which we can make articulate our demand to know what is to become of us. What, sir, is the Government going to do with us?
> I am a conscientious objector. I realize that in thus separating myself from this mass I make myself a marked man among your officers. I am willing to do this, sir, if I can enlighten you, and through you others, in regard to the meaning of this protest. My own sentence happens to be 20 years, but my case is only one. There are hundreds of men in this prison bearing sentences of 15, 20 and 25 years (I am not now speaking of objectors only) who were new to military method and requirements, and who committed offenses for which the peacetime judgments would be only a few months or at most two or three years. Are these men to remain here for the rest of their lives?
> Sir, the armistice was signed nearly three months ago. The war is over. The Government has already released 113 of our fellows. Has it not had time to investigate the justice of other claims? You ask, sir, what are our grievances. I answer that this is our grievance. These men, as I read them, intend no violence. You see them here with their arms folded, refusing to work. That is the method of their protest. We ask, and we ask of you because you are the one immediately in authority over us, what is our future? In the remarks you have just made you have cleared the air more than in your talks yesterday in the wings. At least we may now guess where you stand. But we recognize that your authority is limited. And we wish our protest and our inquiry to be carried over these walls and to reach the seat of authority in Washington. We ask this question and we adopt this method because we are prisoners and because this is the only method known to us.

The Indecision Vanished.

The prisoner, W. Oral James, stepped back into his place. It was evident that his remarks had made a deep impression upon one part of his audience at least—his fellow prisoners. Col. Rice spoke briefly in reply and when he had finished his officers again walked up and down the ranks inviting those who were willing to work to fall out. A hun-

CONROY'S

"The House That Guarantees All Its Pianos"

The Musical Evenings at Home Are the Best of All

FEW there be without a love for music and the happiest homes are those where song and sonata make glad the heart and foster closer comradeship.

The longing for music in the home can be gratified by a player-piano. No musical training is required. Unlike a talking machine, a player-piano enables the performer to play any piece of music with one's own individuality. It is a musical instrument that can be played by any member of the family. It brings within the home the popular airs of the day and the works of the great masters in a manner to please every one. To the work-worn father it furnishes relaxation, and worries pass as if by magic.

At Conroy's you have the choice of the world's 21 leading makes—the largest showing of high-class pianos in America, and the great advantage in coming here is that you can instantly compare any instrument with any other, and, without the wear and tear of shopping, select the piano or player that you will always be glad and proud to play.

A good reliable player-piano can be bought at Conroy's as low as $485, on up to $2500 for a Knabe Ampico, of which Galli-Curci writes: "The most potent factor in disseminating music as it should be heard in the home."

One Price Only. Convenient Terms.

GRAPHIC STORY OF THE STRIKE AT THE LEAVENWORTH PRISON

dred did so. The rest stood as before, with arms folded. There were smiles on their faces now. One felt that indecision had vanished and that at last they knew what they were striking for.

The men were marched back to their wings. What was to be done? The number of strikers was about 2300. They were still part of the military forces of the country. They were subject to military discipline. Their officers were military men. Their conduct was mutiny, and for mutiny there is only one recourse.

That afternoon Col. Rice telephoned to Major-General Leonard Wood in Chicago for permission to use the soldiers of the Forty-ninth Infantry Regiment, if he should need them. Gen. Wood issued permission for the use of the troops "to maintain discipline, to protect prisoners and to protect Government property." Authority could not be broader. That night when I left the prison to go to supper I passed the khaki and steel of a thousand soldiers waiting outside the prison gate.

Meanwhile the men had profited by the scene in the yard that noon. The rest of Thursday was the period of actual organization. It was literally true that while the soldiers were being sent for and were marching toward the gate, the strike was gathering the force—and the direction—that carried it through to victory. Organization was first perfected in the seventh wing. A committee was elected and a statement of demands drawn up. The prisoners in this wing sent messages to those in other wings, telling them what the demands were and urging them to elect their own committees, with one prisoner to serve on a general committee that would attempt to confer with the officials. "We urge you to preserve order, to stand firm and commit no violence," concluded the message sent to these wings.

The next morning no attempt was make to take the men out to work. Using my pass, I visited the men in the seventh wing. They received me as every body of men who think themselves unjustly treated receive a reporter—with open arms. To them I was a bridge to the outside world. One prisoner suggested that I might be a Government spy, but he was quickly silenced by those who thought they knew better. After all, they went largely on faith, for only one man in all those hundreds had known me personally before I had arrived a week earlier.

The men were just about to hold a meeting—the "soviet of the seventh wing," they were humorously calling themselves. Simons mounted a box and I leaned over the rail of the first balcony so that I could see the faces both above and below. Simons was persuasive, eloquent, direct. His periods were rounded, his sentences complete, his climaxes effective. He told them that the strike had been organized in the other wings, each wing having elected a committee just as the seventh had done. He read the demands that had been formulated the night before: 1, that the commandant recommend to the War Department the immediate release of all military prisoners; 2, immunity from punishment for all men who had led in the strike movement; 3, recognition of a permanent grievance committee of prisoners.

He told them that theirs was the just cause of self-government now being fought for throughout the civilized world. He brought prolonged applause by his dramatic announcement that the disciplinary battalion (the group of men about to be restored to the service) had joined the strike, and though this news later proved to be untrue, the reception accorded it showed how eagerly the men welcomed additions to their ranks. He declared that no authority could withstand the power of a united body of men. Efforts, he said, would be made to separate them.

"When the officials come to take you out of your wings," he shouted, "use no violence. Whether they take you out together, in groups or singly, go quietly into the yard. Once there, refuse to work. Violence accomplishes nothing. Solidarity accomplishes all things. The watchword of the workingman throughout the world today is solidarity. Say nothing, do nothing, but stand like this." The speaker folded his arms. "A man who commits no overt act but stands like this is immovable."

As he spoke I thought of the thousand soldiers outside. I thought of the thick walls that shut these men in, and of the barred doors between them and their fellows. I wondered what was the mysterious power by which the speaker and his listeners thought they could control their own destinies. There seems a grim and tragic humor in the situation of these upturned faces, eagerly drinking in the words of their interpreter. I wondered if either he or they fully sensed the dire possibilities that seemed so imminent to me.

I returned to the prison offices with this question in my mind. There I learned that Col. Rice, after a sleepless night, had made up his mind. He called me into his office and asked me to sit down; I could see at once that his struggle had been intense. He went quickly to the heart of his decision. He had enough force at his command, he said, to compel obedience from every prisoner. "No one knows better than I," he declared, "what this might mean. It might mean violence and it might mean bloodshed. If these men were merely mutinous, I should not hesitate. But this is no ordinary prison uprising. These men have some justification, much justification, for their feeling of discontent. I know the approved military method of handling this situation; but I know, too, that we are in a changed world today. The American people do not stand for the use of military force if there is a better way. I propose to find that better way. I shall listen to a committee of prisoners. If this is surrender, let them make the most of it."

I felt that he had reached a momentous decision. A moment later I realized just how courageous his decision was. An officer of Col. Rice's staff stopped me and said:

"Do you know how to settle this mutiny?"

"No," I answered.

"Well, I do," he snapped. "I could settle it in 72 hours. I'd lock every prisoner in his cell and I'd starve him, that's what I'd do. In three days every one of 'em would be crawling to me on their bellies begging to be allowed to work. A week'd see them. I'm plumb disgusted with this pusillanimous way of handling a bunch of criminals."

Test of the Commandant's Courage.

The committee met with the commandant and several other officers at 2:30 that afternoon. When the 17 prisoners marched into the room Col. Rice asked them if they had a spokesman. Simons stepped forward. He said:

> Sir, on behalf of the general prisoners confined in this barracks, I am authorized to present to you the following statement of demands which I shall read:
> 'We, the men now confined in the U. S. D. B., Fort Leavenworth, Kan., having been convinced by courtsmartial, present the following as essential for the restoration of normal conditions:
> "1. That the commandant immediately release from solitary confinement all men now there for having participated in this movement from its beginning, and that he promise that no man involved in this movement shall be punished or discriminated against in the future for his part in it.
> "2. That the following telegram be sent to the Secretary of War at once: 'General prisoners confined in the U. S. D. R., Fort Leavenworth, petition, with approval of commandant, for amnesty to all convicted by courts-martial. Senators Chamberlain and Borah, American Bar Association and public opinion generally declare sentences unjust and amnesty the proper redress. Our

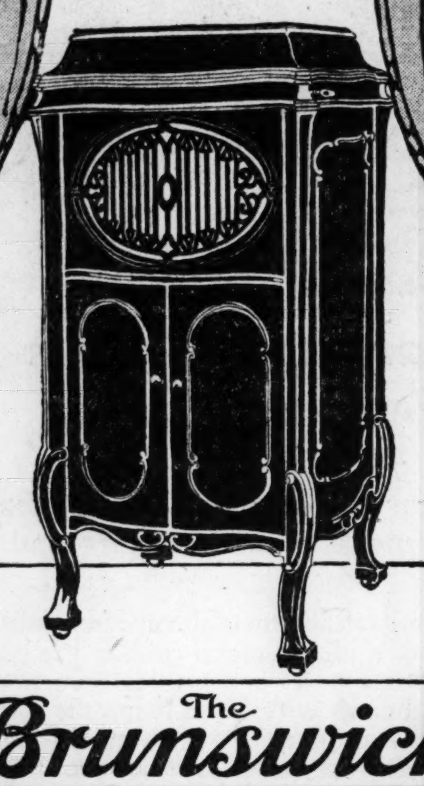
A Brunswick Masterpiece



The Brunswick

ALL PHONOGRAPHS IN ONE

"WORTHY of so famous a name," has been the judgment of thousands, after hearing The Brunswick. It will be your opinion, too, when you listen to this remarkable phonograph.

You, too, will pronounce The Ultona all-record reproducer and The Brunswick Amplifier the two greatest improvements in phonographs in years.

These two notable features of The Brunswick Method of Reproduction are responsible for the wonderful tone of this super-instrument. Both can be had in The Brunswick only. And both are integral parts of the phonograph—not attachments in any sense.

By a turn of the hand the Ultona presents the proper needle and diaphragm to any make of record. You are no longer restricted to the artists of one record-maker.

The Brunswick all-wood Tone Amplifier eliminates the annoying metallic tones which hitherto have been the greatest objection in phonographs. Built of moulded wood, like a fine violin, it develops and projects a true tone, no matter how difficult of reproduction the record may be.

You will feel well repaid for hearing The Brunswick. It will give you a new standard of judgment for all phonographs.

Any Brunswick Dealer will explain and play The Brunswick for you.

GRAPHIC STORY OF THE STRIKE AT THE LEAVENWORTH PRISON

release is just as urgent as that of the 113 conscientious objectors recently discharged. Democratic military justice requires amnesty.

"3. That the commandant recognize a permanent grievance committee to be elected by the men, and that this committee shall have the right to discuss with the authorities such improvements of conditions as seem in the committee's judgment to be desirable."

Prisoners' General Committee elected at request of officers.'

Col. Rice took up the points one by one. The first, in spite of its somewhat vague phraseology, was well-known to refer particularly to white prisoners who had been placed in solitary confinement for participating in the race riots, Col. Rice told the committee that 11 of the men so confined had already been released and that the cases of the other three were at that moment being investigated by the executive officer. A new man held this position, "Square Deal" Smith, so-called from his record of fairness in the navy. After some parleying, the committee decided to present those facts to the men and to seek their judgment.

It was now Col. Rice's turn to explode a bombshell. At last he took the men into his confidence. He read a paragraph from a letter that he had sent to the War Department a month previously on the question of excessive wartime sentences. In effect his recommendation was that all such sentences be reduced to a peace-time basis. This would cut many 15, 20 and 25 year sentences to a few months, or at most to a year or two. It was evident that the members of the committee were greatly surprised at this revelation of the commandant's action. They stood out, however, for the sending of the telegram. Col. Rice offered instead to deliver the message in person, and explained that he was making an official trip to Washington in two days. To this the committee finally agreed. It agreed also to omit the words, "with approval of commandant," since by taking the message in person Col. Rice gave evidence of his approval.

The third point caused no difficulty whatever, for Col. Rice immediately said that he would be entirely willing to discuss matters with a general prisoners' committee, so long as such a committee displayed a proper sense of leadership and remained representative of the men.

The Men Debate the Issue.

The men returned to their wings They were given an hour—all they asked for—in which to report the decision of the other prisoners.

Rumors quickly came back that the committee was meeting with difficulty in some of the wings. The fourth wing, especially, we heard, was insisting that the message to the Secretary of War be sent at once by wire. The reason was not far to seek. The strike could then be continued until an answer had been received!

At last the committe returned, four hours after its appointment. A new spokesman stepped to the front

"Sir, I am spokesman this evening, general prisoner 17,380, who acted as spokesman this afternoon being somewhat tired."

Thus spoke Carl Haessler, graduate of the University of Wisconsin, Rhodes scholar at Oxford, editorial writer, Socialist, conscientious objector. He continued:

"Sir, I have to report that the general prisoners confined in this barracks have voted unanimously—unanimously, sir—to return to work tomorrow morning and to restore a normal state of affairs upon the condition agreed upon this afternoon."

A breath could have been heard. Col. Rice's eyes softened, his face became suffused with emotion, and he said almost in a whisper, "That is very, very gratifying."

The strike was over. The democratic, non-military method had won. And the members of the Forty-ninth Infantry, who had been cooling their heels outside the gates for two days, were sent packing.

Next morning all the prisoners returned to work. When the men lined up after breakfast, the change in their attitude was evident. Usually there is much scuffling, moving about and violation of the rule against talking in ranks. That morning every man was alert with a new dignity. The officers and guards marked it and commented upon it later.

How long will it last? The result of Col. Rice's visit to Washington could not be learned when this account went to press. There was talk that the men would strike again if no hope was held out to them. The committee of prisoners was doing all in its power to hold the men to their word to preserve order and to commit no violence.

What does it all mean? For one thing it means increasing articulateness for one of the last great inarticulate groups—the convicted lawbreaker. For another, it means the establishment, for once at least, of a new order of military comity. Whether it will also mean "democratic military justice" for hundreds of men who have been unjustly sentenced to excessive terms of confinement remains to be seen.

It may be of interest to those who are not familiar with the habits of Washington with regard to his correspondence to know that, while a great number of his letters were written in his own hand, he invariably made and retained copies of all of them. Those which were copied by his secretaries, Washington carefully read and compared, folded, indorsed in his own handwriting, with the date and the name of the person to whom they were addressed, and filed them in his library.

In the library of Congress is a large number of Washington's letters and manuscripts, known to be the most extensive collection of the writings of any man in the world. It comprises many thousand pages—all written in a clear, legible hand, and evidencing the scrupulous, methodical care with which, throughout his life, he performed all things—even to matters of the slightest importance.

The letter to Gov. Rutledge, printed above, does not appear in the 14 large volumes, of about 500 pages each, of Washington's writings edited by Worthington Chauncey Ford; and was not known to Mr. Ford, to whom it recently was submitted by the writer of this paper. It came to light, however, only as late as 1916, when a great-grandson of Gov. Rutledge, who is in possession of the original, permitted its publication in the magazine of the South Carolina Historical Society.

NEW WASHINGTON LETTER BEARS ON MODERN PROBLEMS

That Washington's friendship for France and his deep gratitude to the French people for their inestimable assistance, given so generously at the time of direst need during the American Revolution has many evidences on record in his writings. His admiration for the young Lafayette, whom he regarded with paternal affection, is expressed in beautiful terms in his correspondence with that noble Frenchman who named his only son George Washington Lafayette.

During the French Revolution it became necessary for Gen. Lafayette to exile himself from France. He was held in Austria, however, and was imprisoned for several years at Olmutz, in that country. Lafayette's son sought refuge in America during his father's exile. He assumed for the time being one of his father's given names, Motier.

With his tutor, M. Frestel, he arrived in Boston late in the summer of 1795 and proceeded to New York, where he remained in seclusion for nearly two years. It is said that he was secretly entertained in the home of Alexander Hamilton for a part of this time.

Washington was deeply concerned about the presence in this country of the son of his dear friend and companion in arms. Had he received into his home, as was his desire, the son of a political enemy of the then ruling powers of France, with whom our relations, at the time, were more or less strained, a situation embarrassing to the administration might have arisen.

However, immediately upon Washington's return to private life, when he retired from the presidency in March, 1797, the young Lafayette was invited to make his home at Mount Vernon, where he was received as a distinguished guest. He remained at Mount Vernon until he returned to France, in October of the same year, and during his stay he received the same consideration that Washington accorded the members of his own immediate family.

The elder Lafayette, before his return to France, gave to Washington the pair of pistols which he had carried during the War of the Revolution. They were prized highly by Washington, who bequeathed to Lafayette a pair of his own pistols, as will be noted in the following extract from his will: "To Gen. de la Fayette I give a pair of finely wrought steel pistols taken from the enemy in the Revolutionary War."

His Swords and Solemn Injunction.

Another item of the will which illumines the spirit which impelled this great man is that in which he devises "the swords of which I may die possessed" to five of his nephews.

"These swords are accompanied with the injunction not to unsheath them for the purpose of shedding blood except it be for self-defense—or in the defense of their country and its rights, and in the latter case to keep them unsheathed, and prefer falling with them in their hands to the relinquishment thereof."

This last quoted paragraph of the will seems to indicate rather clearly the position Washington would have taken had he been the President of the United States at the time the Lusitania was sunk by the German U-boats, with the resultant murder of scores of American men and women. Had he been confronted with the swiftly following events, which threatened the honor and rights of the nation; jeopardizing the lives of its citizens, and the existence and liberty of the free nations of the world, to which we are allied by ties of blood, friendship obligation and heredity, is it possible to doubt that Washington would have hesitated to abandon his policy of no foreign entanglements or alliances, or that he would have hesitated again "to unsheath his sword in the defense of his country and its rights, and prefer falling with it to the relinquishment thereof?"

It may be of interest to note in passing that of these five swords the first choice fell to Washington's eldest nephew, Col. William Augustine Washington, the great-great-grandfather of the writer, who selected the sword said to have been sent to Washington by Frederick the Great of Prussia with the message, "From the oldest General in the world to the Greatest." The third choice was allotted to another nephew (a younger brother of the wife of William Augustine Washington), Bushrod Washington, who was appointed by President John Adams a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States when he was but 36 years old.

Bushrod Washington, who also inherited Washington's home at Mount Vernon, under the terms of the will, died childless, and bequeathed the sword he had received from Washington to his nephew, George Corbin Washington, the son of the before mentioned William Augustine Washington, who thus acquired by inheritance two of Washington's swords, having also received from his father the Frederick the Great sword. George Corbin left them to his only son, Col. Lewis William Washington, of Virginia, the grandfather of the writer.

From his hands, the so-called Frederick the Great sword, which was the most ornate of all of Washington's swords, passed into the possession of the State of New York. It is preserved in the State Library at Albany, and was considerably damaged by the fire which destroyed the Capitol Building in March, 1911. The Bushrod Washington sword mysteriously disappeared, several years ago, after it had come into possession of a younger son of Lewis William Washington, who died intestate, and it is not known what disposition he made of it.

The writer has made a careful and exhaustive study of the history of Washington's swords, their origin, descent and ownership, and has failed after long and painstaking effort to gain the slightest clew as to the whereabouts of this sword which seems to have been lost to the world.

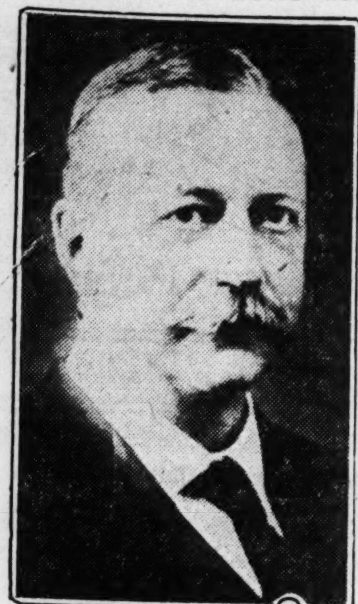
WORLD LEAGUE CONGRESS TO OPEN HERE TUESDAY

Former President Taft and Other Widely Known Men Will Speak at Sessions at the Odeon.

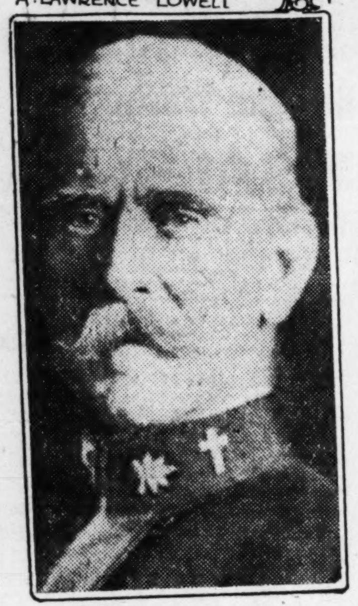
ARRANGED BY LEAGUE TO ENFORCE PEACE

Meetings in St. Louis Will End Wednesday Night — Purpose Is to Acquaint People With Project.

SPEAKERS AT WORLD LEAGUE CONGRESS



A. LAWRENCE LOWELL



LIEUTENANT COMMANDER HENRY VAN DYKE

Some of the most widely-known men in the country are on the program to speak at the mid-continent section of the Mid-Continent Congress for a league of nations, which will be in session here Tuesday and Wednesday.

The congress is being held in nine sections in various parts of the country, by the League to Enforce Peace, of which William Howard Taft is the head. This is the eighth sectional congress, the latest having concluded yesterday at Salt Lake City.

Among the speakers scheduled for here besides former President Taft, are Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey; Lieutenant-Commander Henry Van Dyke, former Ambassador to Holland; Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City, President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University, and others. All the sessions will be at the Odeon except the concluding one, Wednesday evening, when addresses on "Labor's Demand for a League of Nations," will be made at the Coliseum.

Taft to Speak Twice.

Difficulty is being experienced in arranging for hotel accommodations for all the delegates who expect to attend, and a committee of women has been obtaining rooms in private residences.

The program provides for the discussion of six subjects—one at each of the morning, afternoon and evening sessions. Taft is on the program to speak twice—Tuesday morning at the Odeon on "The Plain Necessity for a League of Nations," and Wednesday evening at the labor meeting at the Coliseum. The other speaker Tuesday morning will be Morgenthau. Taft also will speak at a joint luncheon of commercial organizations at Hotel Statler Wednesday.

"American Interests and a League of Nations" is the Tuesday afternoon topic, the scheduled speakers being C. B. Ames, former Judge of the Supreme Court Commission; Dr. George Grafton Wilson, professor of international law at Harvard; Congressman Charles F. Scott and Edward A. Filene of Boston, a director of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Speakers at Other Sessions.

At the evening meeting, Dr. Lowell of Harvard, Dean F. B. Mumford of Missouri Agricultural College, Joseph W. Folk and Mrs. H. O. Garvey, former president of the Kansas State Federation, will speak on "American Ideals and a League of Nations."

The relation of social progress and religion to the league will be discussed Wednesday morning by Mrs. Philip North Moore, Rabbi Leon Harrison of Temple Israel, Archbishop Glennon and Dr. Charles R. Brown, dean of the school of religion of Yale.

Former Ambassador Van Dyke will be heard in the afternoon on "The Responsibility of the American Democracy for Establishing a League of Nations." Filene also will talk on that subject, as will Harvey J. Hill of Washington and W. R. Boyd of New York.

Purpose of Meetings.

Preceding Taft at the labor meeting in the evening, Walsh, Mayor Wallace Short of Sioux City and John P. Frey, editor of the International Molders' Journal, will speak. Frey is a member of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor.

The congress has been advertised with posters bearing the figures of "War" inside a barred cage, with "Victory" standing outside holding a padlock, which is inscribed, "The League of Nations." Above is the inscription, "Give her the key to lock him up."

Filene, although one of the wealthiest of New England merchants, is widely known for his radical views on the labor question. He will speak before the Advertising Club at Tuesday luncheon, before the City Club at Wednesday luncheon, and before the Town Club Wednesday evening. He has spoken in St. Louis before.

The purpose of the series of meetings over the country is to acquaint the people generally with the nature and purposes of, and the need for, a league of nations. The questions which have arisen about different phases of the proposed league will be dealt with by the speakers.

The luncheon Wednesday at Hotel Statler will be under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, Advertising Club, St. Louis Retail Credit Men and the Jovian League. Besides Mr. Taft, speakers will be Dr. Lowell, Lieutenant-Commander Van Dyke, Dr. Brown, Morgenthau and Walsh.

HOSPITAL WARD HAS PARTY

Guests Are Mainly Surgical Patients From 4 to 16 Years Old.

Ninety patients in the children's ward at the city hospital, from 4 to 16 years old, celebrated Washington's Birthday with a party by the social service division of the hospital yesterday afternoon in Division 5. Miss Mary Bond, head of the social service workers, and Mrs. Stella Barnes, in charge of the ward, arranged the entertainment.

The children, mostly surgical patients, opened the party with a "grand march," in which some were wheeled in invalid chairs, and some walked on crutches. Ice cream and cake, donated by local firms, was served, and each was given a present.

MRS. ALICE WHEELDON DIES

Victim of Influenza Was Sentenced in Lloyd George Poisoning Case.

By the Associated Press.

DERBY, England, Feb. 22.—Mrs. Alice Wheeldon, who, in 1917, was sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment on the charge of conspiracy to poison Premier Lloyd George, but who was released after a few months on account of ill health, died today of influenza.

Almost Perfect Patching For Our Maimed Soldiers

Artificial Noses, Deceptive in the Extreme, Are Affixed to Spectacles and Both Are Removed Intact; Capt. Heur, Home, Tells of Miracles.

What the United States is doing to "make over" its maimed soldiers so that they will be able to earn a living and to perform many of the functions which they had before they were hurt, was described to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday by Capt. Scott Heuer of 304 Skinker road, a medical officer who has just returned home from the American reconstruction hospital at Savenay, France.

Capt. Heuer spent 18 months in the great British reconstruction hospital at Leeds, where for more than two years the British have been doing the "rebuilding" of men that this country is beginning now. The methods used in this country will be similar to those adopted in England and France, with which Capt. Heuer was closely connected.

Remaking of Jaws Easy.

The remaking of lower jaws, noses not too badly injured and the rebuilding of other features was so common that it did not deserve comment, Capt. Heuer said.

One of the most unusual mechanical devices, he said, is the Hobbs artificial hand, an English product. First a standard socket is affixed to the arm. There are three hands which may be used on it—two "work" hands and a "dress" hand. Of the first two, one is short, and joins the socket wherever the arm has been amputated. It has vises, thumbscrews and adjustments by which it can be fastened to almost anything that can be held by a human hand, and is for heavy work.

When a fuller movement and less power is needed, a hand with similar adjustments, but extending further from the socket, may be adjusted. The "dress" hand looks like a natural one, but the thumb is moved by a wire which connects with the opposite shoulder, by which the thumb may be clamped tight and released by a movement of the opposite shoulder. Thus, such a hand will hold a teacup, comb or other small object.

Greatest Advance in Surgery.

The greatest advances in surgery made during the war, Capt. Heuer said, were in the treatment of large wounds, particularly where bones were shattered. This the French called "debremont," or the "removal of debris."

An instance, he cited, would be the splintering of a bone by a machine-gun bullet or shell fragment. In former days, the method would have been to insert a tube through the small hole and drain off the injured bone and tissue. But it was found in so many cases that fragments of clothing and dirt were carried in with the projectile that infection often resulted. The surgeons then began the practice of entirely opening up such wounds, and removing the infectious matter directly. Excellent results were thus obtained, and many limbs and lives saved, Capt. Heuer said.

The making over of men has been perfected to such a degree that Capt. Heuer was able to tell of seeing a former soldier, whose right arm had been amputated above the elbow, use an artificial hand to drink tea, comb his hair, play golf and cricket and do many other things. Some who had lost their legs could skate and ride bicycles.

A unique device developed by war surgery is the artificial nose, he said, made of aluminum and painted by expert portrait painters to match the complexions. Each one is affixed to the bridge of a pair of spectacles, which holds it in place. The nose and the glasses are taken off just as are any ordinary specacles. Capt. Huer said it was hardly possible to detect this artificial nose from a natural one at a distance of 10 feet.

If the man's eyes do not require the aid of optical glasses, the lenses are made of plain glass.

Five large hospitals have been established in France for the temporary treatment of maimed American soldiers. Particular attention is given there to the men who have suffered paralysis as the result of nerve injuries, and the work of treating them is largely in the hands of American college girls, known as "reconstruction aids." These girls are divided in two sections; one section being the masseurs, who daily massage the injured limbs, and the others being instructors who teach the men to use injured hands to weave baskets, do wood carving and similar tasks, and to walk. This teaching is not to fit them for jobs, but to help them regain the use of the injured members.

After leaving these hospitals, these men will be sent to base hospitals here, similar to the Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, where they will be fitted with permanent artificial limbs and taught vocations.

Some of the vocations taught at Leeds, Capt. Heuer recounted, were leather tooling, binding, linotyping, carpentering, engraving, painting, watch-making, weaving and stenography. There were 2300 student-patients there.

He said the Government will establish a number of reconstruction hospitals in this country similar to that at Leeds, where men will be treated and given vocational education at the same time. Many physicians who have served in the army in France will be assigned to these hospitals, as he estimated that there are between 12,000 and 15,000 disabled American soldiers to be treated, some of them for more than two years to come. The hospitals probably will be established at army posts, he said.

Heuer was a First Lieutenant in the old First Missouri Infantry. He went to France with the American Ambulance in July, 1916, and remained a year, when he returned to this country and offered his services as a medical officer. He was commissioned a Captain at once, and attached to the British.

Smallest Man in Army.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Private Harry Coleman of Brockport, N. Y., who returned from France today, is said to be the smallest man in the American army. He is 4 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 90 pounds. Coleman says he was a War Department messenger and succeeded in having the army rules waived so as to permit him to go to France with the Fourth Infantry. He saw several weeks of active service on the front, but was taken sick at Chateau-Thierry.

CLAIM OLD FRONTIER AS ANCESTRAL RIGHT

Bohemian President Explains Objection to Whittling Off Edge in Germany's Interest.

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1919, by Press Publishing Co. (New York World.)

PRAGUE, via Paris, Feb. 21.—During recent travels through Bavaria and German Austria I heard constant objection to the project of whittling the edge off the new Czecho-Slovak republic in the interest of Germany.

The argument in favor of German amalgamation seems hole proof, if one listens only to the German side. But I learned in the last three months, which have covered my only association with German politics, that a certain streak of Pan-Germanism runs through even the most liberal German public opinion, and that it is always well to get the other side of the story. So I came to Prague to ask President Masaryk why he had taken so firm a stand against any interference by Germany with the old Bohemian frontiers. This is what he said:

"Our present frontiers have been the same since the year 700. Historically this is Bohemia, and those who have moved into Bohemia in the last few hundred years knew they were crossing the frontier from Germany into Bohemia.

"Germans were encouraged to come and were welcomed, for they built up industry; and they in turn welcomed the Czech workmen, because they are better than the German workmen. All along the German frontier Germans are unquestionably in the majority. There is no such majority, however, as the old Austrian figures show, for the empire had the trick of counting by language, and if a Czech could speak German he was entered in the census as German-speaking. There is no question of German numerical superiority, which mikht be a deciding factor if the territory were not indisputably Czech, colonized by Germans who knew they were coming into Bohemia.

"I certainly do not purpose to yield to German impertinences. If it comes to a matter of self-determination, have not the Czechs minority their equal rights, which become preponderant when it is considered that they are on ancestral territory? In the disputed territory the Czechs are mainly workmen, while the Germans are proprietors; but does possession of property give the Germans greater rights?"

I asked President Masaryk for his opinion of the proposed union of Germany and Austria, and he replied:

"It will be a matter of indifference to us if Germany, as a whole, is going to behave in the future. If Germany is going to be a good neighbor, without ambition to rule over others by reason of its size, or strength, and is not to menace its neighbors, union is not objectionable.

"But if Germany is to continue to be the old Germany, whether ruled by Kaiser Wilhelm or Philipp Scheidemann, there will be grave danger in such a nation under union."

Bulgarian King Was in Pajamas When Told to Get Out of Austria

After Suing for Armistice Ferdinand Went to Castle Near Vienna and Protested He Had Not Acted Traitorously to Central Powers.

PARIS, Feb. 21.—Interesting details have come to me of a thrilling adventure that befell King Ferdinand of Bulgaria soon after the cessation of hostilities between his country and the allies.

By proposing a separate peace to the Entente he had broken his pledge to the Cntral Empires. They characterized him as a traitor, but, undismayed he quitted Bulgaria for Austria, taking up residence in his own castle of Ebenthal near Vienna. Emperor Charles, indignant at his treachery, decided to expel him from Austrian territory and dispatched his grand chamberlain, Count Berchtold, post haste, with notice for Ferdinand to leave at once.

It was midnight when Berchtold arrived and Ferdinand was asleep. He popped his head out of his bed clothes and inquired the errand of the Grand Chamberlain. Learning of its nature he exclaimed:

"It is infamous, I am not a traitor. I have done everything possible for Austria. I am able to produce witnesses of my loyalty."

Called Son as Witness.

Thereupon jumping from under the bed clothes, he sat on the bedside revealing his silk mauve pajamas, daintily embroidered; golden bracelets and jeweled rings on every finger and gave a shout "Kikki" which is the pet name of his son Cyril. Cyril, having duly appeared, Ferdinand bade him swear to his father's loyalty to Austria, but Cyril looked amazed and said nothing.

"Begone you simpleton!" cried the King; "leave the room and send me my General!"

Shortly afterwards the General entered, looked at the Bulgarian King and the Austrian Grand Chamberlain and uttered inarticulate sounds in Bulgarian, being unable to speak in any other tongue. Ferdinand repeatedly put questions to him which the visitor did not understand and then addressed Berchtold in German saying "you see, General, he acquits me of treachery. I have done nothing calling for such measures as you talk of."

Warning to Ferdinand.

But Berchtold, ever imperturbable and courteous, expressed the fervent hope that his majesty would not expose himself to the grave personal dangers which his delay, in quitting Austrian territory would unquestionably entail. This appeal to the instinct of self-defense was efficacious, and Ferdinand ordered an automobile, and together with "Kikki" and the General departed the same night from Ebenthal.

Although the formal abdication never has been published in the Western press, Ferdinand abandoned his throne to his eldest son, Boris. I met Boris many years ago, when, as a child, he visited Russia; playing the obviously rehearsed role of a pious child ardently devoted to the Orthodox Eastern Church. He resembles his father in being shrewd and sharp rather than intelligent, and is unlike him in physical courage.

When the defeated soldiers returning home recently mutinied not far from Sofia, he went to them in person and delivered a speech of which this is the gist:

"I am come to say I understand your dissatisfaction because I share it myself. You stigmatize my father's resign as calamitous, and I admit it was fraught with blunders and disasters of which I hope to remedy the consequences. I am a Bulgarian like you. I am of the orthodox faith. I am your King, and one of yourselves. Stand by me and I will stand by you, until we will raise Bulgaria to the high level which she deserves."

The soldiers listened and approved and Boris ascended the throne without ostentation.

JURY FINDS CATSUP IS "NOT TOO IMPURE"

Decides Against Government in Its Suit to Have 1080 Cases Condemned.

After listening to expert dissertations as to the life, habits, vitality and diseases of the tomato, and hearing it pronounced in many different ways by witnesses and attorneys, a jury in the United States District Court, after deliberating 11 hours, yesterday returned a verdict for the defendant in a suit brought by the Government to libel and have condemned 1080 cases of catsup manufactured and packed by the Brooks Tomato Products Co. of Collinsville, Ill.

The Government complained that the catsup contained impure and decomposed vegetable matter, in violation of the pure food law.

The jurors told the Court the difficulty in arriving at a decision arose from differing views as to the exact meaning of the law as it affected the purity of catsup. Judge Pollock had found the same difficulty in deciding a similar case which he had tried without a jury.

Jury Told to Rule by Reason.

In his instructions to the jury in the Brooks case he told it to apply the rule of reason and to decide whether the catsup was "reasonably good" and to disregard a strict application of the law which provides that catsup must contain no impurities.

In the case against the Fraser Packing Co., which he tried without a jury, the Judge said the manufacture of an absolutely pure vegetable product was commercially impossible, as experts had testified.

Congress, he said, in the enactment of the pure food and drug laws, had failed to provide a standard of purity and had also failed to provide any way in which either a commission or the Government experts might set such a standard.

"I would be a chump to lay down a rule when Congress has failed to do so," the Judge declared. "I cannot legislate. This case is an instance of the trouble that results from inconsiderate and poorly conceived legislation."

Too Much Impurity Was Charged.

The allegations in the suits and the testimony of the Government experts were in the main similar. It

WAR BALLOONIST WITH D. S. C., HOME, TELLS HIS STORY

Lieut. Leo C. Ferrenbach Was Shot Down Twice by the Enemy Airplanes—Had Close Call.

IN THE TOUL SECTOR AND THE ARGONNE

Had to Leap After Gas Envelope Had Caught Fire, but Almost Immediately Reascended.

His own story of how he won the Distinguished Service Cross for valor in France as a balloon observer with the American army was related to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday by First Lieut. Leo C. Ferrenbach, 24 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Ferrenbach, 5441 Bartmer avenue, who returned Friday evening from Germany, where he had gone with our army of occupation. He also has been awarded the medal for valor of the Aero Club of America.

He is tall, slender and boyish looking, and the thrilling adventures of his year's work on the battlefield have left no visible traces.

The Distinguished Service Cross was conferred on Lieut. Ferrenbach on Nov. 25 at Coblenz, Germany. Another member of the air service was so honored at the same time, and they, two, were informed that they were the only Americans to receive that honor on German soil up to that date.

The official citation for the cross, published in the Post-Dispatch on Dec. 30, said it was conferred for extraordinary heroism, near Ansauville (Toul sector), July 22, when Lieut. Farrenbach refused to leave his post during succesive attacks, at a great height, by enemy airplanes. After his ballon had taken fire, he jumped in his parachute, and the burning envelope narrowly missed striking him in its fall. He immediately reascended while enemy patrols were in the vicinity and finished his work.

Ferrenbach's Own Story.

Concerning the incident Lieut Ferrenbach said:

"First Lieut. Paul A. Rooney, of Indiana, and I were up about 2500 feet, directing artillery fire to aid a successful attack in progress below. Our gunners were making fine hits, and having a clear vision for miles around, we were obtaining valuable information on the movement and concentration of enemy troops far behind their lines. The enemy perceived us, of course, and sent over a plane to desroy our balloon. When he came quite near we were ordered to descend, but refused, deciding to remain and let the land batteries chase the enemy away.

"A few hours later the enemy made another attempt with planes to send us to earth, and we were again commanded to descend, but a battery of machine guns at our base sent the enemy scurrying a second time.

"Still later we were attacked by a boche aviator who ventured nearer than the others. He described a large circle high above our bag, and then suddenly swooped down to our level and headed straight for us, his machine gun sputtering with incendiary bullets. As he came on, at a speed of about 100 miles an hour, Rooney and I prepared to abandon the balloon. When about 200 yards from us his bullets began piercing the huge envelope, and Rooney and I, our parachutes fastened to our backs, hopped overboard.

Had Thrilling Drop.

"I shot down like a spent rocket, at least 150 feet before the 'chute opened. What happened in that brief space I do not recall, because it was my first leap and I was excited. The 'chute opened beautifully, however, and I glided to earth, but as I was descending the balloon, a mass of flames, passed me not more than 50 feet away. Rooney and I landed in a wood, about a mile in the direction of the enemy lines from our base, and we learned afterward that our attendants who were on the ground holding the anchor cables saved my life by quick manipulation of the burning balloon, which would have fallen on my parachute. As a reward for their work Rooney and I gave the boys a banquet."

That same afternoon Lieuts. Ferrenbach and Rooney took the air again in another balloon to resume their work, while enemy planes hovered nearby. Other observers could have gone up, Lieut. Ferrenbach explained, but he and Rooney were familiar with the situation and insisted on finishing their day's work.

Shot Down in Argonne.

In the Argonne battle, on Sept. 26, Lieut. Ferrenbach was again shot down from a height of 1800 feet, and successfully escaped in his parachute. On this occasion he remained at his post in the face of successive warnings to descend, and at Exermont, Oct. 25, he ignored seven warnings to descend during successive attacks by the enemy throughout the day, and remained at his post directing artillery fire until the American infantry had attained their objective. His last observation work was at Beaumont, on the Meuse, and from there he followed the army into Germany.

Lieut. Ferrenbach, who is a graduate of St. Louis University, was a football star on the university team. He enlisted in the balloon service at Meramec Park, Grand and Meramec avenues, in July, 1917, and received training there and at Omaha, and after he reached France.

He first got into action with the French, in the Champagne district, near Rheims, and joined the American forces at Mailly, March 22, whence they proceeded to Verdun. He also did observation work in the drive around St. Mihiel.

Lieut. Ferrenbach was a member of the Fourth and later of the Twelfth Balloon Companies. He has a brother, First Lieut. Eugene C. Ferrenbach, with the 128th (St. Louis) Field Artillery in France.

He said the German soldiers and civilians were suspiciously friendly to Americans in Germany, and circulated all kinds of tales to arouse American soldiers against the French, going so far as to say that French officers had murdered American soldiers for not saluting them. He believed the German attitude was inspired by propaganda.

WASHING WON'T RID HAIR OF DANDRUFF

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—ADV.

"Who Was Cain's Wife?" Sermon.

The Rev. W. H. Clagett will preach at the Carondelet Presbyterian Church this evening on "Cain's Wife—Who Was She?" This will be the first of a series of Sunday evening sermons on "Difficulties in the Bible." Succeeding subjects will be: "Sodom and Gomorrah—Were They Destroyed by Brimstone and Fire?" "Did God Command Abraham to Slay Isaac?" "Did a Whale Swallow Jonah?"

Is Your Blood Starving For Want of Iron?

Modern Methods of Cooking and Living Have Made an Alarming Increase in Iron Deficiency in Blood of American Men and Women.

WHY NUXATED IRON SO QUICKLY BUILDS UP WEAK, NERVOUS, RUN-DOWN FOLKS—Over 3,000,000 People Annually Taking It In This Country Alone to Increase Their Strength, Power, Energy and Endurance.

Who Should Take Nuxated Iron

THE ELDERLY INACTIVE MAN
THE TIRED NERVOUS HOUSEWIFE
THE RUN-DOWN BUSINESS WOMAN
THE EXHAUSTED BUSINESS MAN

"Is your blood starving for want of iron? Iron is red blood food. If you were to go without eating until you became weak, thin and emaciated, you could not do a more serious harm to yourself than when you let your blood literally starve for want of iron—iron that gives it strength and power to change food into living tissue," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.) New York, and the Westchester County Hospital.

"Modern methods of cooking and the rapid pace at which people of this country live has made such an alarming increase in iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women that I have often marveled at the large number of people who lack iron in the blood, and who never suspect the cause of their weak, nervous, run-down state. Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable. I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examinations of their weak, anaemic, run-down patients. Thousands of persons go on year after year suffering from physical weakness and a highly nervous condition due to lack of sufficient iron in their red blood corpuscles without ever realizing the real and true cause of their trouble. Without iron in your blood your food merely passes through the body something like corn through an old mill with rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind.

"For want of iron you may be an old man at 30, dull of intellect, poor in memory, nervous, irritable and all 'run down,' while at 50 or 60, with plenty of iron in your blood you may still be young in feeling, full of life, your whole being brimming over with strength and energy.

"As proof of this, take the case of former United States Senator and Vice Presidential nominee Charles A. Towne, who at past 58 is still a veritable mountain of tireless energy. Senator Towne says: 'I have found Nuxated Iron of the greatest benefit as a tonic and regulative. Henceforth I shall not be without it. I am in a position to testify for the benefit of others to the remarkable and immediate helpfulness of this remedy, and I unhesitatingly recommend Nuxated Iron to those who feel the need of renewed energy and the regularity of bodily functions.'

"But in my opinion you can't make strong, keen, forceful men and healthy, rosy-cheeked women by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a digestive process to transform them into organic iron—Nuxated Iron—before they are ready to be taken up and assimilated by the human system. Notwithstanding all that has been said and written on this subject by well-known physicians, thousands of people still insist in dosing themselves with metallic iron simply, I suppose, because it costs a few cents less. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package. If you have taken preparations such as Nux and Iron and other similar iron products and failed to get results, remember that such products are an entirely different thing from Nuxated Iron."

In commenting upon the value of Nuxated Iron as a means for creating red blood, strength and endurance, Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author, says:

"Scarcely a day goes by but that I see women whose careworn faces, dragging steps and generally weak, tired appearance show unmistakable signs of that anaemic, run-down condition usually brought on by lack of iron in the blood.

"There can be no strong, healthy, beautiful women without iron, and inasmuch as refining processes and modern cooking methods remove the iron of Mother Earth from so many of our most common foods, this iron deficiency should be supplied by using some form of organic iron, just as we use salt when our food has not enough salt.

Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you good, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly-looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. Pallor means anaemia. The skin of an anaemic woman is pale, the flesh flabby. The memory fails, and often they become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. Give such a woman a short course of Nuxated Iron and she often quickly becomes an entirely different individual—strong, healthy and rosy-cheeked. I have used Nuxated Iron widely in my own practice in most severe, aggravated conditions with unfailing results. I have induced many other physicians to give it a trial, all of whom have given me most surprising reports in regard to its great power as a health and strength builder."

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which is used by Dr. Sullivan and others with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co., Johnson Bros.' Drug Co., Pauley's Drug Store Co. and other druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

UNABBREVIATED DRUG PRESCRIPTIONS URGED

Indemnity Company Attorney Wants National Legislation to Eliminate Deaths by Clerical Mistakes.

National legislation making it a punishable offense for physicians to write prescriptions abbreviated in any manner will be sought by H. W. Eddy, attorney and manager of the Casualty Indemnity Exchange, Third National Bank Building, which insures druggists against financial loss resulting from errors made in compounding or selling drugs.

Eddy told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that he intends to bring the matter to the attention of the National Druggists' Association, and that he will offer financial assistance up to $1000 to obtain the enactment of such legislation. His plan is to seek a Federal law if feasible; otherwise to have bills presented to the Legislatures of all states.

Nine Persons Killed.

At least nine persons have been killed in the last few months because druggists sold barium sulphide instead of barium sulphate, according to Eddy. The most recent fatality was that of Mrs. Winnifred Blanchard of Springfield, Ill., who died at the home of a St. Louis relative on Feb. 8, as a result of taking barium sulphide sold her by a druggist on a prescription reading "barium sulph." The physician who issued the prescription told the Coroner that he meant barium sulphate, but the druggist presumed that the prescription was for external use, and that the sulphide was meant.

Eddy has sent all the members of the Casualty Indemnity Exchange Post-Dispatch clippings telling of Mrs. Blanchard's death and how the mistake came about. In a letter accompanying the clippings he says:

"Allow me to suggest that you make a strict rule among your employes that any prescription sent to you with abbreviated "Sulph" be not filled until the word is spelled out in full, whether this be Strychnine Sulph., Barium Sulph., Quinine Sulph., or whatever it may be. It should be spelled out, either sulphate or sulphide, to be absolutely sure that the prescription be properly filled.

"It is a mighty good rule to employ, that no prescription—however simple it may seem—be filled by you or any of your employes unless it is written to make its requirements unmistakable in every respect. If you will adopt such a rule you will free yourself from any responsibility in cases of ambiguous or poorly written prescriptions.

"I have seen some prescriptions that no human being could read, and I am sure that if concerted action is taken by the retail druggists to avoid the possibility of errors being made in the compounding of prescriptions, a law could be enacted which would force the physicians to write their prescriptions so as to avoid any possible guessing on the part of the druggists.

Editorial Brings Comment.

The Post-Dispatch published an editorial commenting on the cerelessness resulting in Mrs. Blanchard's death, and a druggist has written the following letter concerning it:

"Your editorial, When 'Sulph.' is not 'Sulph.'" is good.

"No one, except the druggist, knows the difficulties and the time lost in trying to 'decipher' doctors' prescriptions. Every druggist in the city knows that there is not one doctor in ten who will write a prescription in a plain, readable hand. Words that cannot be expressed in Latin are abbreviated or written so as to completely mystify the patient. But it also often mystifies the druggist. It is a daily occurrence among druggists to chase a doctor by telephone for an hour or so in order to ascertain what he intended to prescribe in certain unreadable prescriptions.

"Medical colleges should teach a little penmanship and common sense.

"A law shifting responsibility from druggist to physician would remedy the matter."

JURY DECIDES THAT CATSUP IS "NOT TOO IMPURE"

was charged that the catsups complained of contained too high a percentage of decomposed vegetable matter, and it was admitted that the Government does permit, without complaint, the sale of such foods which contain impurities, but in a smaller percentage than in the two cases on trial.

The most careful manufacturers of such products, the experts testified, manage to keep the amount of impure matter below 1 per cent, while it was charged that the catsups in these cases contained impurities amounting to more than 10 per cent.

The testimony was that catsup containing such an amount of impurities did not have any harmful effect when consumed as food and it was even admitted by the Government experts that the products tasted good.

Judge Pollock said he believed it was the intention of Congress in the enactment of the pure food laws to protect the public from harmful impurities and from misbranding food products and an attempt to apply the law as it is written in respect to catsup would prevent the manufacture of catsup. He reserved his decision in the case of the Fraser company and declined to comment on the verdict of the jury in the other case.

PRINTING TEACHERS' PLANS

Next Convention Will Be Held in Chicago.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the central section, International Association of Teachers of Printing, was held at the Hotel Statler yesterday in connection with the convention of the Vocational Training Association. It was decided to hold the next convention of the Printing Teachers' Association at Chicago, June 16 and 17.

At that meeting an agitation will be started for the teaching of English to foreigners by means of the type case and the printing press, in place of the method now in use.

Earnest Reeves of the Central High School, St. Louis, is president, and Ralph W. Polk, St. Joseph, Mo., secretary.

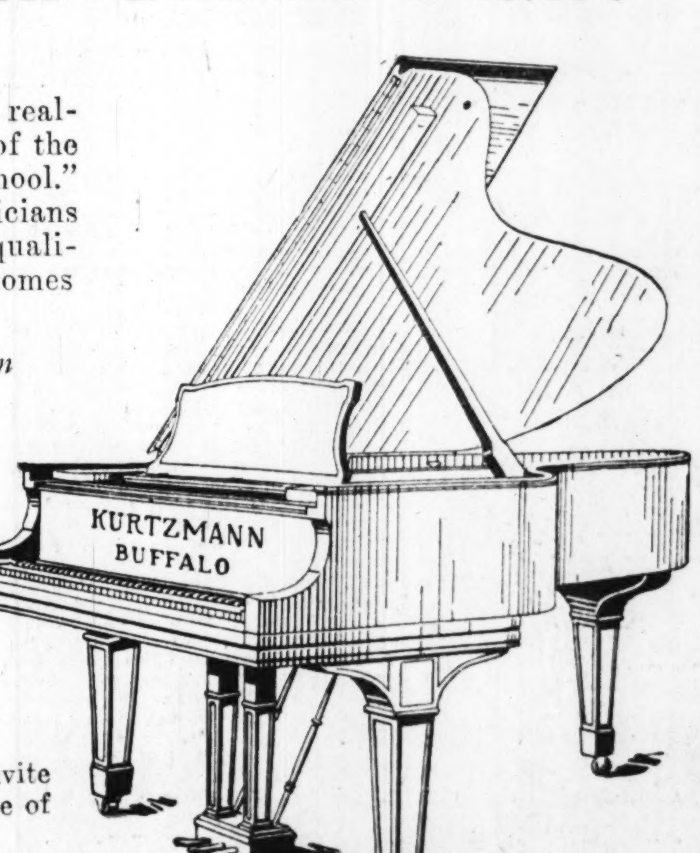
The Kurtzmann Grand Piano

—Is Perfection Itself

To know the "Kurtzmann" intimately is to realize its supreme piano quality. The makers of the "Kurtzmann" are piano builders of the "old school." Quality has not been sacrificed and musicians everywhere give the "Kurtzmann" their unqualified endorsement by purchasing it for their homes and studios.



Interesting Points About the Construction of the "Kurtzmann" Grand Piano

The "Kurtzmann" Grand is made in three sizes, ranging from the exquisite little Baby Grand to the large Parlor Grand. The action represents the highest type of action construction.

The best known composer and concert pianist in St. Louis enthusiastically recommends this particular action. The bracing casing and soundboard construction represent years of scientific development toward perfection.

Tone is something impossible to describe, so we invite you to visit our Music Salons to listen to the tone of the perfect "Kurtzmann."

The prices are less than you would expect. The terms may be arranged to suit you.

RHEUMATISM SUFFERERS

Try Prescription C-2223—It Has Cured Many Rheumatics

Costs Only a Trifle to Get Rid of Uric Acid, Bone Pains, Swollen Joints! Grand! Good News!

Any of the readers who suffer from bone pains, swollen muscles or joints, backaches, pains all over the body so they can hardly walk, dizziness, lumbago, or any other form of rheumatism, no matter how deep seated, should ask any of their home prescription druggists for Prescription C-2223. It would cost a good deal to consult a specialist, but you can get his Prescription C-2223 at slight cost. Take daily doses as indicated on prescription pasted on the bottle. It has helped hundreds of casts, especially the old, stubborn kind. One of the downtown druggists says that this prescription keeps down and expels uric acid from the blood, at the same time purifying and enriching the blood so that pure, rich blood is sent direct to the joints and skin surface. Those terrible aches and pains, swollen muscles, aching back and every form of rheumatism can be easily controlled at home by following the simple directions that go with this famous Prescription C-2223.

NOTICE!

If your own druggist can't supply you please send his name to C-2223 Laboratories, Memphis, Tenn.--ADV.

Miller's Antiseptic Oil, Known as has perhaps relieved more sufferers than any other known remedy in the same length of time. Three million bottles sold under an absolute guarantee to give satisfaction or money refunded and less than a dozen bottles returned. Many have testified that they have suffered with rheumatism and lumbago until they had been forced to give up their work because they could not use their limbs. Some who could not even raise their arms above their heads have been relieved and are now praising this wonderful oil that other sufferers may be benefited. No wonder this great oil treatment has sprung into such tremendous popularity in so brief a time and is so much praised today by thousands throughout the country. For Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Lumbago, stiff and aching joints or any kind of an ache or pain it is said to be without an equal. For Sore Throat, Tonsilitis and for cuts and burns it has been found most effective. This wonderful new oil remedy that is producing such remarkable results throughout the country is now for sale by all leading druggists. Accept no substitutes, for there is nothing like it. See that it's Miller's. Every bottle guaranteed or money refunded. 30c, 60c and $1.00. At Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., St. Louis, Mo.—ADV.

HEARS HOW HER SON WAS FATALLY WOUNDED

St. Louis Mother of Sergeant Learns From Boy's Comrade of Heroic Conduct in the Argonne.

Mrs. L. Satterfield of Grand avenue and University street has received a letter from France describing the manner in which her son, Sergt. Duerall C. Satterfield, 18 years old, of F Company, 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, received the wounds which resulted in his death Oct. 4, 1918. He was hit twice by machine-gun bullets, in the Argonne battle Sept. 28. The letter was written by Corp. Cort A. Smith, also of F Company, 138th Infantry, who was with Satterfield when he was hit. Parts of the letter follow:

"My Dear Mrs. Satterfield: Being a stranger to you, I will introduce myself by stating that last night I received from Harry Goodman the news, which, I assure you, was a shock not only to me, but to Harry himself, of the loss of our comrade, Duer.

Popular With Men.

"In addition to the fact that your son was immensely popular with all the company, there are at least three of us, Harry Goodman, Fred Fairchild and myself, who can never, never cease to mourn his loss. We all knew the same songs. We played, worked and soldiered together continually.

"On the first day F Company ever served in the trenches he and I had the honor of going into No Man's Land in broad daylight," wrote Smith in part. "This patrol was considered suicidal, but, though one sniper nearly got us, all ended well. From this day on we had an agreement that whenever out on a patrol, we would stick side by side. Later on, in another sector, when our leader divided the patrol into two parts, Duer was put in one, I in the other half. Soon as we started, I crawled through the darkness, not daring to speak, but when I touched him, together we stayed. As we lay on the side of that hill, with boche machine guns spattering bullets all around us, he would reach over and squeeze my arm or dig me in the ribs with his elbow.

"I was with Duer when he was wounded, which is one reason for this letter. He was struck twice, but the first time he continued forward. Just think of it, how magnificent. The second time I was within six feet of him, and, in spite of the misery and sorrow I felt, I shall always praise God for allowing me to touch him and speak to him at that time. I got him on his feet and to a safer place. Then I was torn between the desire to stay with him and the stern rule of warfare which forbids the able-bodied soldier staying even for a few minutes with the wounded.

Was Without Fear.

All was confusion. Our commander gave the order to charge, and there I was forced to leave Duer. Here is the thought which I can offer you for comfort, and which you should always treasure. He was a soldier, and I who left him there can truthfully say that he took his hurt with that spirit which will not give in to anything. You must always think of him taking it in that brave way. I have often prayed during the battle: 'God, if I am wounded, help me to bear it like a man. Help me not to cry out or grow nervous, help me to suffer in silence, to help myself, and so be to the last a soldier.' I was never wounded, but in your boy's eyes, cool and without fear, I saw the spirit I had prayed for, and in the charge that followed I was steeled against anything which might come, by that short communion with him.

"I have written this letter because my heart told me to and if anything in it should freshen your sorrow, if I have gone too far into details, I should be inexpressibly grieved. I insist, however, that you should hold your head higher when thinking of him. I might have stayed at home during this war. I was over the draft age, with plenty of exemption to fall back on, and I left a wife whom I simply idolize, yet I almost feel ashamed to face you folks who have lost your boys."

The letter was postmarked Dagonville, France, and was dated Dec. 5 1918.

MUSICIANS TO HAVE CHARGE OF OWEN MILLER'S FUNERAL

Labor Leader Will Be Buried Next Tuesday From the Union Headquarters.

The funeral of Owen Miller, 68 years old, 2820 La Salle street, international secretary of the American Federation of Musicians, who died Friday at Alexian Brothers' Hospital after an illness of three weeks, will be held Tuesday at 10 a. m. from the musicians' headquarters at 3535 Pine street. The Musicians' Union has charge of the funeral and a band of 125 pieces will lead the cortege.

Miller's will, filed in the Probate Court, recites that he owned the La Salle street residence, which he leaves to his sister-in-law, Mrs. Kate Bredemeyer of 2107 Alice avenue, and personal property amounting to $6800, of which $6000 is in Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps. Other bequests are: Anna Brinson, a niece, $300; Anna Dunker, niece, $100; Lena Casey, niece, $100; Miss L. E. Andes, a friend, $200; D. K. Howell, a friend, personal belongings, including musical instrument, and to the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association is left the residue to be added to relief fund. The will was written Feb. 12 last. Miller's wife died two years ago.

Lecture by Architect.

Albert Kelsey, architect, will deliver an illustrated lecture entitled "Four Adventures in the Realm of Art" under the auspices of the Washington University Association Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the auditorium of the North building of the Washington University School of Medicine.

Old Herbal Remedy Used for 40 Years in Relieving Diabetes

The most satisfactory results have been obtained in combating Diabetes by observing certain dietary rules and the judicious use of Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy, an herbal preparation used with marked success for more than forty years.

Following is a letter from a grateful user:

"This letter is the best proof that I am still alive. Your medicine is a miracle to me. My weight was reduced from 157 to 114 pounds when I left the hospital. I left there Aug. 6th in despair. Hundreds of people that knew me said I would never live to return to my studio. After leaving the hospital, I saw your 'Ad' in the paper. I began its use and at once commenced to improve, and now everybody is saying to me that I look better than ever before. I tip the scales at 132 pounds and I am back working again to the astonishment of all. I feel splendid and people say I am looking better every day. I must tell you that every word I have written is true and I can prove it by hundreds that knew of my condition. Jules Friquet, 511 West First Street, Los Angeles, Cal."

Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy is made from herbs and other beneficial ingredients and has been on the market 40 years, a true indication of its value. Get a bottle today.

Sold by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and all druggists. Sample sent on receipt of ten cents. Warner's Safe Remedies Co., Dept. 245, Rochester, N. Y.

APOLLO
Player Piano

30 minutes with the Apollo will eliminate every IF

IF the APOLLO was for seven years the only 88-note player piano on the market—
IF the APOLLO is the only player with a motor that automatically winds and rewinds the roll without pedaling—
IF our competitors admit that this motor is right (as they do)—
IF you can produce better music yourself with the APOLLO than the most expert instructor or demonstrator can on any other player—
IF you recognize at once the wonderful tone quality and perfect music of the APOLLO—
IF these things are facts, then is not the APOLLO at least worthy of consideration? Thirty minutes with the instrument will eliminate the IF's. Please give us an opportunity to prove it.

The Doctor's Advice
by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood streets, Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious names will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

Robert asks: "I am constipated, tongue coated, have headache, dizzy spells and indigestion sometimes. Please advise?"

Answer: I advise that you begin using Three-Grain Sulpherb Tablets (not sulphur). These tablets are laxative, act on the liver, kidneys and bowels and tend to keep the blood pure by arousing the eliminative functions. Relief should follow quickly.

Clerk writes: "I have pains in my spine and frightful headache in back of head, fainting spells, twitching and trembling, nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and strength, and in fact am a 'has-been' when it comes to performing accustomed work and duties."

Answer: In all such cases the assimilative functions have not kept pace with waste functions, and a powerful, harmless tonic treatment is needed. I find Three-Grain Cadomene Tablets unexcelled and astonishingly beneficial in such cases and advise them for you.

"Lucy" says: "Some time ago I contracted a very severe cold and cough. I have tried many remedies, but they do not seem to help me at all. I wish you would advise me what to do."

Answer: What you need is a laxative cough syrup, one that will drive the cold from your system. The following prescription will check your cold and cough: Get a 2½-oz. package of Concentrated Essence Mentho-Laxene and make according to directions on the bottle. Take a teaspoonful every hour or two until your cold is better. This will relieve you in a very few days.

Pride asks: "My hair is too oily and my scalp itches with dandruff, and of late it is combing out too much. What is a good treatment?"

Answer: Obtain Plain Yellow Minyol from your druggist in 4-oz. jars and apply as per directions. This cleans, purifies, cools and invigorates the hair and scalp, thus stopping the death of the hair. Dandruff and itching are at once relieved. Men and women all over the country now use it regularly.

"George" writes: "Have been doctoring for kidney trouble, and now want your advice. Backache also affects me dreadfully. Can hardly move when I awake in the morning."

Answer: I think if you will take Balmwort Tablets regularly for a few weeks your kidneys and bladder will become normal and such symptoms vanish. This is unequaled for such complaints, in my estimation.

NOTE: For many years Dr. Baker has been giving free advice and prescriptions to millions of people through the press columns, and doubtless has helped in relieving illness and distress more than any single individual in the world's history. Thousands have written him expressions of gratitude and confidence similar to the following:

Dr. Lewis Baker, Dear Sir:—We have used three of the medicines you advise—the double four, the Essence Mentho-Laxene and the rheumatism prescriptions—and I want to say they all worked like a charm. They are the best I have ever used, and I feel I could not keep house without them. I am very grateful and pleased to recommend any of these medicines prescribed. Very truly yours,
MRS. R. L. WHITED,

Rupture Kills 7000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance, or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore, cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., Block 557, St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and the information necessary.—ADV.

Don't Use Curling Iron! Here's a Better Method

Thousands of ruined heads of hair bear striking testimony to the injurious effects of the heated curling iron. The continued use of such instrument invariably means dull, dry, shriveled hair, with split, broken, uneven ends.

If more women only knew it, the hair can be kept beautifully wavy, soft and fluffy—without any harmful result whatever—by the occasional use of plain liquid silmerine. A small quantity is applied before doing up the hair, using a clean toothbrush for the purpose, drawing this down the full length of the hair. The curly effect is quickly acquired and lasts quite a considerable time. It is so natural looking, and the texture and luster of the hair are so improved, that the woman who adopts this simple method will never go back to the atrocious waving iron. A few ounces of liquid silmerine from the druggist will last for weeks. The liquid is agreeable to use, and it leaves no gummy, greasy or odorous trace.—ADV.

WHAT PUBLIC THINKS OF "DAYLIGHT SAVING"

Letters to the Post-Dispatch For and Against Turning the Clock Ahead.

Arguments for and against saving daylight this year by moving the clock ahead one hour on March 30, as provided in the act of Congress, which became effective last spring, are reaching the Post-Dispatch in letters from subscribers. Most of the expressions received to date are against the plan and the writers would like to see the law repealed.

A. J. Langdorf started the discussion with a communication to the column, "Letters from the People." He characterized the law as "the biggest frost ever thought of," and said the man who worked from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m. did not care about saving daylight for gardening time and was in no humor after his daily toil to make garden.

The old reliable "Vox Populi" is in accord with Langsdorf, and thinks such legislation is an abridgment of personal liberty. "Vox" refers to Congress as "a lot of men who don't have to go to their desks until they wish, who are surrounded by all comforts and who compel the hundreds of thousands of workers—men, and women, too—who ordinarily must be at work at 7 o'clock, to be at work at 6, which means leaving their homes somewhere near 5 o'clock, after rising while it is yet dark; with no time to dress properly, prepare or eat breakfast, or for anything but just the struggle to get to work; with the extra time in the evenings, when it is not needed and the people are too worn out to plan for the next day's struggle."

"It puts America's time system in the category of falsehood," this correspondent continues. "The land that stands for truth and righteousness declares it to be noon an hour before the sun reaches its zenith."

John Doyle, 4340 St. Louis avenue, takes the opposite view:

"I work long hours and when my day's work is done it is a source of pleasure to me to get out in my garden, and I have found the daylight saving plan a great help. People who object to the plan because they require or like a great deal of sleep, and who say it is daylight under this plan when they wish to retire and that this interferes with their rest, are slipping. Edison says four hours' sleep is enough for any man. Don't say a word against this get-up-an-hour-earlier plan."

"F. H. P., a woman, writes: "It was real hardship for me to observe the rule last year, and I was thankful when the time came to go back to the normal day."

"H. K." says there is nothing to be gained by the plan, and advocates the circulation of a petition for repeal of the law.

"A Reader" thinks it were better for the hard-working men and women that the time remain unchanged.

"Let us get away from war conditions," L. Enright advises. "We gladly did our bit; spare our little children. Let them have that quiet hour in bed, so much needed and worth more than three at night."

It is contended by the St. Clair County Farm Bureau of Belleville that it is useless to attempt certain kinds of farm work during early morning hours, while the dew is still on the ground, and that the last hour before sundown is the best time of day to accomplish results on the farm. For this reason the bureau is not in favor of a change in the time.

35 U. S. SOLDIERS MISSING IN RUSSIA BELIEVED TO BE DEAD

Reports Indicate That Bolsheviki Are Taking No Prisoners—Whole Force Has Had but 192 Deaths.

By the Associated Press.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN NORTHERN RUSSIA, Thursday, Feb. 20.—While vague reports have reached the American forces on this front indicating that there perhaps may be a few American soldiers held captive at Vologda or Moscow, it appears that the majority of the 35 Americans which is the total number listed as missing in action since the beginning of the campaign, must be counted as dead.

Some of these were wounded men who became lost in the woods, while others were members of small detachments which were surrounded and are believed to have died fighting.

One American Captain who commanded the force operating near Shenkursk, said that the 17 men who were missing after that attack were undobutedly dead, as the Bolsheviki apparently had conducted their campaign on the basis of making no prisoners.

Although the American casualties in the field during late December and in the month of January were heavier than those for all the other months combined, the total losses in killed, died of wounds or disease, or missing, for the entire expedition up to today are only 192, of which number eight were officers. This is less than 4 per cent of the forces involved.

GLASS OF WATER BEFORE YOU EAT YOUR BREAKFAST

Wash poison from system each morning, and feel fresh as a daisy.

Every day you clean the house you live in to get rid of the dust and dirt which collected through the previous day. Your body, the house your soul lives in, also becomes filled up each twenty-four hours with all manner of filth and poison. If only every man and woman could realize the wonders of drinking phosphated hot water, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

Everyone, whether sick or well, should drink, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds and particularly those who have a pallid sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.—ADV.

Irregular Sleep

He Had to Arise at Night Because of Kidney and Bladder Ailments.

Tells of the Good Balmwort Tablets Worked.

Mr. W. E. Goff, connected with the D. L. & W. R. R., Syracuse, N. Y., writes: "For two years I had suffered from disorders of the kidneys and bladder. Distressing pain in the back and hips, extreme nervousness. My ankles swelled and my skin became dry and harsh. After using Balmwort Tablets I noticed relief and continued taking until now I feel wholly relieved of pain and suffering. I am glad to recommend Balmwort Tablets as a most reliable, beneficial medicine."

The Blackburn Products Co., Dayton, Ohio, guarantee every package satisfactory, or money back, so why not stop your pain and distress with Balmwort Tablets. Sold by leading druggists. Price, $1.00.—ADVERTISEMENT.

DON'T LET SOAP SPOIL YOUR HAIR

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—ADV.

Adler-i-ka Did It

"I had pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, sour stomach and very much gas. Doctors could not help me. The FIRST dose of Adler-i-ka helped me." Signed) Henry Welp, Lake View, Iowa.

Adler-i-ka expels ALL gas and sourness, stopping stomach distress INSTANTLY. Empties BOTH upper and lower bowel, flushing ENTIRE alimentary canal. Removes ALL foul matter which poisons system. Often CURES constipation. Prevents appendicitis. We have sold Adler-i-ka many years. It is a mixture of buckthorn, cascara, glycerine and nine other simple drugs. Johnson Bros. Drug Co., 7th and St. Charles St., Wolff-Wilson, (and leading druggists everywhere).—ADVERTISEMENT.

TREAT 'EM ROUGH IS NOT FOR BOWELS

Keep your body healthy and vigorous by using a persuasive, gentle and positive combination of herbs to rid the intestinal tract of poisonous waste. MACKENSEN'S ARMY MET INGLORIOUS END

Rumania's Conquerors Looked Like Beggars After Armistice Trying to Reach Hungary.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BERNE, Jan. 27.—Seldom has a victorious army come to so miserable an end as that of the 180,000 Germans commanded by Field Marshal von Mackensen, who were driven out of Rumania after the signing of the armistice.

On their way home through Hungary the redoubtable divisions which had accompanied Von Mackensen in triumphal march through Transylvania and Rumania lost, sold or were robbed of virtually all their belongings. One division, the Eighty-ninth, which had fought victoriously in Poland and Lithuania, escaped into Germany without as much as a horseshoe nail of its property and, clad in ridiculous disguises of shabbiest civilian clothing and Austrian uniforms sold to them at Raab, they said, at monstrous prices. The story of their inglorious homeward journey as told by a member of one of the German divisions to the Schlesische Zeitung follows:

"Orders had been given that bloodshed should be avoided, so the victors of Hermannstadt and Rimniku turned their faces towards Hungary, and, leaving incalculable supplies of flour, sugar, wine, hospital stores, and agricultural implements behind them, made their way, pursued by the Rumanians, over the wintry Carpathians. There were no Hungarian troops waiting to intern the German legions, and the few Entente soldiers in Budapest did not count. We were told that the Entente would impose still harder conditions in the West, so we were ordered to allow ourselves to be disarmed by a ridiculous minority.

"Then began a second march over the snowy steppes. Thousands of old Landsturm men did not face this trial and were taken prisoners by the Wallachians, who sent them back over the mountains into Rumania. Several divisions succeeded in buying locomotives, cars and coal at Klausenburg, and thus finished their journey by train. A great mass of material was sold. Hundreds of transport and other wagons were simply left in the road or broken up for firewood.

"The trains were allowed to go to Raab, whence, by order of the Entente, the Hungarian Government sent them to the old internment camp for Russian prisoners at Papa.

"Small things of value that we had saved were taken from us by Magyars on the way from Raab to Vienna. With the divisional money chest plundered of its contents by Magyars, the Eighty-ninth Infantry Division reached German-Austrian soil, through the last remaining gap near Pressburg, which the Czechs closed a few days later, undoubtedly at the behest of the Entente."

CARRANZA PLANNING TO PUT ALL MEXICO ON A DRY BASIS

Recently Signed a Decree Doubling the Tax on Alcoholic Beverages in Country.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 1 (by mail).—President Carranza is considering a plan submitted by the National Board of Health for the enactment of legislation that will gradually result in the abolition of the alcoholic liquor traffic in Mexico. He recently signed a decree increasing from 25 to 50 per cent the tax on polque and other alcoholic beverages in Mexico City.

The Constitution, according to the officials of the Board of Health, gives that body powers to dictate health regulations that will result in the abolition of the liquor traffic. The board's program, as submitted to the President, provides for an elaborate campaign to suppress the liquor traffic gradually. High duties, early closing hours for saloons, temperance lectures, organization of temperance societies and various other means would be resorted to before the prohibitory regulations became fully effective.

SCRAP HEAP FOR 3 WAR DOGS

Old Indiana, Iowa and Massachusetts Condemned.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21.—Three of the old-time leaders of the American navy have been condemned to the scrap heap. The Indiana, Massachusetts and Iowa, battleships, now in the basin of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, will shortly be destroyed, as they have outlived their usefulness. Yet, 25 years ago, they were the equals of anything afloat. The Indiana class of battleship was regarded as a daring experiment. When the Indiana first sailed all on board were impressed with the feeling that she might turn over in a heavy sea and go to the bottom.

Although the old battleships are still serviceable, and they were used in the world war, they are obsolete and are therefore destined for the naval morgue.

LIEDERKRANZ CLUB CONCERT

Concert Soprano and Pianist to Be March 1 Artists.

The second concert of the Liederkranz Club, to be given at the Club Sunday afternoon, March 2, will present two artists of acknowledged excellence, Madame Edith Ayers McCullough, concert soprano, and Rudolph Gruen, Pianist. It will be Madame McCullough's first visit to St. Louis. She possesses a high dramatic soprano voice of unusual range and brilliancy.

Gruen's selections will include compositions by Chopin, Liszt, MacDowell, Cadman, etc., in addition to his playing of accompaniments for the concerted numbers.

RAIL AND RIVER RATE MEETING TOMORROW

P. E. Coyle and Theodore Brent Will Make Schedule for Local Shipments.

The making of river and rail freight tariffs which will have the effect of extending the trade territory of St. Louis in Southwestern and Southeastern states 20 per cent will be begun tomorrow by P. E. Coyle traffic commissioner of the Chamber of Commerce, and Theodore Brent, traffic manager of the Government River Service.

The decision to at once take steps to gain rates, the lack of which has had the effect of curtailing the extent to which St. Louis shippers can use the River Service, was brought about by a clash between officials of the barge line and Coyle and a conference of shippers at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon.

Shippers Taken to Task.

Officials of the River Service had criticised St. Louis shippers for not using the river more. Coyle replied that the reason why St. Louis shippers had not been able to use the river was that shipments by it were limited to New Orleans and foreign ports. He charged that St. Louis had been discriminated against in favor of Chicago in making of joint river and rail rates.

A recent tariff of the River Service extending the same savings to Chicago and other points in six states on shipments from New Orleans as is enjoyed by St. Louis.

St. Louis, at the time that Chicago applied for those rates, applied for rates by river to New Orleans, thence by rail to points in Texas and southeastern states from which it now is excluded by reason of cheap ocean rates from New York.

Brent replied that St. Louis could obtain the rates by making strong representations at Washington.

Eror Delayed Work.

Coyle replied that he had addressed Brent as traffic manager for the rates, and had not been informed that he was not the proper person to approach. He asked why Chicago had obtained rail and river rates, while St. Louis had not.

Brent was about to reply when M. W. Sanders, federal manager of the River Service, intervened and said that reason he could not divulge at this time had delayed the extension of river and rail rates to St. Louis.

Coyle, Sanders, Brent and James E. Smith president of the Mississippi Valley Waterways Association held a conference today at the Chamber of Commerce at which it was arranged that Brent should remain in St. Louis until rail and river tariffs favoring St. Louis had been formulated, whereupon he and Coyle are to go to Washington to gain their authorization.

WELSH PEOPLE SHOWED GREAT HOSPITALITY TO AMERICANS

Visitors Entertained in Homes With Music, Song and Plenty of Good Food.

LONDON, JAN. 25 (by mail).—When the world-touring Yanks who have spent part of their time in Wales get home they'll carry back to the United States a fine impression of Wales and the hospitality of the Welsh people.

"Never had a better time in my life," says the Yankee sailor after he has been invited into a Welsh home. The Welsh are charming in their homes. Almost without exception every member of the family can sing or play a musical instrument. But while music is ennobling to the soul, there's a surer way to get the full-fledged approbation of the Yank—and that's through the stomach.

And, my, how those Welsh people can cook! Then, too, things were a bit more plentiful there than in England, so between good music, cordial people and plenty of good things to eat the boys are going home with their official O K on Wales and all that's Welsh.

Sunday is a favorite time for entertaining the Americans. Every Sunday from 50 to 75 are sent out by the Y. M. C. A. to have dinner and spend an afternoon.

DEVICES FOUND HIDDEN GUNS

U. S. Apparatus Located More Than 100 on British Front.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—American sound gaging devices in use on the British front shortly before the signing of the armistice in a single day located more than 100 hidden German guns, placing them at the mercy of the British artillery. This and many other interesting achievements of army engineers corps were revealed with the opening to newspaper correspondents by the War Department of an engineer corps exhibit.

Charts showing the part played by the engineer corps in the war were included to show that when the United States entered the war the corps represented only 1.6 per cent of the numerical strength of the army while when the armistice was signed it constituted 10.8 per cent. A greater proportion of the engineer corps reached France than any other branch of the service. One chart showed that American forestry units during October took 50,000,000 board feet of lumber and 80,000 cords of wood from French forests in addition to enough railroad ties to build more than 1000 miles of tracks.

During the year 1918 the Post-Dispatch printed 2944 Classified Instruction "Wants"—268 more than the FOUR other St. Louis newspapers combined.

Angels' Songs From the Golden City of the Blessed

The Dawn of a New Era

By Edythe Morahan de Lauzon.

This Book of prophetic Messages has been given by inspiration from the Great Spiritual World, to comfort the bereaved, and those who are earnestly searching for truth.

For almost two thousand years, since the days of Christ, a great silence has lain between this World and the next. Of late years the little that has come forth has not been of a very high order, for the time was not ripe, but now the Divine Messages have been given in this book from the Highest Realms.

This Book has over 300 pages. Price $1.35. To be had from ALBERT URQUHART, 415B, St. James Street, Montreal, Que., Canada.

Your Child is Constipated or Bilious! Look at Tongue.

Hurry, Mother! Remove poisons from little stomach, liver and bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of ''California Syrup of Figs'' and in a few hours all the constipated poison and undigested food gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless ''fruit laxative,'' because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages, and for grown-ups printed on bottle. Remember name ''California.''—ADV.

ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.

DR. CANNADAY
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now; your very life may be at stake.

RED CROSS SOCIETIES PLAN A WORLD UNION TO FIGHT DISEASE AND DISTRESS

H. P. Davison Outlines Scheme, Approved by President, to Maintain Agency for Distribution of Benefits to All Parts of Universe.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—Members of the peace delegations of all the Powers interested in the proposed league of nations and Ambassadors and Ministers from various countries together with several hundred newspaper representatives fom allied and neutral counties at a dinner here last night heard H. P. Davison of the American Red Cross announce in outline international Red Cross plans for world welfare. Davison has been named chairman of a committee of Red Cross societies representing the organizations in the United States, Great Britain, Italy, France and Japan to "formulate and propose to the Red Cross societies of the world a program of extended Red Cross activities in the interest of humanity."

Davis read a wireless message from President Wilson as follows:

"I sincerely regret I am not in Paris to join in expressing support and approval of the plans announced for co-ordinating and extending the efforts of the Red Cross societies of the world. I have been familiar with these plans from their inception. They contain great possibilities for lessening and preventing distress among all peoples.

"Broaden Fraternal Feeling."

"This would be enough amply to justify the utmost effort but there is a further promise that the joint efforts of the Red Cross societies acting in concert will hasten and broaden the spread of fraternal feeling among the peoples.

"For these two reasons I am heartily in accord with the step now to be taken to bring together through the Red Cross societies of the world all those forces which in this way can be directed toward lessening the sufferings and burdens of humanity wherever and in whatever form they may exist. I sincerely trust that the plans which are now to be announced may have the support and active assistance of all Governments and all peoples before whom they may be brought."

Davison then read a letter from Premier Clemenceau to E. M. House written the day before the Premier was shot, saying:

"I approve in the fullest possible manner of the plans to extend and to co-ordinate the activities of the Red Cross and I believe that from this step great good will accrue to humanity which has so many wounds that need dressing."

Davison Outlines Plan.

A memorandum distributed among the guests told of what the combined Red Cross societies of the five Powers proposed to do, and Davison explained and summarized the great plans and preparations.

"What is peace?" he said. "I am one of those who believe that 99 per cent of the people of this world are not interested primarily in questions of boundary, in questions of economic or financial treaties, in questions of government and international relations. Peace to them means peace of mind and peace of body. They desire to live a normal life and to be permitted to carry on their vocations without unlawful or unreasonable interference.

"The situation in the world today is tragic beyond description. The distress in the world is, of course, greater than ever before and beyond comprehension. To me, therefore, it is clear that while the leading men of the world are convened to draw up conditions of peace there is no man or set of men who can by pencil and paper establish a peace which can endure in the presence of the distress throughout the world. I refer, of course, primarily to conditions in those countries which have suffered directly from the war.

"But our experience and studies have revealed conditions in other countries which are conducive to disquiet and unrest and which will continue to breed a spirit of dissatisfaction until they are at least in some degree improved. The fundamental basis of these conditions is primarily lack of proper foods.

"As soon as the armistice was signed, we, who were informed concerning the crying needs of the world, felt an impelling obligation to get together for the purpose of finding a way of contributing to the world the benefit of our experience with the purposes of co-ordinating the efforts of all the Red Cross societies of the world in the interest of mankind. It seemed to us that, with a league of nations based upon high ideals there should also come a league of Red Cross societies of nations and that there should be developed in every country an active Red Cross society for the purpose of doing everything possible to endeavor, not only to cure disease but so far as practicable to cleanse the world and prevent disease and suffering.

Conferences Held.

"The Red Cross organizations of the five Powers represented here tonight recently held a conference at Cannes there views were exchanged and a general program adopted. We adjourned from Cannes to Geneva, where we called upon the International Red Cross and presented our suggestions. Gustav Ador, the president of the International Red Cross, and the president of the Swiss Confederation, gave us a most cordial reception and received our suggestions with every consideration.

"After the conference at Geneva we of the five Red Cross organizations constituted ourselves a committee to be known as the 'Committee of Red Cross Societies' to formulate and to propose to the Red Cross societies of the world a program of Red Cross activities in the interest of humanity. In response to the request of our committee the International Committee has called a conference of Red Cross societies of the world to be held in Geneva 30 days after peace shall have been declared.

"Our committee will now adjourn to Cannes, where we will devote ourselves to the formulation of a program to be submitted at the Geneva conference. It is our idea eventually that the program will include many subjects.

"Our present thought is that our

Doing His Duty

"For two years I suffered agonizing pains in my stomach, belching up sour and bitter fluids and gas. Tongue always coated. Doctors were unable to help me. The first dose of Mayr's Wonderful remedy made me feel 100 per cent better, and I am now feeling better, than at any time in my life. I deem it my duty to advise other sufferers." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. RED CROSS PLANS A WORLD UNION TO WAR ON DISTRESS efforts should cover the subjects of public health and sanitation, tuberculosis, nursing, child welfare and malaria and certain other infectious diseases. There would be developed at Geneva an organization which would receive from every Red Cross society in the world information of interest and importance bearing on the various subjects in which they were interested. This organization would immediately communicate such information to every other Red Cross organization in the world. By the method the entire world would be kept fully informed of the latest and best practices in various subjects.

"It is expected that there will be established in Geneva a bureau which will devote itself not to the actual study of human diseases, but to the co-ordination of the results of such studies. This bureau would be kept informed of the work done by the research specialists of the world and would itself keep the research bureaus fully informed of all of the work being done.

How Program Would Work.

"Any pertinent development or discovery of importance in science would at once be transmitted to Geneva and from there in turn immediately transmitted to every Red Cross organization in the world. The result of this program, as we see it, may be briefly stated.

"It would throw light on the darkest corners of the earth and would give to all the world the full benefit of scientific study and experience in the prevention and cure of disease.

"It would make possible the immediate co-operation on the part of the various organizations to render aid when necessary in the case of great disasters.

"If it had been possible to effect this organization two years ago it is conceivable that there would be going today to the various countries now in distress supplies and aid which would give comfort to and restore to health millions of people who cannot now be cared for. No one knows how many millions have died during the last year from influenza. I have been told that the losses of India in the war were about 100,000 and that deaths from influenza in that country alone are estimated to be about 2,500,000.

"If the organization which we are planning had been operating a year ago it would have been in a position to know of the start of this unprecedented and terrible wave of disease which has swept around the world. It would have called upon experts best qualified to study the disease and would have required them to report to Geneva plans for the campaign against it and through efficient organization could probably have stopped or stayed its progress and undoubtedly have saved numberless lives."

Robbers Are Requested Not to Muss Up Things at 5955 Pershing Avenue Needlessly.

All St. Louis burglars and any members of the craft who may be visiting the city are hereby notified that the residence of R. J. Cappell, 5955 Pershing avenue, has already been "worked" and everything of value taken.

Cappell's daughter, Miss Celeste Cappell, has asked the Post-Dispatch to publish the facts, so that the family may be spared another week's work straightening out the furniture and household contents. The gang that ransacked the residence last Monday night left it looking as if a cyclone had struck it, she said. A small amount of money and $300 worth of jewelry were taken.

"There seem to be so many burglars in the city just now that I do not suppose they can meet for daily reports," said Miss Cappell, "and in the absence of perfect organization different gangs are apt to break into the same house. Nothing has been in the papers about the looting of our residence, and since there is nothing else there that burglars could use, I want them all to get the news."

FOURTH LOAN SUBSCRIPTIONS HAVE REACHED $6,993,073,250

St. Louis District Total Is $295,340,000 and That of Kansas City $295,951,000.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Subscriptions to the Fourth Liberty Loan have mounted to $6,993,073,250, according to reports announced today by the Treasury. The total announced soon after the loan campaign closed was $6,989,000,000.

By reserve districts subscriptions now are announced as follows:

TOWER GROVE PARK COST THE CITY $6000 LAST YEAR

Expenditures amounted to That Much More Than Was the Income.

Expenditures ran some $6000 in excess of the receipts in the maintenance of Tower Grove Park during last year, as disclosed by the report of the Board of Commissioners, submitted to the Board of Aldermen by Secretary G. E. Hutchings. Tower Grove is different from the other parks in that it is governed by a Board of Commissioners in accordance with the terms of the agreement of the late Henry Shaw with the city, when he donated this large tract comprising 276.76 acres for park purposes. The city appropriates $25,000 a year for upkeep, and the other sources of income last year brought the aggregate up to $30,147.42, while the expenditures were $36,541.88. Most of the money went to labor and for concert music programs.

The commissioners are George O. Carpenter, Julius S. Walsh, W. H. Dittman, George T. Moore and Otto L. Teichmann. Pending the adjustment of the controversy involving the 200-foot strip surrounding the park, commission continues to care for the property as virtually a part of the park.

Address by Bishop Tuttle.

Bishop Daniel S. Tuttle of the Protestant Episcopal Church of America, and chaplain of the Missouri Sons of the Revolution, will deliver an address at the Church of the Ascension, Goodfellow and Cates avenues, at 8 o'clock this evening. His subject will be "The Birth and Early Growth of Our Nation Conspicuously Dependent, Under God, Upon One Man—Washington." The address will be a part of a service commemorating the birth of the first President.

Don't worry. Let a Post-Dispatch lost ad bring back that lost article.

The Mississippi Valley

The Fur Traders

"Send us the Hearts of our Fathers of Old"—Rudyard Kipling.

The other day in St. Louis was held the greatest sale of furs that the world has ever seen. Not only was the number of skins that changed hands a record breaker, but their value—running to nearly ten millions of dollars—was probably the greatest sum of money ever spent on furs at one sale since the world began. This in a city which was originally chosen as a site for a fur trading post.

In 1764 a young Frenchman, named Pierre Laclede—an exile from the Court of Louis XV.—was given a royal patent authorizing him to trade in furs with the inhabitants of Louisiana. This sounds like a fairly comprehensive grant, but when you remember that in those days Louisiana commenced at the mouth of the Mississippi and extended northwest to limits that were beyond the bounds of human knowledge, you begin to realize what a wide field of choice Laclede had in selecting his principal trading center.

He made an arduous journey by flatboats up the Mississippi River and, although weariness of labor and eagerness to begin business must have tempted him to stop very often, he kept on for nearly two thousand miles until he reached the spot where St. Louis stands today. How well he chose a trading center, not only for furs but for many other things, the whole world knows.

But have we St. Louisans of today the perseverance, the courage, the hardihood, and the vision that the first St. Louisan had when he stood in the middle of a howling wilderness and said, "I believe this spot is destined to become one of the great cities of the world"?

Some of us have those qualities. For instance: More than a hundred years after Laclede came to St. Louis from New Orleans, Philip B. Fouke came to St. Louis from New Orleans and entered Funsten Brothers Fur Company as an office boy. If Laclede had the difficulties of savagery to overcome, Fouke had the difficulties of civilization, and who shall say which are the greater?

Laclede lived to found a city that is one of the greatest, and may one day be the greatest in the world. Fouke has lived to make St. Louis the center of the world's fur trade, where furs secured from every uncivilized quarter of the globe are sold to dealers who will distribute them in its every civilized quarter. St. Louis is a good place for fur traders—and here is one line where the right sort of trader has helped St. Louis hold its own.

Next week we will speak of the old river days when St. Louis was the dominant center of all America west of the Allegheny Mountains.

STAY ON THE WATER WAGON!

If You Are One Who Has Quit Indulging in Strong Drink.

Cadomene Tablets Will Help You Over the Rough Period.

Cadomene Tablets are helpful to weak nerves. Weak, faulty nerves often come from strong drink. Sometimes the system is impoverished by excesses of one kind or another, such as poor digestion and faulty nutrition. Overwork, anxiety, and even grief causes abnormal nervous conditions. The strength of body declines. The strength of will power wanes. Nervousness and sleeplessness causes further weakness and loss of vitality. Years of faithful practice taught a great physician that the formula now used to make Cadomene Tablets would surely build up the health of his patients. Now, anyone can take this great medicine if needed. Mr. G. A. Hoover, R. R. No. 1, Reading, Pa., writes: "I am taking Cadomene Tablets with very gratifying results. Nervousness, overwork, and sleeplessness are my complaints."

Mr. Joe N. Herndon, 1645 Twenty-fifth st., Sacramento, Cal., writes: "I am using Cadomene Tablets and find a great improvement has been brought about in two days."

Quick, Safe Way To Remove Hairs

(Toilet Talks)

Keep a little delatone powder on your dressing table, and when ugly, hairy growths appear, make a paste with a little of the powder and some water, apply and let remain on the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. This treatment is quite harmless and rarely more than one application is required, but to avoid disappointment care should be used to buy the real delatone.—ADV.

MISSOURI SENATE DOING LITTLE WORK

General Assembly Earning Record of Doing Least of Any Session in Recent Years.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 22.—With a record of virtually nothing accomplished in the Senate in the seven weeks since the Legislature convened, the 1919 General Assembly has earned the record of doing the least work of any session in recent years.

There is a growing feeling about the capital that political manipulation will prevent any constructive legislation during the session.

The House has worked rather harder during the past few weeks, though it adjourned yesterday until Monday because Speaker O'Fallon wanted to go to Kansas City to deliver an address before a class of law students. However, the House put its calendar in such condition that it could mark time for days and merely wait for the Senate to catch up.

The Senate so far has engrossed only 33 bills, that is, put them in condition for a vote on passage. Yesterday morning it adjourned, after a session of only a little more than 30 minutes, although these 33 bills were ready for final vote, and, in addition, there were 103 bills on the calendar for engrossment, any of which could be taken up. It will not meet until 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, because St. Louis and Kansas City Senators, who have gone to their homes, will not return to the capital before noon Monday.

So far the Senate has not held afternoon sessions more than three or four times, but each week Senators say that next week the Senate will get down to business in earnest. That is what they are saying at this week end.

It is understood Senator Kinney of St. Louis will give his biennial theater party in St. Louis to the Senators next Friday or Saturday.

So far only four bills have been passed by the houses and signed by the Governor. They were routine appropriation measures, which always are put through early to permit State institutions and departments to use funds which they receive from sources other than the general revenue of the State. The general revenue appropriation measures have not yet even been introduced.

In the first few days of the session, the Federal prohibition amendment was ratified, but, aside from that and the appropriation bills, the work, at least as far as the Senate is concerned, has not been considered worthy of any particular attention.

SCALE OF HOW 1918 BABIES WILL HELP EARN THEIR KEEP

Those Born in January May Mean Saving of $200 on Father's Income Tax.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Babies born in 1918 will bring varying income tax exemptions to their parents, depending upon the month of their birth. A child born in January, 1918, gives $200 exemption, in addition to the $2000 allowed married persons, but if a child was born in July, the parent is entitled to exemption of only $100 on the infant's account. If the child was born in October the tax paying parent is allowed only $50 exemption, or one-fourth the $200, normal exemption.

This new policy established for income taxes is explained by the Internal Revenue Bureau as follows.

"If you were entitled to any of the foregoing exemptions ($1000 for a single persons, $2000 for a married person, or head of a family and $200 additional for each dependent child) during part of the year only, you may claim as many twelfths of the exemptions stated as there were months in such part of the year; any part of a month may be counted as a month."

This applies also to marriage and divorce or death figures as inexorably as marriage or births in counting the income tax.

This is a reversal of last year's policy. Then the status of a taxpayer on the last day of the year determined his personal exemptions.

Under another regulation of the Revenue Bureau, a person living in one community acting as the principal support of a person living elsewhere may be considered the head of a family, and entitled to exemption of $2000.

VERDICT OF ACCIDENTAL DEATH

Woman Crossing Street Was Hit by Auto.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by the Coroner's jury yesterday in the case of Mrs. Magdalena Grillo, 47 years old, 3716A Market street, who was fatally hurt on Feb. 17, when struck by an automobile driven by William H. Bryant, 4537 Cote Brilliante avenue, at Easton and Burd avenues.

The evidence before the Coroner was that Mrs. Grillo had started diagonally across the street, and when in the middle started back, and got in the way of the automobile. The machine, it was testified, was traveling at moderate speed. Bryant, who had been charged with felonious wounding, was released.

An Edison in Every Home

Is Our Slogan

Made possible by our new club plan. Satisfy the music hunger of your children by having re-created music in your home.

Re-created music means an exact counterpart of the original; every overtone, every subtle shade, the original beauty of the voice faithfully preserved and re-developed without alteration, developing your musical appreciation by the absence of that unnatural phonograph tone so closely allied to talking machines of the phonograph type.

Everyone who hears the New Edison for the first time is amazed at its natural re-creative qualities. The piano records are so perfect that you would declare there was a piano in the room if you did not see the phonograph. The violin sounds like a real violin, with all the quality and timbre of that king of musical instruments. And the voice—well, all we can say is, "The artist is standing right there, a living, breathing reality, singing right to you and for you at your command."

In our re-creation of a full orchestra every instrument is so faithfully developed your ear will distinguish each instrument separately.

Do you want any more than this? No description can be given which in any way compares with the comprehension that comes from actually hearing the New Edison.

BITRO-PHOSPHATE BEST THING FOR THIN PEOPLE

Women Need It to Bring Pink Glow of Health to Pale Cheeks and Forestall Tell-Tale Lines of Age. Men Need It to Make Strong, Healthy Bodies and Steady Nerves.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by Judge & Dolph, Enderle Drug Stores, Johnson Bros., Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

The thin, scrawny girl becomes convinced that Bitro-Phosphate is what she needs.

Clinical tests made in St. Catherine's Hospital, N. Y. C., showed that two patients gained in weight 23 and 27 pounds, respectively, through the administration of this organic phosphate; both patients claim they have not felt as strong and well for the past twelve years.

Our soldiers always pick out the plump, rosy-cheeked girls.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

Physicians and hospitals everywhere are now recognizing its merits by its use in ever increasing quantities. Frederick Kolle, M. D., editor of New York Physicians' "Who's Who," says: "Bitro-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital to increase strength and nerve force and to enrich the blood."

At the seaside too, the plump well-rounded figure is most admired.

Miss Josephine Davis, reporting her own experience with bitro-phosphate, says: "It is remarkable what it did for me. After a few days I began to regain my strength, felt full of life, was able to sleep soundly and all my little troubles seemed to disappear. I gained twelve pounds in four weeks."

Joseph D. Harrigan, former Visiting Specialist to North Eastern Dispensatory, says: "Let those who are weak, thin, nervous, anaemic, or run-down, take a natural, unadulterated substance such as bitro-phosphate and you will soon see some astonishing results in the increase of nerve energy, strength of body and mind and power of endurance."

CAUTION:—Although Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, owing to its remarkable flesh growing properties it should not be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

SERATHOL FOR INDIGESTION

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE

Owing to the great variety of stomach ailments and the hundred and one "specifics" for their treatment, it would indeed be a mere chance if the average layman selected a remedy for his own case that would give substantial and lasting benefits; even granting that the selected remedy possessed real merit when administered for a specific condition. It is therefore not surprising to find the sufferer from stomach irregularities buying and trying first one "cure," then another in a vain endeavor to obtain relief.

Recent investigation of the treatment of a large number of cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and conditions arising from hyper-acidity of the stomach prove that there is nothing more effective in the treatment of these ailments than ordinary serathol, which can be obtained from Judge & Dolph, Enderle Drug Stores, Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., or any good druggist at trifling cost. Many a sufferer from these complaints has been agreeably surprised at the almost instantaneous relief and subsequent permanent benefit from its use. In many cases of hyper-acidity a single dose of serathol produces almost magic effects.—ADVERTISEMENT.

New Scruggs School Opened.

The Richard M. Scruggs public school, Grand avenue and Neosho street, was formally opened Friday night by members of the Board of Education and the Parents' Association. More than 1500 persons attended. The school cost $300,000, and adjoins a playground donated to the city by the estate of the late Richard M. Scruggs, for whom the school was named. A silk flag was presented to the school by members of the Hassendeubel Post, G. A. R.

Women Find Clear Skin In Simple Laxative

A sense of false modesty often prevents women from admitting that many of her ills and disorders are due primarily to constipation.

But women who know themselves have learned that headache remedies and beautifiers only cover the trouble but do not dislodge it.

What is needed is a remedy to move the bowels and stir up the torpid liver. An ever-increasing number of sensible women take a small dose of a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and sold by druggists under that name.

It will save a woman from the habitual use of headache remedies, skin lotions and similar makeshifts. Once the bowels are emptied and regulated, the headache and the pimples and blotches disappear. It is the rational, natural method.

A bottle of Syrup Pepsin lasts a family a long time, and all will find use for it from time to time. Thoughtful people are never without it in the house.

The druggist will refund your money if it fails to do as promised.

PRICE AS ALWAYS

In spite of greatly increased laboratory costs due to the War, by sacrificing profits and absorbing war taxes we have maintained the price at which this family laxative has been sold by druggists for the past 26 years. Two sizes—50c and $1.00.

Dr. Caldwell's SYRUP PEPSIN The Perfect Laxative

FREE SAMPLES—If you have never used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin send for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 468 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. If there are babies at home, ask for a copy of Dr. Caldwell's book, "The Care of Baby."

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses, and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time, and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start, and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist, and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in St. Louis by Enderle, Johnson Bros., Pauley, Judge & Dolph, Wolff-Wilson and other drug stores.—ADVERTISEMENT.

POLITICAL LINEUPS FOR 1920 UNDER WAY

Possible Candidates for Senator and Governor Are Being Discussed in Jefferson City.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 22.—A political visit to the capital this week of Daniel G. Taylor of St. Louis has served to arouse interest in the next State campaign, even at this early date, and to begin the lining up of supporters for various candidates.

Taylor, without committing himself to any candidate for the United States senatorship to succeed Senator Spencer, though he is known to be particularly close to Harry B. Hawes, has canvassed the situation carefully, having had several conferences with Gov. Gardner.

Hawes is almost certain to get into the race for the Democratic nomination for Senator, though close friends and supporters of Hawes say that he fails to realize the handicap he will have to overcome in rural districts because of his long business association wtih the Anheuser-Busch Brewery interests, the failure of his good roads law to build roads, and his political history in St. Louis prior to the Folk reform days.

There is a growing impression here that Gov. Gardner will not seek the senatorship, though there is a feeling that all of his better judgment is being required to bring him to the decision. His close friends are known to be looking to other candidates they might support.

Breckinridge Long.

In this connection Breckinridge Long, Third Assistant Secretary of State, was in Jefferson City not long ago for a day or two, looking over the field. Long's friends say he wants to succeed Spencer, and the "regular" politicians are looking forward to a campaign by Long soon. Long is wealthy.

Long, whose acquaintance was largely confined to St. Louis until the Wilson campaigns, has developed into a politician of no mean ability in Washington, and reports continually are reaching the capital that there are hundreds of Missourians of prominence in all parts of the State who are under personal obligations to him.

He is not popular with the Missourians in Washington, Senator Reed, Congressman Igoe, Champ Clark and others, though the reason is not exactly clear. In some quarters it is attributed to his failure, as official entertainer of the Wilson administration, to invite them to big state dinners given foreign dignitares.

Former Gov. Folk, notwithstanding his poor showing in the race against Spencer, is still figured a contender for the nomination again. He has told friends that the liquor question has ceased to be a political issue in Missouri and that he sees no reason why the liquor interest should continue to oppose him.

There has been little talk so far of the probable entrants in the race for the Democratic nomination for Governor. Lieutenant-Governor Crossley, John M. Atkinson of St. Louis, Mayor Cowgill of Kansas City and Mayor Whitsell of St. Joseph are being most frequently discussed, but political workers are shying away from all of them, waiting to see if there will not be somebody in the race they prefer.

Attitude of Republicans.

The attitude of the Republicans is really causing more comment than the Democratic situation, the closeness of the vote last fall leading the Republicans to believe that, with Spencer as the candidate for Senator, they can elect the State ticket in 1920.

E. E. E. McJimsey of Springfield already has said he would seek the nomination for Governor, but there is a movement to sidetrack him and select a candidate who has been free from party faction alliances. At present this element of the party is turning toward Senator Howard Gray of Carthage as a likely leader.

Gray has served as a Judge of the Springfield Court of Appeals. He has practiced law in Jasper County for many years and served once before in the State Senate. He has a wide acquaintance and has kept out of party fights.

There is no indication so far as to how the Republican leaders in St. Louis would look upon Gray, though from a standpoint of practical policy they must accept a candidate from the country.

The political lineups for the 1920 campaign are being made now, and it is probable that by the close of the legislative session in May it will be definitely known who the candidates will be.

NO ONE IN MILLSTADT, ILL., WANTS TO BE ITS MAYOR

Prospects Look Gloomy but Don't Let the Town Die, Editor There Says.

The candidate for office is a disappearing species in Millstadt, Ill., where no one has offered himself for the mayoralty nomination in the time required for filing before the primary. F. F. Dedītius is the only person who has filed for the Village Board. The editor of the Millstadt Enterprise has the following lament:

"Prospects look somewhat gloomy, but there is no reason to lie down and let the town die. With a depleted treasury and the loss of the saloon revenue confronting the new board it will take some financiering to keep up necessary improvements, meet the pay roll, etc. Wake up before it is too late and keep Millstadt on the map as one of the cleanest little towns in the State."

TRANSPORT'S OFFICER INJURED

Lieutenant-Commander Suffers Broken Arm Rescuing Men Already Hurt.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—The transport Orizaba, which arrived from France today reported encountering high winds and heavy seas. Three of her crew, including Lieutenant-Commander L. A. Babcock, were injured in attempting to adjust the anchor chains loosened by the storm. A wave, estimated at 50 feet in height, washed over the decks and pinned them in the hoisting machinery. They were knocked unconscious.

A rescue party headed by Bigelow succeeded in carying them to the ship's sick bay. Babcock suffered a broken arm and severe wounds about the head and body.

30 OF 89TH AND 35TH DIVISIONS HOME FROM FRONT

Men Returned Mainly Wounded Who Were Sent to an Iowa Hospital to Convalesce.

89TH'S INSIGNIA HERE FIRST TIME

Some of Party Wounded or Gassed in the Argonne, Around St. Mihiel and Near Verdun.

The smiles and handclasps of relatives and the familiar sights in the vicinity of Union Station certainly looked good to 30 St. Louisans who arrived in the city yesterday morning from an army hospital at Camp Dodge, Io., where they had been convalescing since their return from battlefields in France. Most of them wore wound chevrons, having either been gassed or hit by machine gun bullets or shrapnel. They fought with the Thirty-fifth Division, trained at Camp Doniphan, and with the Eighty-ninth Division, trained at Camp Funston.

The insignia of the Eighty-ninth Division was seen in St. Louis for the first time when yesterday's arrivals stepped from the train. It is a circular band with a black border surrounding a cut-out monogram of the initials M and W standing for Middle-West, on a field of blue. It is worn on the left shoulder.

After receiving a warm welcome from a large gathering of relatives, mostly women, who had waited an hour and a half for a late train, the soldiers were hurried to their homes.

Among those wso served with the Thirty-fifth Division were the following:

35th Division Men in Party.

Corp. Frank Foerstel, 8554 Oriole avenue, who was with I Company, 138th Infantry. "I wasn't hit in the Argonne fighting," he said, "but I got an awful dose of gas. I came to in Base Hospital No. 30. I'm certainly glad to be back in good old St. Louis."

Raymond F. Hoelscher, 2629 South Eleventh street, 138th Infantry: "The 'flu' came near getting me after I had been gassed. I feel pretty good now, and I'm glad to be back home."

Thomas Sweeney, 4204 West Pine boulevard, Headquarters Company, 138th Infantry, gassed in the Argonne.

Sergt. James J. Carroll, 3739 Cote Brilliante avenue, 110th Ammunition Train, hit in the back by a fragment of high explosive shell in the Argonne.

Corp. Don Scism, 718 Kansas street, M Company, 138th Infantry, gassed in the Argonne.

J. J. Daly, 2244 Cass avenue, C Battery, 128th (St. Louis) Field Artillery, gassed in the Argonne.

Corp. Edgar B. Wilke, 3820 Sullivan avenue, C Battery, 128th Artillery, hit by shrapnel in the Argonne.

Eighty-Ninth Division Men.

Among the returning members of the Eighty-ninth Division were the following:

Herbert C. Hargate, 2106 McCausland avenue, G Company 354th Infantry, one of 20 members of his company who were gassed the first day of the Argonne.

Sergt. Allen Keen, 4243 North Broadway, B Company, 356th Infantry, struck in the leg and foot by bits of a high-sxplosive shell in the St. Mihiel fighting.

Corp. R. E. Dietzschold, 3426 Tennessee avenue, B Company, 356th Infantry, wounded in the shoulder by a machine-gun bullet, Sept. 23, five days after he had been gassed.

George Stobie, 1468 Belt avenue, C Company, 354th Infantry, wounded in the left arm by a machine-gun bullet, Nov. 1, in the Verdun sector.

Edward Krammnacker, 618 Sidney street, G Company, 354th Infantry, gassed and one of his legs severely burned in the Argonne, Oct. 27.

Herbert C. Erlinger, 5860 Cote Brilliante avenue, B Company, 354th Infantry, gassed at Flarery.

Corp. Otto J. Witte, 1703 South Tenth street, G Company, 354th Infantry, gassed in the St. Mihiel sector.

E. J. Fowler, 1100 Mississippi avenue, B Company, 354th Infantry, hit by machine-gun bullet; Edward Detsch, Union, Mo., G Company, 354th Infantry, gassed while in the St. Mihiel sector; Walter Hamilton, Ziegler, Ill., medical staff, 354th Infantry, gassed while in the St. Mihiel sector, and Corp. Henry Huffman, Bessville, Mo., B Company, 354th Infantry, gassed at St. Mihiel.

CHURCH CORNERSTONE LAYING

Copy of Post-Dispatch Will Be Put Into Foundation Today.

The Cornerston of the new Christ Evangelical Church, Bellevue and Bruno avenue, will be laid at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. A copy of today's Post-Dispatch will be placed in it. The church, when completed will cost $25,000. For the present, only the basement will be finished.

The church has 300 communicants and a Sunday school with 200 members. The Rev. J. W. Varwig is pastor.

Recommend Call for Pastor.

The Official Board of the Second Presbyterian Church, Eleventh and Tyler streets, has recommended that the Rev. Ralph Edward Alexander be asked to accept the pastorate of the church for a period of four months. The congregation will act on the recommendation this evening. Alexander was formerly pastor of this church and preached there last Sunday after an absence of seven years.

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! how good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffling, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.—ADV.

RUB RHEUMATISM PAINS RIGHT AWAY

Don't Suffer!, Relief Comes the Moment you Apply St. Jacobs Liniment.

Stop "dosing" Rheumatism.

It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacob's Liniment" right on the "tender spot" and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain and distress. St. Jacob's Liniment conquers pain. It is a harmless local rheumatism cure which never disappoints and doesn't burn or discolor the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from the aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache, neuralgia and reduces swelling.

Limber up. Get a small trial bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacob's Liniment" from any drug store, and in a moment you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness.—ADV.

GERMAN COLONY WANTS TO BE IN THE UNITED STATES

If Not That Would Be Satisfied to Be Under America's Guardianship.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PRAGUE, Feb. 21.—Gottschee wants to be part of the United States. This ancient German colony is northeast of Fiume and in the midst now of Jugo Slavia.

Out of the 30,000 persons, 7000 have been in America, and nearly everybody knows English and half speak German with an American accent. It has been there in the mountain basin since the fourteenth century, until recently under the Dukes of Augsberg.

Gottschee has sent a delegation under Prof. Victor Renner, which visited the American mission in Vienna and seriously put before it a project to include Gottschee within the boundaries of the United States. If not, it wants to be a republic like San Marino, but under American protection.

1365 OUT OF 2962 NAMES REJECTED IN RECALL CHECK

If Over 19 Per Cent of the 41,665 Signatures Filed Are Turned Down Election Cannot Be Held April 1.

SUPPLEMENTAL LISTS WOULD BE CIRCULATED

Election Board Refuses to Supply Names Held Not to Be Genuine, for Purpose of Investigation.

Clerks of the Election Board working last night until midnight on the checking of signatures to the petitions for the recall of Mayor Kiel handled nearly 300 of the 1257 petitions filed, but announced final figures on only 100. For these 100, in a total of 2962 signatures, 1597 were certified as "good" and 1365 as "bad." This is 46 per cent of rejections.

Mayor Kiel's mill tax and franchise agreement with the United Railways Co. was the occasion of the recall movement. The petitions were filed Wednesday night by the Civic League and the Citizens' Referendum League, which desire to bring the recall question to a vote at the regular city election April 1.

The total number of signatures claimed by the two leagues is 41,655. The smallest requisite number, by the Election Board's estimate, to bring about an election under the Charter provisions, is 33,469. This leaves a margin of 8196 names, or 19 per cent of the whole number claimed. Therefore, if more than 19 per cent of all the signatures are rejected, the petitions will be found insufficient to call for an election April 1. They can be supplemented, in a period of 20 days, and if enough signatures are obtained then, a special election will be called later.

Grounds for Rejections.

There are five grounds for rejecting signatures on the recall petitions. First, that the name does not appear on the registration books; second, that the handwriting is dissimilar to that on the books; third, that no address is given; fourth, illegibility, and fifth, duplication. No classified figures, showing the causes of rejection of the 1365 signatures on the first 100 petitions, were given out, but such figures were given out yesterday afternoon on the first 40 petitions These figures were:

Total signatures, 1159; "good," 633; bad, 526, or 45 per cent. Classification of "bad" signatures, 383 not registered, 100 dissimilar handwriting; 24 no address, 12 illegible, 7 duplications.

A more liberal rule was adopted yesterday as to the matter of handwriting, the board deciding that checkers should not reject signatures on this ground unless they are "absolutely positive that the two names were not written by the same man." This is expected to reduce the number of rejections from this cause However, the rejections for other causes than handwriting, in these 40 lists, were 37 per cent of all the signatures.

Clerks worked yesterday, a legal holiday, from 7 to 5 p. m., with a lunch hour; and a second shift from 5 p. m. to midnight, with no lunch time. The same hours will be kept today, and the extra force of clerks now numbers about 300, at $4 a day.

Schmoll Talks of Inquiry.

Chairman Schmoll of the Republican City Committee was active in the Election Board office, and he said last night that, as a result of information he had obtained, he expected to ask the grand jury to investigate the methods of some of the circulators of recall petitions. He mentioned that one petition showed an entire sheet of names in the same handwriting, and that the addresses, which were in the Sixth Ward, began with a number from the first precinct, then continued with more from the second precinct, and ended with a group all of which were in the third precinct. This petition was shown to a Post-Dispatch reporter. In some cases, he said, out of 50 names, 41, 44 and even 49 were found not to be those of registered voters.

The Post-Dispatch asked the Election Board yesterday morning, for a list of 100 names and addresses which had been rejected by the checkers as not genuine. The purpose was to make a direct investigation as to whether these rejected names were those of genuine and qualified signers of the recall petitions.

The board refused the request, and it was understood that the vote was 3 to 1, only Chairman Arnold, Democrat, favoring the granting of the request. Commissioner Vincent Dempsey, Republican, said last night that he was not opposed to the proposal, but that he thought another list of 100 accepted signatures should also be investigated, to see whether

138th (St. Louis) Regiment a "Great Outfit," Declares Gen. Traub

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.

At the conclusion of his testimony before the Senate Military Affairs Committee this afternoon, Major General Peter E. Traub, who commanded the 35th Division in the Argonne, was asked whether he remembered the St. Louis troops.

"Sure, I do," he replied with emphasis. "They took Cheppy. I believe they captured 300 prisoners there. Colonel Howland had that regiment—the 138th. It was a great outfit. If you want to know what I think of them, look at the citations for bravery. They tell a magnificent story.

"St. Louis has every reason to be proud of the 138th."

General Traub expressed his willingness to go before the Missouri Legislature and tell the story of the Battle of the Argonne if invited to do so.

"There has been much irresponsible talk," he said. "I want the mothers and fathers of Missouri and Kansas to know that their sick and wounded boys received the best care possible. I want them to know that the dead have not died in vain."

9 KILLED; 75 HURT, IN B. & O. TRAIN WRECK AT PITTSBURG

Double-Header Locomotive Hit by Passenger Train.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 22.—Nine persons are known to have been killed and 75 others injured, many fatally, when a Baltimore & Ohio railroad passenger train crashed into a double-header locomotive here tonight. The accident occured shortly after nine o'clock and, at midnight, police, firemen, railroad men and private citizens were still at work on the debris in an effort to bring out any bodies pinned in the wreckage.

Steel mill workers in the vicinity, heard the crash. They dropped their work, rushed to the scene and dragged many bodies from the mass of the twisted wreckage. All ambulances of the city were called, doctors and nurses rushed to the scene and an alarm of fire was turned in bringing firemen who helped in the work of rescue. All the victims of the accident resided in and about Pittsburg, many of them coming from the city of McKeesport, near here.

DEATH FROM FREEZING HELD BY JURY TO BE AN ACCIDENT

Widow of Traveling Salesman Awarded Judgment on Insurance Policy in Edwardsville Court.

Freezing to death is an accident, in the opinion of a Circuit Court jury which, yesterday, at Edwardsville, returned a verdict for $5429.15 in favor of Mrs. Mary Dement of St. Louis against the Illinois Traveling Men's Health Association of Chicago. This was the full amount sued for on a $5000 policy, and interest from January, 1917.

Mrs. Dement's husband, Thomas P. Dement, was a traveling salesman He took out the accident policy in August, 1916. In the following January he was caught in a blizzard while making a 30-mile drive in Montana. The party managed to make Glasgow, but Dement died in a hotel there within a few hours. Payment of the policy was resisted.

It was brought out at the trial that no such case has been passed upon in the United States, but a similar instance was found in the Canadian reports. In that one judgment was given for the heirs of the policyholder. A similar case, involving a like amount, is pending between Mrs. Dement and the Illinois Commercial Men's Association.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Tambourines and free-will offering boxes which for more than 35 years have been used by the Salvation Army in gathering funds are to be abandoned, according to a statement issued here today by Commander Evangeline Booth in announcing plans for a "drive" for $10,000,000 next May.

'LONG LIVE THE AMERICAN SOLDIER,' PERSHING'S TOAST

"No Better in World," He Declares at Washington Birthday Luncheon at Paris.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—Gen. Pershing, Herbert Hoover, Ambassador William G. Sharp and Admiral William S. Benson, were speakers today at the annual luncheon in honor of Washington's birthday, given by the American Club of Paris at the Palais d'Orsay.

Responding to the toast to the American army, Gen. Pershing expressed his thanks to the American people for the support they had given to the expeditionary forces.

"Whether keeping lonely vigil in the trenches, whether attacking machine-gun nests or performing the drudgery of the rear or supplying the front lines, each man has done his duty," said Gen. Pershing, "and he has felt that he had behind him the support of the whole country. By his courage, indomitable will, his splendid organization and his tenacity, the American soldier has turned impending defeat into overwhelming victory. I drink to the American soldier, than whom there is no better in the world today. Long live the American soldier!"

Admiral Benson, replying to the toast to the navy, said, in humorous vein, that the navy had also performed its duty, but desired to be modest about it. He recalled the fact that Gen. Pershing before joining the army, was a midshipman, adding: "It is a good thing for us that he has since left the navy."

Admiral Benson's allusion to Pershing as having been a midshipman is puzzling. Authentic records of Pershing's life, including the official biography in "Who's Who," the data for which Gen. Pershing himself supplied, contain no mention of it. Pershing was appointed to West Point in 1882 when he was 22 years old and was graduated in 1886, when he was commissioned immediately a Second Lieutenant in the U. S. cavalry. He has been in the army since. He was graduated from the Kirksville (Mo.) Normal School in 1880 and it is recorded that he taught in country schools until he won his West Point cadetship two years later.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY DINNER ON THE RHINE

Seven French Generals Are Guests of Gen. Dickman; Army of Occupation Observes Holiday.

By the Associated Press.

COBLENZ, Feb. 22. — Seven French Generals were the guests of Major-General Joseph T. Dickman this evening at a Washington's birthday dinner in the mansion on the Rhine, where dwells the commander of the American Army of Occupation.

The Generals arrived in automobiles early in the afternoon and returned to Mayence in the evening.

Washington's birthday was observed by the American forces throughout the occupied zone. Work at the various headquarters ceased at midday and the afternoon was devoted to sports and other forms of recreation.

'BEST LOOKING MEN IN FRANCE' UNDER TRAUB'S COMMAND

Pershing's Comment on Missourians and Kansans When He Gave Former Command of 35th.

"I FOUND THEM SO," SENATE IS TOLD

General Traub Retells His Story of Argonne Battle; Martin's Remark Termed "Unworthy."

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Gen. Pershing said of the Missouri and Kansas troops forming the Thirty-fifth Division: "Without any disparagement of any other division, I consider the Kansas and Missouri troops the best-looking men that I've got in France."

It was with these words, said Major-General Peter E. Traub this afternoon, that Gen. Pershing gave him the command of the Thirty-fifth Division on July 20. "And I found them so," Gen. Traub added.

The General was testifying before the Senate Military Affairs Committee, telling again the story of the battle of the Argonne forest. Much that he said was a repetition of his narrative before the House Rules Committee the other day, but several new features were developed by questions from the committee members. The most interested was Senator Warren, father-in-law of Gen. Pershing.

Gen. Traub at one point in his testimony paid his own tribute to the Thirty-fifth Division, as he did before the House committee, but with even greater emphasis.

"Senators," he said, earnestly, "I never commanded a finer body of men and I never expect to."

Criticism of Attitude.

It was suggested to him by some members that there had been much criticism of the attitude of the regular army toward the guardsmen.

"I have commanded New England troops," he said, referring to his experience with the Twenty-sixth Division. "I have commanded troops from the Central States and I have just come home with the Sunset Division. There is not a general officer that has had the experience that I've had with the National Guard. I take off my hat to these American soldiers."

Replying to questions, Gen. Traub said that he had not had a chance to form an estimate of the National Guard before the war.

"But you have a high opinion of them now:" he was asked. "You bet your life."

"How about the drafted men?" asked Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the committee. "They were wonderful," he replied.

As to Brigadier-General Martin.

Gen. Traub said that he wanted to give the committee "the right idea" about his action in relieving Brigadier-General Martin of his command just before the Argonne battle, since Martin, "by inuendo," had told the committee that he had been displaced to make way for a regular army man. That remark, commented the General, was "unworthy" of Martin. He explained that at the same time that Martin was relieved he also sent away from the firing line three regular army Colonels and one regular army Brigadier.

"Only one thing guided me," he told the committee. "That was consideration for the success of our arms—the sacredness of our cause. My judgment told me that these men should not be there with fighting troops.

"I notice that Martin says that I had seen him only five times. Well, as a Major-General I had a great many ways of finding out things. And the greatest test, of course, was results. For 10 months I commanded a brigade and I feel that I can size up what a brigade should be.

"Sure Am a Friend of Theirs."

"In all my 17 months' experience with National Guard troops I was directly responsible for the relief of only three officers. I ask you to get any of the 3000 National Guard officers that I have commanded or any of the 50,000 to 60,000 men and ask them what they think of Gen. Traub. There's not a one but will kiss the Book and say that I'm a fair and square and sympathetic helper. I sure am a friend of theirs.

"Take the Thirty-fifth Division alone. I relieved four regular officers and one of the National Guard. And when a man was entitled to promotion he got it. After the battle of the Argonne I had Lieutenant-Colonel Ristine promoted to Colonel."

Why Our Army Won.

The American army succeeded, according to Gen. Traub, because it knew how to use the rifle and the bayonet.

"The commander of the A. E. F.," he said, "with his wonderful foresight in handling troops, never lost

HOW 19 MEN IN 30 HOURS BUILT PLAN FOR LEAGUE

Inner Workings of the Commission of Peace Conference Which Prepared Important Document.

STATESMEN SAT AT A BIG RED TABLE

Nobody Looked at the Clock; Interpreters Behind the Commissioners Translated Remarks.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—For the first time the veil which has concealed the inner workings of the commission of the peace conference which prepared the plan of the league of nations has been lifted. It is now possible to disclose at least some of the facts connected with the achievement by which 19 men in 30 working hours wrought the plan, which, if their expectations are realized, is to prevent furture warfare.

The scene was in room 351 of the Hotel de Crillon, Mr. House's workshop. Around a big red table sat 19 members of the commission, and behind them were seated translators, secretaries and experts.

In this room the commission met 10 times in 11 days. The hours were irregular, as most of the commissioners were obliged frequently to interrupt the special work to attend meetings of other commissions. No time was set for the sessions or for the termination of the day's work. Time was a secondary consideration and nobody looked at the clock.

At the outset the task was cut in half by dispensing with the tedious process of retranslation. Instead, interpreters sat close behind the commissioners and in low tones translated the remarks of the speakers word by word. Much time was also saved by preparatory work, each statesman coming to the conference with well-formulated and definite ideas regarding the league of nations, as a result of many private conferences which had been held between them from the time President Wilson landed in France.

Meetings Businesslike.

The meetings were businesslike to a degree. The members met on the hour, greeting each other politely but shortly; took their documents out of their portfolios and proceeded immediately with the next article. Before each was revised, a copy of the preceding day's record, as well as of all new papers relating to the subjects likely to come before them, was distributed. The members proposing amendments had them typewritten and they were handed to their colleagues in advance, to insure quick action.

Extreme simplicity prevailed. Diplomatic dress disappeared with the diplomacy of the past. Business suits were worn. The members went about the matter in a commonplace way. There were no orations, no spinning out of technical points. Plain speaking prevailed. Stenographic reports were barred, to restrain oratory, and to encouage the reticent.

Wilson Presided.

President Wilson presided at all the meetings, except one. When some of the members looked far into the future, he brought them back to the thing in hand with the remark:

"Gentlemen—I have no doubt that the next generation will be made up of men as intelligent as you or I, and I think we can trust the league to manage its own affairs."

The first meeting on Feb. 1, was very brief. The President spoke a few words and presented a draft of the plan, which the commissioners agreed to use as the basis of discussion. Day after day this was criticized and amplified, and on Feb. 12, at the eighth meeting, the first reading was completed.

Though the project emerged unchanged in principle, many amendments were pending. A drafting committee attended to this, and the American soldiers who set the type, corrected the proofs and ran the press which turned out the final draft, will treasure the letter of thanks which the President sent to them before he sailed.

"Our Work Is Done."

The final meeting on Feb. 13 had a dramatic finish in its simplicity. The President was attending a meeting of the Supreme Council and Lord Robert Cecil presided over the commission. The remaining articles were passed upon. At 7:20 in the evening Lord Robert read the twenty-sixth and last article and quietly remarked:

"Is there any objection to this article?"

He waited a moment and added: "If not, it is adopted. Gentlemen, our work is done. The President of the United States will report our conclusions to the plenary session of the conference tomorrow."

The commissions then left the room.

Great Welcome Awaits You, Daniels Phones President

Secretary Speaks to Ship Carrying Wilson When It Is 800 Miles at Sea—Vessel Making Good Time.

By Wireless to the Associated Press.

ON BOARD THE U. S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The George Washington at noon today was only 500 miles from Boston, and making such good time that she probably will anchor some time late Sunday night.

The presidential party will remain aboard, however, not landing until Monday forenoon after breakfast, and in time to get into the city about noon.

The President has not prepared his Boston speech in advance, and it seems assured that he will speak very briefly.

Today was given over aboard ship to the celebration of Washington's birthday. At noon a presidential salute of 21 guns was fired in honor of the first President, for which the President and all his party came on deck. They remained to witness the sailors' sports, of which there were many.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Secretary Daniels transmitted a telephonic greeting to President Wilson today by naval radio. From his desk at the Navy Department the Secretary's voice was carried to the transport George Washington, nearly 800 miles off the Atlantic coast.

As the George Washington is not equipped for long-distance radio telephone transmission, Secretary Daniels talked without receiving a direct reply and acknowledgment of the greeting came by ordinary radio.

Daniels opened his message by stating that it was the Secretary of the Navy talking and that the message was for the President. Whether Mr. Wilson was personally at the receiving instrument on the ship did not develop here. The Secretary said that a great welcome awaited the President in Boston, and again in Washington. He told how Mayor Peters of Boston and Admiral Wood had made arrangements to have naval vessels and aircraft meet the George Washington, and while ashore there would be an escort of troops. Daniels repeated his sentence several times to make sure that he was understood.

"Good-by," the Secretary said into the instrument, "I will see you Tuesday; good-by."

Preparations in Boston for Receiving President.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Feb. 22.—President Wilson, who is coming here Monday to deliver his first address on his return from France, will leave for Washington by special train in the afternoon. A radio message from the President's steamer, the George Washington, to Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood, commandant of the first naval district, today conveyed this information.

At the request of the President, Secretary Tumulty came here today to arrange for an earlier meeting Monday than had been planned so that President Wilson's special train may leave at 4:30 p. m. As now proposed, the meeting will start at 2:30 p. m.

Secreatry Tumulty brought with him from Washington the engrossed copy of the $6,000,000,000 war revenue bill, which will be submitted to the President for signature when he reaches his hotel.

Church Messagee to Wilson Welcoming Him Home.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—A wireless message welcoming President Wilson home and assuring him of its support in his effort for establishment of a League of Nations was sent to him on the transport George Washington tonight by the general war time commission of the churches, representing the war work organizations of 24 large denominations.

GOSSIP THAT REED WILL BE CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT

"Sole Concern Is Trying to Save Country From League of Nations," He Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The outbreak of applause that followed Senator Reed's speech in the Senate this afternoon on the league of nations gave emphasis to insistent gossip heard at the capital during the last few days, that Reed will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President. When the remark was made to Reed this afternoon that some of his friends were already running him for the presidency, he replied:

"My sole concern now is in trying to save the country from what I consider the greatest menace it has ever faced—this proposed league of nations."

Copies of Reed's speech against the league, delivered some time ago, have been distributed broadcast by persons interested in the fight.

In connection with Reed and the presidency, it is pointed out that the Missouri Senator would probably have the support of William R. Hearst, whom he recently defended against the attacks of Deputy Attorney-General Becker of New York before the Senate Propaganda Investigating Committee. Hearst, it is said, is preparing to switch from Champ Clark to Reed.

Official forecast for St. Louis and vicinity: Fair today, becoming unsettled tomorrow; not much change in temperature.

Missouri—Probably fair today.

The heaviest snowfall of the present so-called winter occurred yesterday. It was wet snow, and it disappeared rapidly on downtown streets, but formed slush in the gutters of residence streets. the children early in the day had some hopes of coasting, but these disappeared with the rapid melting of the snow. However, it was first-class material for snowballs and snow forts, and for a few hours the local battle fronts were many. The greatest depth of the snowfall was less than 2 inches.

'WHAT IS YOUR PLAN?' CECIL ASKS CRITICS

"Content to Go on With Pre-War System?" He Asks, Discussing Nations League.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Lord Robert Cecil, in an interview with Reuters' limited, before his return to Paris to attenAd the sessions of the peace conference, admitted that it was absurd to suggest that the mere signing of the league of nations covenant would then and there produce a millenium, but, if given a fair chance, he said, it would certainly produce a better international atmosphere.

"If you can get it into the heads of those who direct the affairs of nations that war is the worst possible way of settling international disputes, you will have made a great advance," he continued. "Once you have impressed the world with the fact that war is stupid—stupid and barbarous—you will have gone far to create the feeling of security that will render disarmament possible.

"The unanimity of the conference makes it certain that the league will be established as soon as the peace preliminaries are signed. The league will comprise not only the allies, but all neutral nations with a stable government that care to join it. Almost everything except the seat of the league has been decided, and no difficulty need be anticipated regarding the fact that the decisions of the league will, generally speaking, only be binding if unanimously arrived at.

"The excluding of parties directly concerned in any dispute will be enforced by the whole economic and military power of each of the nations of the league and a permanent naval and military commission will be established to advise the league.

"The league is an eminently practical scheme that will minimize the danger of a repetition of what we endured during the past four and one-half years. It is easy to criticise the proposals made. They are avowedly and properly tentative. But let the critics answer these questions:

"What is their plan? Are they content to go on with the pre-war system? Are they content to run the risk of a renewal of the world war under still more terrible conditions, involving the destruction of the whole fabric of civilization."

BODY IN BASEMENT OF CHURCH

Sister Disappeared From Michigan Convent 11 Years Ago.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich., Feb. 22.—A Catholic priest is being sought by officers of Leelanau County, in connection with the death of Sister Mary Johns, who disappeared mysteriously from the convent at Isadore, near here, 11 years ago. The body of Sister Mary, it is claimed, has just been recovered.

Sister Mary Johns' body, it is asserted, has been exhumed in the basement of the Isadore Church.

State of Siege Reported Proclaimed in Munich When Pillaging Results From the Wounding of Cabinet Members and Killing of Premier.

CAVALRY FIRES ON AUGSBURG CROWDS

Slayer of Eisner Said to Have Been Lynched; Bavaria Reported to Have Been Declared a Soviet Republic.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—Bavaria last night was declared a Soviet republic by the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council in Munich, the Vossische Zeitung todays says.

A telephone message from Munich received here today says that evidence has been gathered by the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council to the effect that the assassin of Kurt Eisner was acting in behalf of a secret organization of officers and aristocrats. The Minister of War, Herr Rosshaupter, who was reported wounded during the shooting in the Diet and afterwards placed under arrest by the Spartacans, has been released.

The Majority Socialists, Independents and Spartacans, the advices say, have formed a coalition government, which is headed by a central council of 11. The new government has not yet officially communicated with Weimar. The Bavarian Soldiers' Workmen's and Peasants' Soviet has been declared dissolved.

State of Siege Reported Proclaimed in Munich.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 22.—A state of siege has been proclaimed in Munich, according to dispatches from Berlin, under date of Feb 21, quoting advices from the Bavarian capital. A committee of action has been formed from the three Socialist parties, including the communists and the executives of the Workers', peasants', and soldiers' councils. The cabinet will meet to deal with the formation of a new ministry.

A state of siege has been proclaimed at Augsburg, Bavaria, says a dispatch from Berlin. There was a great demonstration accompanied by disturbances at Augsburg last evening and light cavalry and sailors repeatedly cleared the streets, firing volleys into the crowds.

A telegram from Munich, received today by way of Berlin, says the report of an outbreak of civil war there is unfounded. A general strike has been proclaimed for three days, but the strikers "are behaving quietly," the dispatch says. Kurt Eisner, the late Premier, will be buried Wednesday.

Count Who Killed Eisner Said to Have Been Lynched.

By the Associated Press.

MUNICH, Friday, Feb. 21.—Count Arco-Valley, the young student who shot and killed Premier Eisner, was lynched by a crowd.

Previous reports of the assassination of Premier Eisner have been that Count Arco-Valley was shot and wounded by a naval guard who accompanied the premier. A report received in London through Berlin said that the young count had died of his wounds.

Situation in Munich Takes More Serious Turn.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The troubles in Munich, following the assassination of Kurt Eisner, the Premier, and the shooting of other Ministers, took a still more serious turn yesterday afternoon, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. Church bells began ringing, 10,000 workmen from the suburbs marched into the center of the city and a short time later violent firing was heard, it is said. The mob is reported to have begun plundering shops.

The reports received from this source state that the dictatorship of the workmen will be proclaimed and predict that the killing of Premier Eisner will be avenged in a most frightful manner. Automobiles filled with armed Spartacans are reported rushing through the streets of Munich.

The advices state that Herr Rosshaupter, the Minister of War, was not killed (as reports from Weimar had stated), but was wounded during the shooting in the Diet and afterward placed under arrest by the Spartacans.

Prince Joachim, youngest son of former Emperor William, is said,

SUPREME COUNCIL PLANS TO SPEED UP PEACE WORK

Reviews Progress of Commission in Order to Decide on Steps to Accelerate All Work.

COMPLETING TERMS OF MILITARY TREATY

Document a Permanent Armistice; Friction in the Special Labor Commission.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—The supreme council of the peace conference, at its session today rievewed the methods of work employed by the commissions which have been intrusted with investigating the different territorial, economical, financial and judicial problems, in order to decide on the proper steps which should be taken to accelerate as much as possible the work of the peace conference.

Serious friction is believed to be developing in the special labor commission between the advocates of the British and American labor plans, respectively, especially in regard to the question of the freedom of labor to seek employment in any country. Such freedom is directly opposed by the American labor representatives as conflicting with the proposition to restrict the immigration of foreign labor into America. The American labor commissioners were in consultation with the American delegates to the peace conference today, seeking advice and instructions.

Military Treaty Terms.

The supreme war council has completed the main details of the military treaty which Marshal Foch will soon present to the Germans. It will be further perfected in detail at a meeting of the council, Monday, and then finally passed upon by the council of the great Powers on Tuesday.

This document is a highly important one, being in its terms a permanent armistice, but in effect a military treaty, disarming and demobilizing the German forces down to a small police basis, understood to be between five and 10 division of 10,000 men each, with a similar complete naval and aerial disarmament and the dismantlement of the frontier fortifications as well as Helgoland and the Kiel Canal.

The economic and boundary unions with Germany are left for later determination, but from the military and naval standpoint this treaty will be completely effective in terminating the war, making impossible any resumption of it. The treaty also will have the effect of releasing all the allied troops except in the established areas to be occupied until the definitive peace treaty is signed.

This military treaty will be so effective in ending the possibility of hostilities that it is construed in some quarters as definitely ending the war, although there may still be the technical question whether the final ending of the war does not await the signing of the final treaty of peace.

Out of the great number of contradictory statements being published concerning the disposition of German warships which have been seized, this much may be accepted as a definite official fact: Great Britain insists that these ships be destroyed. This proposition, it is understood, will be put before the Supreme War Council as a part of the British proposals for definite peace terms. There is considerable opposition to the plan, especially on the part of France.

Opposition has been voiced in various quarters to the destructions of the ships on the ground that they represent, not only a military force, but also material required for industrial purposes.

Great Britain does not propose to destroy the engines or other parts of the ships which have industrial importance. She would remove these parts and then destroy the hulls and armament.

Rumania and Hungary.

Plans for the restoration of peace between Rumania and Hungary by the establishment of a neutral zone in Transylvania were presented to the Supreme Council yesterday.

This suggestion was made by Andre Tardieu, representing the conference Committee on Rumania Affairs. He suggested that the fighting between the Rumanians and Hungarians probably could be best checked in this manner. He thought that the neutral zone should be 10 kilometers wide, in the mountains separating the two nations. Another subject touched on by the council was the claims of Albania for the extension of its territory by the annexation of portions of Greece and Serbia. Morocco and the Polish situation are on the agenda of the Supreme Council for Saturday.

New Economic Commission is Formed at Paris.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—All economic measures of a transitory nature which come before the peace conference will be referred to the Economic Council, which was appointed by the conference at the suggestion of President Wilson, it was announced in the official communique issued by the Supreme Council of the conference last night. The communique follows:

"The allied and associated representatives were in session at the Quai D'Orsay today from 3 till 5:30 p.m. Stephen Pichon, French Minister of Foreign Affairs, presided. The following matters were considered:

Rumanian Question Referred.

"The question of the creation of a neutral zone between the Hungarians and Rumanians in Transylvania was referred to the Supreme War Council at Versailles.

"It was decided that the allies, as a result of the session of the Polish Diet, at which the powers of the Polish Ministers were confirmed, and at which Ignace Jan Paderewski was acclaimed as head of the Government, should recognize the Polish Government.

"Conclusions reached by the commission formed to draw up a plan of procedure of disposing of economic questions were considered. It was decided to refer to the Economic Council appointed by the conference at the suggestion of President Wilson, all economic measures of a transitory nature. Matters of a permanent nature will be examined by a special commission to be appointed by the conference at an early session.

"Five delegates of the Powers have been entrusted with the task of drafting a plan of procedure for the new Cabinet, a subcommittee being formed to make suggestions regarding its composition and in so doing to take into account the reservations made by Lord Robert Cecil regarding the representation of the British dominions. This question was referred to the commission on foreign affairs.

"The next meeting will take place tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock."

Pressing Inquiries on Misuse of Submarines.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—The Committee on Responsibility for the War is taking up details of German crimes in Belgium and at the same time pressing inquiries to the Germans on misuse of submarines, which began with the sinking of the Lusitania, the responsibility for which tends to lead to Von Tirpitz.

Gen. Traub Tells Senate of 35th Division's Fine Work

sight of the fact that the war would eventually be fought in the open, and would be won with the rifle and the bayonet. He constantly impressed that fact upon us and we pounded it in. Teach the rifle and the bayonet, he said, and the time will come when the American soldier will everlastingly wipe the boche off the face of the earth.

"Pershing saw it from the start," continued Gen. Traub. "So we had target and bayonet practice and more target and bayonet practice. We practiced on long ranges. From the British we learned how to use the bayonet—they were wonderful in handling it. And we taught them to look fierce when they charged. There's a whole lot in that."

Here Gen. Traub assumed the position and the face of a bayonet fighter. He glared ferociously at the committee.

"If the boche sees a man coming at him like that," he smiled as he resumed his seat, "he runs back and throws up his hands."

"Didn't the boche use the bayonet too?" someone asked. "He used it as a can opener, I suppose," replied the General. "We sure had the boche's goat."

Gen. Traub said that the war had been "nothing but a battle for observation points;" that the boche would fight "the biggest battle in the world" to maintain such points. He gave Mont Sec in the Toul sector as an example. When the Twenty-sixth Division was there, a document by the German general staff was taken from a captured officer. It said:

"If all the American troops that come to France are of the same fine quality as these we have been against, the German cause is lost."

"That," commented Gen. Traub, "was early in the war. What finally broke down the morale of the German people was the statement made by Ludendorff in a secret session of the Reichstag that there were 2,000,000 Americans in France. It leaked out, and it started the revolution."

Battle of Argonne.

Describing the battle of the Argonne, Gen. Traub said of his troops: "They never wavered; they marched straight to the front, with clock-like precision, looking neither to the right nor the left. That's what the Thirty-fifth Division did."

He said there was a great preponderance of artillery at the battle, that the division was never out of range of the heavy guns and only once out of range of the 75's. The artillery fire at the beginning, he said, was so successful in "squashing" enemy strongholds that his men took in a few hours what had baffled the French for four years.

He said that official reports showed that 137 officers and 4251 men of the Thirty-fifth were killed and wounded in the battle. The total of killed and died of wounds up to Nov. 1 was 871. Hundreds of the wounded, he said, went back to their units in a few days. Those unaccounted for numbered 1751 men and 11 officers, some of whom were probably captured. He did not know to what extent the total had later been whittled down.

The committee asked many questions about gas. Gen. Traub said that the Germans put metallic arsenic in their mustard gas shells and that horrible torture and death resulted if one got a "close concentration." He himself is still suffering from the effects of five gassings.

"In the morning," he said, "my tongue is like a board. I can whack it—like that."

"We had something in the way of gas," Gen. Traub went on, "that if the war had lasted a month longer, nothing could have stood up against."

He said that gas can be detected by the smell. Some has an odor like decayed rose leaves and some like pineapple.

"The first Power that invents an odorless gas," he declared, "will have something that will win a war. We were always afraid that the Germans would get it and they were afraid that we would."

He said of its total allowance of 6719 horses the Thirty-fifth Division had on hand on Sept. 25, the day before the Argonne battle began, 5370 and called attention to the fact that the report quoted by Gov. Allen showing 4126 horses was for Oct. 6, six days after the battle.

Horses in the Battle.

He declared that the animals bought from the French for replacements in his division were the finest draft horses that he, a cavalryman, had ever seen. They had to be overworked on the long march to the Argonne.

It was a wonderful sight, he said, to see the doctors and their helpers working in the front lines, never thinking of death but only of service.

Allen was mistaken, he said, in declaring that the infantry was not equipped to fight machine guns. Every regiment had its 37-millimeter guns, its trench mortars and its rifle grenades.

His attention was called to the fact that Allen had come into possession of an intelligence report which Capt. Truman had sent to his wife. To send back this report was "bad business," he said. He praised Truman as a "good man," but said that the best of men often gave wrong pictures of a battle and cited several instances to prove his point.

Gen. Traub said that the "green" replacements performed in a way that gave him the surprise of his life.

"The spirit of the American soldier," he concluded, "is marvelous. As long as we've got such men in America this country needn't fear any Power or any combination of Powers on earth."

Gen. Traub left Washington tonight for New York, where he will visit his family at the Van Rensselaer Hotel.

Col. F. M. Rumbold Explains About Argonne Conditions.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—"It was the fortune of war," said Col. Frank M. Rumbold, formerly commander of the 128th (St. Louis) Field Artillery, now attached to the Militia Bureau here, when asked for a statement on Gov. Allen's criticism respecting the shortage of horses at the Argonne fighting.

Col. Rumbold, who was sent to hospital just before the battle, was unwilling to discuss any phase of the operation that he did not personally see. He said:

"I was not with my regiment in the Argonne fight, and do not know the conditions of the horses at that time. The regiment was short of horses prior to its arrival in the Argonne, due to the fact that many were sick while on the march, and of necessity had to be overworked and died."

He estimated the shortage at more than 200. Rumbold's statement coincides with that of Gen. Traub, who told the House Rules Committee frankly that the Thirty-fifth Division was short of horses after the arduous march from St. Mihiel to the Argonne, during which many animals broke down from overwork.

Col. Rumbold was asked about the artillery support at the battle. Speaking of the 128th Regiment, he said:

"In an inspection trip which I took on Sept. 29-30, over the road used by the regiment, I saw the reasons why it had not advanced faster. There were two 'blow-outs' in the road at which the regiment was held up for about 30 hours. This was the only occasion on which it was held up. At one place the French in retiring after a previous drive over that ground, had mined a 'fill' across a valley, between Neuville and Varennes, and blown a hole 300 feet across and 60 feet deep.

"The other had been made by the Germans in their Argonne retreat in a fill between Varennes and Cheppy. It was about the same size as the first. The artillery could not pass these points till the engineers, working night and day, had made the necessary repairs."

GOVERNOR'S SAND AND GRAVEL TAX PROPOSAL GETS BACKSET

Senate and House Committees See Only Salaries in Bill and Decide to Report Adversely.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 22.—Gov. Gardner's plan to obtain State revenue from a royalty tax of 10 cents per ton on all sand and gravel removed from Missouri streams, has been rejected by the Senate and House committees on swamp lands and drainage. The committees decided that the tax would bring in very little revenue, would drive the gravel and sand companies from the State, and would serve only to create several jobs with big salaries.

The tax was recommended by the Governor in his biennial message to the Legislature, though he made no estimate on the revenue that would be derived from that source. When the bill was introduced it provided for the creation of the Missouri Drainage, Waterways and Conservation Commission, with three commissioners at salaries of $5000 a year, each, and such other employes as salaries as the commission might think proper.

Former Judge Jesse McDonald of St. Louis, representing the St. Louis Sand and Gravel Co., opposed the bill before the committees. He said that tax the gravel and sand would drive the companies from the State. Much of the material obtained is from the Mississippi River, and all that would be necessary would be for the companies to move their dredges to the Illinois side to escape the tax. The committee decided to report the bill adversely.

CLEMENCEAU'S DOCTORS PUT A CHECK ON TALKING

Condition Reported Satisfactory, but Physicians Want Him to Talk as Little as Possible for Day or So.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—The official bulletin issued tonight on the condition of Premier Clemenceau said: "General and local conditions remain satisfactory. Pulse 72, temperature 37.6 centrigrade (about 99.7 Fahrenheit). Tuffier, Mosset, Laubry, Combe."

During the day Premier Clemenceau received Edward M. House and Henry White of the American peace mission. In the evening Foreign Minister Pichon called again with Finance Minister Klotz. M. Pichon said the doctors' report was very favorable, while M. Klotz remarked the Premier now admits he must avoid fatigue.

The members of his family were permitted to see him, but not to talk with him, this afternoon as the doctors desire that he shall go through the next 48 hours with as little talking as possible.

Premier Clemenceau sent word to Secretary of State Lansing and E. M. House today that he would be with them in the council of the great Powers to be held next Tuesday.

Premier Lloyd George now has arranged to come over to Paris the latter part of next week, when it is expected that Premier Clemenceau will be able to discuss affairs and in particular to go on with the Russian question.

On official notoe issued from Premier Clemenceau's residence today says:

"The President of the council, who is as well as the gravity of his wound permits, will not, by order of the doctors, receive any visitors today. He has seen only M. Mandel (the Premier's chief clerk) and Gen. Mordacq, with whom he discussed current affairs. He will receive Foreign Minister Pichon and Mr. Balfour, the British Foreign Secretary, at midday."

"Premier Clemenceau is somewhat fatigued and will receive no one today," said Dr. Cautra of the medical staff after the examination of the Premier shortly after 9 o'clock this morning."

Premier Clemenceau was able to rest well during the night.

Alexandre Millerand, former Minister of War, was M. Clemenceau's earliest visitor today.

"The Premier," said M. Millerand, after his visit, "is rather more tired today. You know he was a naughty boy yesterday and over-exerted himself. However, his condition is generally satisfactory."

Yesterday he saw 40 persons which the doctors considered excessive for a man of his age with a bullet in his back, but M. Clemenceau is an arbitrary gentleman, who does exactly as he pleases.

All the physicians agreed that the action of the Premier's lungs should be spared as much as possible, as movement causes the edges of the wound to run against each other. The only way of effecting this was an injection of morphine which no one cared to propose to the Premier, foreseeing how he would receive the suggestion. At last Dr. Laubry volunteered, says the Petit Journal. He appealed to the Premier as a "brother doctor," but M. Clemenceau sprang up, seized the physician by the shoulders and shouted: "What, what, morphine, morphine! You want to finish me? Are you in the pay of the Bolsheviki?"

Dr. Laubry threw up his hands and said: "There you are. We want to give your chest rest and you nearly burst it."

The Premier spent a short time in his garden yesterday morning. He had luncheon at midday and his appetite was good. After luncheon he rested for a while and then received Gen. Petain at 2 o'clock.

Miss Wilson a Visitor.

The visitors in the afternoon included Major-General Mordacq, head of the Military Cabinet of the Ministry of War; Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of President Wilson; Victor Boret, the French Food Minister, and Capt. Rene Fonck, the French "ace of aces."

At lunch M. Clemenceau ate soup, vegetables and a baked apple and drank mineral water. This has been his menu for many years.

German Press Deplores the Attack on Clemenceau's Life.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The attack on Premier Clemenceau is regarded by the German press as a crime more regrettable as being likely to strengthen sentiment against Germany in France, according to a German wireless message. The North German Gazette says:

"The Paris criminal has done no service to the cause of peace. Clemenceau's enmity to the German people is no reason for not branding the attempt on his life as an execrable crime. The foolishness of the attempt is only mitigated by the fact that it was unsuccessful."

Vorwaerts greatly regrets the attempt made against M. Clemenceau "by which the national feeling in France will be further incited."

SERIOUS RIOTING IN BAVARIAN CAPITAL FOLLOWS SHOOTING OF STATESMEN

contrary to previous reports, to be still in Munich.

Auer Opponent of Eisner.

The attempted assassination of Herr Auer, the Bavarian Minister of the Interior, is interpreted as an act of revenge for the killing of Premier Eisner, according to advices from various German sources. The men were bitter opponents. Herr Auer is a majority Socialist Minister and had been looked upon as a man likely to displace Herr Eisner as Premier. The latter was the idol of the ultra-radicals, was a staunch defender of the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council, and was uncompromisingly for the National Assembly.

Catholic Economist Killed.

According to an evening news dispatch from Berlin, Deputy Oesel, who is a Catholic Economist, was instantly killed during the shooting in the Munich Diet. (Other advices have reported that Deputy Oesel was wounded). Herr Garres, a representative of the War Office, the news advices state, was wonuded by the second shot fired. Under-Secretary Jahreis also was wounded.

Herr Unterleitner, the Minister of Social Affairs, according to this account, was wounded at the time Premier Eisner was killed, he being the Premier's companion.

It is declared in this dispatch that Count Arco Valley, who shot Premier Eisner, was killed by a naval guard. (The first dispatches reported Count Arco Valley wounded and dying). The Count is said to have been a young student.

Bavarian Deputy Said to Have Killed Auer and Oesel.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 22.—Minister of the Interior Auer of Bavaria he died of his wounds, according to the Munich correspondent of the Politiken. Deputy Svellier, the dispatch adds, fired the shots which fatally wounded Minister Auer and killed Deputy Oesel.

Hoffmann and Frauendorfer, members of the Bavarian Cabinet, the correspondent says, were wounded by a man in uniform who fired from the gallery.

Three Ministers Wounded at Session of the Landtag.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—Minister of Justice Timm and Minister of Social Affairs Unterleitner of Bavaria were wounded during the shooting which occurred at the Bavarian Landtag yesterday when Herr Auer, Bavarian Minister of the Interior, was shot.

Having fired at Herr Auer, a man sprang in among the deputies and fired other shots at the ministers' bench. At the same moment several shots were fired from the strangers' gallery. A scene of confusion ensued, the deputies scrambling to escape from the room.

Spartacans and Independent Socialists have called for a general strike at Munich and sanguinary incidents are feared, as the military command has declared that it cannot undertake any protection and will not oppose persons conducting demonstrations.

The injuries inflicted upon Herr Auer and Herr Timm are such that they are not expected to recover.

The Lokal Anzeiger, in a Munich dispatch giving the details of the shooting of Herr Auer, says that the Diet, which had adjourned for a half hour when the news of Premier Eisner's assassination was received, had just reassembled, when a soldier, apparently a Spartacan, appeared in the entrance hall and ran toward the ministerial bench, shooting as he advanced. Shots also were fired from the tribune.

Herr Auer, the account continues, was struck in the left breast, and sank dying to the tribune. Deputy Osel and two officials, the account adds, also were wounded. The deputies fled in a great panic through all the available exits.

Excitement is growing throughout Munich, and motor cars carrying red flags and placards reading, "revenge for Eisner," are hurrying through the streets. The stores are closed, and the factories have shut down. Workingmen are parading and calling for a general strike.

Large bodies of armed demonstrators have collected in various parts of the city, and there has been promiscuous shooting on the streets.

The resentment of the masses is aimed at the Bourgeoise press because of its hostile attitude toward Eisner. Most of the afternoon editions did not appear, and the newspaper plants are under military protection.

Premier Eisner's Slayer Shouted, "Long Live the Kaiser."

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Feb. 22.—Kurt Eisner, the Premier of Bavaria, was shot dead at Munich at 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

Herr Eisner, with Herr Merkle, his secretary, was walking along the Prannerstrasse to attend the opening of the Landtag, where he intended to deliver an important speech. Suddenly Lieut. Count Arco Valley, formerly an officer in the Prussian Guards, shouting "Down with the revolution! Long live the Kaiser," fired at Herr Eisner from behind at a distance of a few yards.

Two bullets penetrated the Premier's head and he fell dead on the pavement. A sailor shot down his assailant, who is reported to be mortally injured.

Eisner Declared to Have Predicted He Would Be Killed.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—Deputy Jean Longuet, in his newspaper Populaire, says that, after the speeches of Kurt Eisner, the late Bavarian Premier at the Socialist congress at Berne, he congratulated Eisner on the bravery he had shown. Eisner replied:

"Yes. Returning to Bavaria, I shall be killed."

Scheidemann Tells Assembly There Is Civil War in Munich.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Chancellor Scheidemann, speaking in the National Assembly at Weimar, is quoted in a wireless dispatch received here as saying:

"With the greatest sorrow and indignation I have to inform you that the Bavarian Premier, Kurt Eisner, champion of the revolution, has been shot by a fanatic. Munich is the scene of a bloody civil war and my friends, Rosshaupter (Minister of War) and Auer, are said to be dead.

"The Government expresses the deepest sorrow and condemnation of these shameful acts of murder. Nothing shows the breakdown of order more clearly than when murder becomes a political weapon. If the sacrificial death of Herr Eisner has good results, they will be in bringing us all together to do away with evil conditions. It would mean the ruin of Germany if all did not take this view and join in this condemnation."

COMMUNIST REVOLT REPORTED IN BUDAPEST

German and Russian Agitators Said to Be Leaders; Government Troops Retake Station.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—A Communist revolt broke out in Budapest Thursday night, says a dispatch to the Matin from Zurich, quoting a Swiss news agency message from the Hungarian capital.

The revolt is under the leadership of agitators who are for the most part Germans and Russians, the dispatch states.

The insurgents stormed the offices of the Socialist newspaper Nepszava and occupied the telegraph offices and the railroad station.

Count Karolyi, the Provisional President, immediately called a meeting of the Cabinet. The Ministers sat far into the night and decided to take all necessary measures to quell the outbreak. Martial law was proclaimed.

Government troops, the message adds, have already recaptured the railway station.

200,000 VOTE 'NO BEER-NO WORK'

New York Labor Men Claim Approval by St. Louis Leaders.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Edward Hannah, president of the New York Central Federated Union, announced tonight that he had received telegrams from labor leaders in cities throughout the country, approving the action of nearly 200,000 New York union workers in voting strike effective on July 1 to enforce the "No Beer, No Work" slogan and pledging similar action in the near future.

Some of the cities, Hannah said, were Los Angeles, Cincinnati, Seattle, San Francisco, Chicago, Dayton, St. Louis, Kansas City and Milwaukee.

Hannah added that about 150,000 more union men in New York City would vote on the "no beer-no work" movement this week.

SENATE DEBATE ON NATIONS' LEAGUE TILL SESSION ENDS

Following Reed's Attack, Lewis Announces He Will Reply to Borah and Poindexter.

LODGE AND KNOX WILL SPEAK LATER

Owen and Hitchcock to Express Their Views; Taft Attacked for His Stand, and Defended.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The Senate will debate the proposed league of nations almost continuously until final adjournment, March 4.

Senators began announcing their intention to speak immediately after Senator Reed of Missouri, Democrat, had concluded a two-hour address today, in which he attacked the league's constitution, declaring it meant abdication of American sovereignty, violated the Federal Constitution and would involve the United States in all foreign entanglements.

Senator Lewis of Illinois, the Democratic whip, will reply Monday to Senators Poindexter and Borah, with a defense of President Wilson's stand on the league, and, it is indicated that other Senators, not members of the Foreign Relations Committee will express their views in advance of the White House conference, Wednesday night at which the President will discuss the document, article by article, with the Foreign Affairs Committees of the two houses.

Senator Lodge, the Republican leader, and Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, both members of the Foreign Relations Committee, gave notice that they would speak after they had heard the President, Senator Lodge, on Friday, and Senator Knox Saturday.

Owen and Hitchcock.

Senator Owen of Oklahoma, Democrat, announced that he would speak Wednesday, while Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, will defer his address until the end of the week.

On the anniversary of Washington's birth, Senator Reed took the first President's admonition against "entangling European alliances" as the main theme of his address. When Washington's farewell address was read in the House, Republican members and a number of Democrats joined in applauding references to America's foreign policy.

Before Senator Reed spoke, statements of former President Taft in support of the league caused a lively clash, in which Taft was criticised by Senator Sherman of Illinois, Republican, and defended by Senators Ashurst of Arizona, McKellar of Tennessee and Thomas of Colorado, Democrats.

Sherman declared Taft's activities were "not only undignified but grossly partisan and unfair." The Democratic Senators charged Sherman with having reflected upon the former President, whom they highly praised. Senator Thomas declared, however, that he did not agree with Taft's position on the league.

Reed Gives His Views.

Sherman presented a letter from a constituent in which Taft's position was assailed and his political record ridiculed.

Ashurst sharply criticised reading of the letter, declaring it made Taft an "object of ridicule."

"This is no way to conduct debate on this league of nations," said Ashurst. "Although I never agreed with Mr. Taft politically, for four years he was President of the United States and an honest, patriotic gentleman. I believe that when the years go by and we see this league in action the Senator from Illinois will be ashamed of his conduct as I am.

"Mr. Taft is entitled to fair treatment at the hands of the Senate of the United States."

Senator Sherman replied that he would not have presented his constituent's letter but for Taft's recent statements that he "would not trust Senators over night" opposing the league.

Senator McKellar of Tennessee, Democrat, interrupted to declare that Taft had repudiated the statement referred to and Senator Thomas read Taft's statement of denial.

Sees "Fangs of Bolshevism."

Denouncing the league as a movement of internationalism, Senator Reed asserted that "the fangs" of Bolshevism were plainly visible in the league constitution. The provision requiring America to fight foreign wars, he said, was" monstrous."

The league charter, Senator Reed also declared, plainly conflicted with the American Constitution, but he said he would reserve discussion of that point till some future time.

"Shall we surrender with pen what Washington gained by his sword?" asked the Senator.

"Shall we repudiate the nationalism under which we have become the first people of the earth for the doubtful experiment of internationalism?

"Shall we make our Government of the people, by the people and for the people, a Government partly by the people and partly by Kings and Emperors.

"The answer to these questions is involved in the acceptance or rejection of the proposed constitution of the league of nations.

Calls Situation Tragic.

"A situation so tragic demands the attention of every loyal citizen of the republic.

"America entered this war a complete sovereign. She acknowledged no master. She was the arbiter of her own destiny. A victor in the war, shall she nevertheless emerge a mere constituent state of a league, dominated by European monarchies and Asiatic despots?

"Shall our nationalism be stricken down and for it substituted an internationalism?

"Shall our independent democracy come under the control either in whole or in part of foreign monarchs or foreign bolshevik?"

Reed's Five Main Points.

Analyzing the league's tentative articles, Senator Reed asserted that study would demonstrate five principal things:

"1. That the control of the league from the first will inevitably be in European and Asiatic nations having many interests in common, and who may have common antagonisms against us.

"2. The British empire will, in all probability, constitute the controlling influence of the league.

"3. If at any time England shall lose control, the Germanic powers will be likely to succeed to her position of dominance.

"4. There is in the background the menace of world Bolshevism. Indeed, that monster is the most earnest advocate of internationalism. Its fangs are plainly visible in the constitution of the league.

"5. Whoever controls the league will control the world."

The league, Senator Reed declared, would be dominated by three monarchies—England, Italy and Japan—and two republics—America and France.

Interests of the European countries are closely knit, he continued, and "may even be antagonistic" to the United States while Japan, he declared, is bound by secret treaty to England and "at the same time in state of irritation against us so acute as to cause grave fears of war."

"It then appears," Reed continued, "that in any controversy there will be votes of four aliens against the single vote of the United States. It is from the first at a disadvantage."

Great Britain on the Job."

The provision for admission of British colonies, said the Senator, "is most significant and indicates that Great Britain is on the job."

Among the vital American questions which Reed asserted would be absolutely controlled by the eight-to-one council are:

"The Monroe Doctrine, border disputes, immigration, slaughter of American citizens on the border, destruction of American ships, seizure and search of American vessels, imprisonment of American seamen, defense of the Panama Canal and seizure of the canal.

"It is highly conceivable," he added, "that such a tribunal might conclude that a simple tariff levied upon importation might become a cause for war and assume the right to command a state to not levy the tariff duty."

American labor was warned by Senator Reed against article 20 of the league, obligating the signatory nations to establish a permanent labor bureau.

"I warn them," he said, "that it is undertaken to exercise jurisdiction over the labor of other countries * * * and this agreement will embrace labor of this country. I warm American labor to beware lest they shall be drawn from their place of advantage to the level * * * of other lands."

Free public discussion of the league was urged by Senator Reed, who said that "no padlock should be put on the tongue of any man in discussing this most remarkable and obscure instrument."

Senator Reed occasionally digressed from his prepared remarks, but was not interrupted and delivered his address with characteristic emphasis in speech and gesture. He said the league constitution would create an "international smelling committee," designed to learn what the various nations were doing.

Referring to a provision which he said would outlaw nations that refused to join the league, the Senator said he wanted everybody in this country to read it.

"Even Taft ought to be made to read it every day to his audience," he declared. "Thus do we set ourselves up," he continued, "as masters of the world. We'll thrust ourselves into every dispute and make ourselves masters over every nation that does not come into this league."

When Senator Reed concluded, after speaking more than two hours, there was loud and long applause, in which Senators, members of the House and galleries joined. Many members offered congratulations.

WOLF IS FINALLY CAUGHT AND MACHENS MAYOR IS HAPPY

"I'm Vindicated," He Declares as He Joyously Announces Trapping of Animal.

A wolf which fell into a trap baited with spring chicken near Machens, 27 miles north of St. Louis, was killed last evening on Machen's Island, a mile distant, where it had dragged the trap, by Clarence Rodenfeld, who shot the animal with a rifle. T. S. Isemann, Mayor of Machens, who was laughed at a month ago when he announced that wolves inhabited the island, is thus vindicated. Mayor Isemann announced the momentous event by telephone last night to a Post-Dispatch reporter. He gave all the details of the story, and concluded:

"I hope you will publish this in full to prove that, after all, I was not lying."

Mayor Isemann said Charles Weber, "a big trapper," Rodenfeld, Frank Gust, a farmer, and Ed Sullivan, a farm laborer, placed traps in a half circle around the outskirts of the town a few weeks ago and kept them baited with various tempting morsels, hoping to bag a wolf or something.

At dusk yesterday evening three excited urchins dashed into town and aroused the populace by announcing that a wolf was carrying a trap away, and the citizens set out in pursuit. They followed a trail through the snow to some willows on the island, where the wolf had become entangled and exhausted, and Rodenfeld fired the fatal shot.

Grierson Twins, Both of Whom Were Wounded in France, and Their Mother

WALTER GRIERSON, MRS. MATHILDA GRIERSON and ALBERT GRIERSON

GRIERSON TWINS HOME, TELL OF EXPERIENCES

Both Were Wounded and Albert's Discharge Will Be Delayed Pending Treatment.

When the Grierson twins went away to war they looked so much alike their mother could not, at a glance, tell them apart, but now that they are back, Albert Grierson looks more like his brother, Walter, than when they left for France. That is because Walter has taken on a few pounds in the last month.

Before leaving their home, 4305 Evans avenue, May 10, 1917, they said they were going to join the marines so that they could be "first in the fight." They did not succeed in getting with the "soldiers of the sea," but they did not miss their aim to be first in the fight. They enlisted in the regular army and were assigned to A Company, First Regiment of Engineers, which later became part of the First Division. That Division, as is well known, was the first of the American expeditionary forces to land in France, was first of the American branch of the allied forces to attack the enemy, was the first to be counter-attacked, was the first to inflict casualties and was the first to suffer casualties.

Wound Chevrons Souvenirs.

The twins promised their friends in St. Louis that they would bring home souvenirs.

"And we kept our word," said Albert, pointing to the wound chevrons on his and Walter's sleeves. "We haven't got the red cord of the fourragere, but I understand that we are entitled to it. I was informed the other day that our division was cited for the order after we had been invalided home."

Albert was hit in the right shoulder by a fragment of high-explosive shell July 18 at Soissons, in the second battle of the Marne, when going over the top behind tanks and in advance of the first wave of infantry. The wound has healed nicely, but Albert will not get his discharge until he has undergone a series of massage treatments at the Marine Hospital to get the stiffness out of his arm.

Both Walk With Limp.

"They boobed me in the first round of the big fight," he said, "but Walter stuck it out for a long time. He went over the Plains of Picardy, through the St. Mihiel sector, and landed in the Argonne Forest. That boy sure saw some fighting. They got him in the Argonne Oct. 9, when a piece of high-explosive shell cut a deep gash in his right foot. Funny thing, we both limp, and that makes it all the harder for me to keep from being mistaken for him. When people see me limping they think I'm the one that was shot in the foot."

When a reporter accompanied Albert to the hospital at Jefferson Barracks yesterday afternoon to see Walter, who is convalescing there, a nurse in one of the wards said to Albert: "Back so soon? I thought you asked for permission to remain away until 10 o'clock."

"That's the way it has been since we were kids," said Albert. "We are constantly being mistaken for each other. Now we've got to go back uptown and find Walter, and the chances are that he is busy telling people that he is not I."

Strangely enough the Grierson twins shared alike the fortunes and misfortunes of war. Each lost a gold watch and a diamong ring setting. And they are carryng on a mail courtship with twin sisters, Blendine and Geraldine Smalley of Sheldon, Ill., with whom they became acquainted a short time after their enlistment.

Traded Guardhouse "Dates."

One of the most embarrassing situations growing out of their close resemblance was when one would stand in the chow line after the other had been served. Every time they faced a new cook the one who happened to be behind would be ordered out with the curt admonition that he would have to wait until the rest of the line was served before he could have a second helping.

They evened up the score when one or the other happened to be in the guardhouse which, according to their own frank admission, was not infrequent. If the one serving time had a "date," as they expressed it, the other would relieve him without the slightest fear of detection.

"Many a time I was bawled out for failing to obey an order that had been given to Walter," said Albert.

"And the same thing happened to me," echoed Walter. "When you were reported missing for several days after you had been wounded I was kept busy telling people that I was not you."

Were in Cantigny Fight.

"When I met Capt. McNally at Union Station the other day he wanted to know how my foot was getting along," said Albert, "and when I told him it was my arm and not my foot, he recalled how he had to separate my brother and me to keep from getting us confused."

"I had to scratch my own back after Albert was put out of the game," said Walter, "and it seemed as though the cooties were worse than before."

Walter said that he celebrated the signing of the armistice by drinking lemon extract in a French hospital.

"You were lucky," said Albert. "I had to stay in bed all day in the hospital at Des Moines, Io. I was being punished for violating one of the rules, and they locked up all my clothing with the exception of a suit of pajamas and a bathrobe."

The Griersons are 21 years old. Their father, Albert Grierson, is a Sheriff's deputy. Their mother, Mrs. Mathilda Grierson, was active in Red Cross work.

VANDIVER DENOUNCES WASHINGTON'S CRITICS

In Address at Sons of Revolution Banquet Classes Some as "Would-Be Historians"

Willard D. Vandiver, Assistant Treasurer of the United States Subtreasury here, last night, at the annual Liberty banquet of the St. Louis Chapter, Sons of the Revolution, at the Washington Hotel, denounced critics of George Washington and the American Revolution, and classed some of them as "would-be historians." He said that any one who tries to tear down the idols of a nation is worse than the man who destroys his neighbor's landmarks. The aim of such critics, he said, was to obtain fame at the expense of really famous persons and events.

In regard to the charge that England did not try to defeat the colonists in the Revolutionary War, Vandiver said that records show she appropriated $100,000,000 for one year of war, the largest amount up to that time ever appropriated by any nation for war, he said; and that she sent a bigger army to defeat Gen Washington in the Delaware campaign than she sent to Belgium in 1815 to defeat Napoleon at Waterloo. She also sent 52 war vessels of the line, 27 smaller cruisers and 60,000 sailors in her attempt to win back the colonies, the speaker asserted.

Not Like Haughty Prussians.

Other addresses were by Bishop Daniel S. Tuttle, president of the Missouri Society of the Sons of the Revolution, and State Senator A. E. Gardner of St. Louis County. Bishop Tuttle said that everyone who wants to come to this country and be a real American should be made welcome. "W edon't want to be like the haugh-
"We don't want to be like the haugh-
Washington, the Bishop said, was well acquainted with the English principles of freedom. "He did not want to rebel against England so much as he wanted to say to the governing class of that nation that they must respect its old principles of liberty," Bishop Tuttle said.

Gen. John B. O'Meara, president of the St. Louis Chapter, presided as toastmaster. The banquet hall was prettily decorated with flags. Patriotic songs were sung by the banqueters, and George M. Ravold sang several solos. Gen. O'Meara said the keynote of the organization is to build a bulwark for people who love America, and not for cold dollars.

Society Elects Officers.

Officers of the Missouri Society of the Sons of the Revolution were elected yesterday as follows: Bishop Tuttle, president; Senator Selden P. Spencer, vice president; William Warren Knight, Kansas City, second vice president; Gen. John B. O'Meara, St. Louis, third vice president; Owen Beall Knight, St. Joseph, fourth vice president; Harrison Milton Smith, Springfield, fifth vice president; George Turner Parker, St Louis, secretary and treasurer; Edwin Lawrence Miller, Kansas City, assistant secretary; Rev. Sidney Catlin Partridge, Kansas City, chaplain; Edward Martin Shepard, Springfield, historian and librarian; John Barber White, Kansas City, registrar, and Seymour Stewart, marshal. The banquet of the local chapter was in charge of Edgar R. Hoadley, one of the vice presidents, and was in commemoration of Washington's birthday.

The birth of Washington 187 years ago yesterday was officially celebrated in St. Louis by the closing of Federal and State courts, banks and commercial exchanges and most city offices. The offices and courts at the courthouse were closed all day except one, Judge Hartmann having a jury trial from the day before which was finished yesterday at noon.

Business houses as a rule were open. School children were deprived of an extra holiday because the anniversary fell on Saturday. Flags were flown from business buildings and many residences all day, pursuant to a request of the St. Louis Chapter Sons of the Revolution.

JUDGES' ARGUMENTS FOR SALARY INCREASE

Appeal Which They Have Prepared for Submission to Members of Legislature.

Circuit Judges of St. Louis have prepared for submission to the Legislature arguments supporting a bill increasing their salaries from $5500 to $10,000 a year, through the creation in cities of the class of St. Louis of a board of jury supervisors, made up of Judges elected to the Circuit Court, at a salary of $4500 a year each.

In part the appeal is as follows:

"The enforcement of the most important rights of citizens depends upon the capability of jurors called to enforce the laws, both criminal and civil. Under the law, as it is now written, one man, the Jury Commissioner, determines the capability of the persons selected for jury service, and experience has demonstrated that there are a great many persons who are thus selected mentally, morally and physically unfit for jury service.

Would Use Wisdom of Judges.

"The purpose of the bill to create a board of jury supervisors is to use the experience, judgment and learning of the Circuit Judges in the selection of persons for jury service, and to give them the power to have removed from the jury list the names of all jurors who, from time to time, may appear to the Circuit Judges to be unfit for jury service, because of deficient mental, moral and physical faculties.

'Permit us also to call your attention to the fact that while these additional duties would give an added compesation to the Circuit Judges of $4500 a year, making their total compensation as Circuit Judges and Jury Supervisors $10,000 a year, such compensation is small in comparison with the salaries paid to Judges performing similar duties in such cities as New York and Chicago, and is also small in comparison with the salaries paid city officials who have less responsibilities and less work to perform.

"The press, the bar, the business public and public opinion in general all sustain the necessity and justice of an increase in these salaries at the present time. They have been lower in the city of St. Louis than in any other large city of the United States. In New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Detroit, Cleveland, Milwaukee and Buffalo, the Judges of the same jurisdiction as our Circuit Judges are now paid salaries ranging from $7500 to $17,500 per year. Numerous newspapers have commented editorially on the necessity for increasing the compensation of the Circuit Judges, among them the Post-Dispatch."

The Post-Dispatch editorial referred to was published last October, and is reprinted in full in the appeal.

SOPRANO'S RECITAL CANCELED

Miss Hulda Lashanska, the soprano who was to have made her first St. Louis appearance this afternoon in a recital in the ballroom of Hotel Statler, will be prevented by illness from appearing. A telegram stating that Miss Lashanska had been compelled to cancel her trip was received yesterday by Miss Elizabeth Cueny, who had made the arrangements.

The concert was to have been under the auspices of the Alliance Francaise, for the benefit of the fatherless children of France and the American Fund for French Wounded.

Full Cabinet Vocalion

THE materials for this special Vocalion were purchased before America entered the war, at pre-war prices. As is well known The Aeolian Company possesses manufacturing facilities which are unequaled throughout the music industry. Consequently a price has been put on this instrument that cannot be approached elsewhere. This beautiful phonograph at only $79 (in small monthly payments if desired) brings the happiness of beautiful music within easy and immediate reach of all.

$79

Terms: $5 Monthly

In tone, in size and in finish this Special Model Vocalion is quite the equal of many instruments sold today at a much higher figure. It has many of the distinctive features of those Vocalions of higher price which have set an entirely new standard in phonograph music.

Do not fail to take advantage of this remarkable opportunity.

As the number of these Special Vocalions is very limited, an early selection is strongly recommended.

Some of the Special Features:

Tone Quality: This Special Model Vocalion has the delightful life-like Vocalion tone. Due to size of the tone-chamber this instrument has unusual depth and volume of tone.

Cabinet: It has a beautiful mahogany Cabinet with the modern velvet piano finish. It has the dignity and case beauty heretofore obtainable only in high-priced phonographs.

Plays All Records: Equipped with a Universal Sound Box, this Model Vocalion plays standard records of all makes so that your musical enjoyment may include practically all phonographic recordings of whatever name or make.

Record Filing Device: A new and convenient Record Filing arrangement enables you to find the record you wish to play more easily and keep your records in good condition.

When it is realized that the above is an actual illustration of this Special Model Vocalion, the value of this offer will be evident. Phonographs of this size and tone volume sell regularly at a much higher price. Here is an Aeolian-Vocalion—the finest, the most musical of all phonographs—rich and powerful in tone, refined and dignified in appearance—at only $79—unquestionably and by far the best value obtainable in such instruments today.

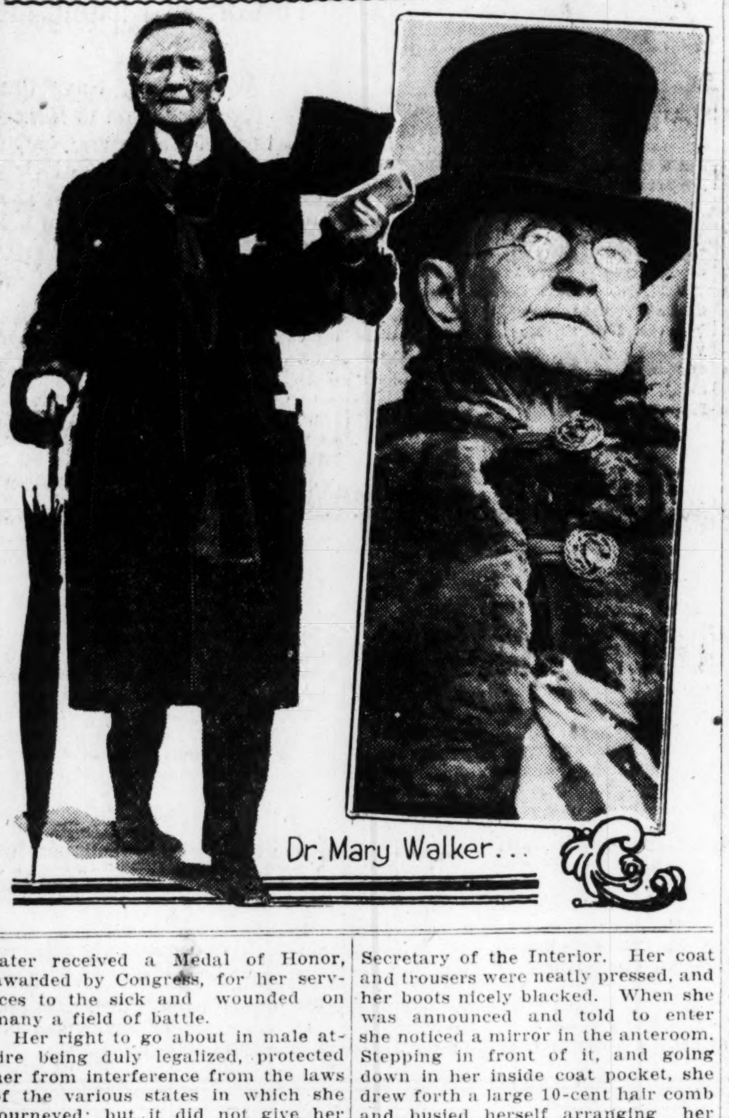
DR. MARY WALKER DIES AT HER HOME IN NEW YORK AT 87

She Was Only Woman Ever Authorized by Federal Act to Appear in Male Attire; Surgeon in Civil War.

MEDAL WAS VOTED TO HER BY CONGRESS

Dress Reform and Suffrage Pioneer — Dickens Commented Interestingly on Her Appearance in London

Famous Pioneer in Dress Reform, Who Is Dead, in Her Male Attire



Dr. Mary Walker...

By the Associated Press.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 22.—Dr. Mary E. Walker died at Bunker Hill, near Oswego, where she lived, at 8 o'clock last night, after a long illness. She was 87 years old. She was a surgeon in the Civil War and was awarded a Congressional Medal of Honor. She gained considerable fame by being the only woman allowed to appear in male attire by an act of Congress.

Dr. Walker was injured in a fall on the Capitol steps in Washington two years ago and returned home last spring considerably weakened in health. She declined to accept the proffered assistance of neighbors in caring for her house, but later yielded to the suggestion of the town authorities that she go to the United States General Hospital at Fort Ontario, where she remained for several weeks and was apparently much improved in health. At her request she was permitted to leave the hospital and return home. She died in the home of a neighbor who had been caring for her.

DR. WALKER WAS THE VANGUARD OF WOMEN SUFFRAGE

She Was Only Woman Physician in Civil War and Received Medal From Congress.

Probably no woman in American life attracted as much attention and occasioned as much comment as Dr. Mary E. Walker. She burst into fame very soon after the closing chapter of the Civil War, and until the infirmities of age, aggravated by a severe injury occasioned by a fall in Washington a few years ago overtook her, she was rarely out of the public eye or the public mind. She was the vanguard of suffrage and blazed the way for such other distinguished devotees of the cause as Belva A. Lockwood and Susan B. Anthony.

Like all pioneers in movements contemplating radical departures from tradition and custom, Dr. Walker found no primrose path. No woman ever ran such a gauntlet of criticism and ridicule as Dr. Walker experienced when she began her public career in masculine attire. Among her severest critics were other women, who professed to be very much shocked by her contempt for customs of long usage. When Dr. Walker started out to openly defy dress customs women were far less liberal in such matters than they are today. It was in the days of the crinoline, hoops, bustles and other contrivances, guaranteed to safely camouflage graceful curves and charms that are today most artfully paraded. As a protagonist, Dr. Walker was deaf alike to ridicule and protest.

Became Physician at 23.

Dr. Walker was born in Oswego, N. Y., in 1832, and at 23 was a regular graduate in medicine, one of the first women of record to receive a diploma. Beginning the practice of medicine at once, she took to men's garb, though her first foray in the man's realm was more subdued than her later dress presentations. When the war broke out in 1861 she offered her services as an assistant surgeon, and they were accepted. She received a Lieutenant's commission and went forth to battle attired like her brother officers. She had full authorization to dress in this manner from a special act of Congress. She later received a Medal of Honor, awarded by Congress, for her services to the sick and wounded on many a field of battle.

Her right to go about in male attire being duly legalized, protected her from interference from the laws of the various states in which she journeyed; but it did not give her immunity from the jokers. The press of the country, while giving her credit for her service during the war, found fruitful field in exploiting her nations of apparel and woman's rights in political and all other fields where her wishes might carry her; and never was there a more courageous advocate than the remarkable octogenarian who passed away yesterday. She was of an entirely different type from the militant, who chose prison cells and hunger strikes to push propaganda.

A year after the close of the war Dr. Walker went to London and spoke to an audience in St. James' Hall. This was in November, 1866. She created a furore in the staid old London town and was given a riotous reception by her hearers. In the All the Year Round magazine, then conducted in person by Charles Dickens, she was given three pages of space, and a rather severe handling for her manner of dress and her invasion of a profession that England then accorded only to men.

What Dickens Wrote About Her.

The opening paragraph of the article reads:

"A lady dressed in short black tunic, reaching a little below the knees, the skirts falling close to the figure like those of a man's frock coat, wearing, moreover, a pair of black cloth trousers, and having flowers in her hair, presents an appearance which is likely to be regarded by the benighted inhabitants of this country with something of astonishment, and something also of disapproval. Yet on a certain evening in November, in this year 1866, the American lady physician, Dr. Mary E. Walker, had the courage to stand upon a platform in the great St. James' Hall, dressed in such costume, and to deliver a lecture to an exceedingly large, and, for the most part—I am sorry to say—an exceedingly ill-behaved, audience."

The concluding paragraph in the Dickens Magazine was as follows:

"The persons who filled the gallery at the end of the room, had evidently come there, in vulgar parlance, for 'a lark.' But they would have done better to remember that it was a lark at a woman's expense. As she stood alone in the vast assembly, one could not help feeling that there was a mute appeal in her weakness and helplessness which made the determined opposition with which she was met by her relentless persecutors, and which resounded noisily through the whole building before she appeared, emphatically—a shame."

The writer had little sympathy with her message or her dress, but he did pity her, because of the boisterous interruptions and cries of derision that came to her in storms from all parts of the big hall. The audience, he made it very clear, only went there to have a good time and ungallantly had it, at the expense of a misguided woman.

Dr. Walker spent much of her time in Washington and seemed to find great enjoyment in her promenades along Pennsylvania avenue and other leading thoroughfares in the capital. She always wore her silk tile on such occasions, and used to carry her trolley tickets in her hat band; always bowing pleasantly to the conductor when he would take the ticket from the headgear. She resented any questions as to why she wore men's clothes. On one occasion she remarked to a newspaper man that she did not wear men's clothes. "Clothes designed by a woman, ordered by a woman, made by a woman, are not men's clothes."

While she spent most of her winters in Washington, she tried at all times to spend the warm weather at her old home at Oswego, N. Y. She saw patients regularly, and had her name listed as a practitioner in the Washington telephone directory. She was asked several times to appear in vaudeville, but she always said she was too busy. While she was proud of her costume, she was sometimes caught off guard indulging in feminities. An incident is related of a call she made in 1912 to see the Secretary of the Interior. Her coat and trousers were neatly pressed, and her boots nicely blacked. When she was announced and told to enter she noticed a mirror in the anteroom. Stepping in front of it, and going down in her inside coat pocket, she drew forth a large 10-cent hair comb and busied herself arranging her hair. No debutante ever bestowed more care on such a detail than did this remarkable woman. When she got her hair fixed just right, she slipped the comb back into her inside coat pocket and stepped inside to see the waiting official.

There were many other times in her long and creditable life that she gave testimony that a woman's heart dwelt beneath the frock coat she loved so well. She was at all times concerned about other women and she encouraged and supported all movements for the benefit of children. While the women at the outset did not take kindly to her dress reform, or her insistence on the extension of the right of suffrage, she went on undismayed, fighting that women might come into their own, which they have already done in many of the States.

She never married, but she did have her romance. Back in the 50s when she was going to the medical college at Syracuse, N. Y., she met a young student who quit smoking at her request. Later the same student asked her permission to call on her, but she refused the request when she saw him reading a long letter written by another girl. She said the girl must be in love with him and expect to marry him to write him so long a letter. The student married the other girl, and when he died the young wife killed herself. Dr. Walker always believed this young woman would have killed herself if the student had not married her, hence she congratulated herself that she was not even the innocent cause of a tragedy.

Dr. Walker tried to vote on a few occasions and had a strenuous time with some of the election officers. She lived, however, long enough to see the right of women to vote established by the laws of her native State. After her fall on the steps of the Capitol a few years since, her health grew worse from year to year, and she was almost helpless for some time preceding the end.

She was voted $15,000 by Congress for her services in the Civil War, but through some mix-up she was never paid the money. She had a pension of $8.50 per month for many years, which constituted the sum total of recognition for her distinction of being the only woman doctor in active service in the Civil War.

GOT A COLD? HERE IS RELIEF—PAPE'S

Use Pape's Cold Compound to cure colds and grippe in few hours—Tastes nice.

It is a positive fact that a dose of Pape's Cold Compound, taken every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken, will end the Grippe and break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach, limbs or any part of the body.

It promptly relieves the most miserable headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, mucous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Take this wonderful Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is nothing else in the world which will cure your cold or end Grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad aftereffect as a small package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist can supply—accept no substitute.—ADV.

Corns Peel Off Painlessly

There's Only One Genuine Corn-Peeler—That's "Gets-It."

"2 drops of 'Gets-It'—Corn is doomed."

it that way—effectively, thoroughly. Why get down on the floor, tie yourself up into a knot and have to fool with "packagey" plasters, greasy ointments that rub off, sticky tape and digging knives and scissors, when you can peel off your corn or callus in one complete piece, peacefully and surely with magic, simple, easy "Gets-It?" It takes 2 or 3 seconds to apply "Gets-It"; you use 2 or 3 drops, and that's all. "Gets-It" does the rest! Get rid of that corn-pain at once, so that you can work and play without corn torture. ATHLETIC CARNIVAL LIKE 3-RING CIRCUS

Not an Idle Minute During Four and One-Half Hour Program at Coliseum.

The Municipal Athletii Assosiation gave its second annual carnival at the Coliseum last night before more than 3500 persons who seemed to gain as much enjoyment from it as from any of the "world's greatest three-ring circus." Certainly the task of seeing all there was to be seen was as difficult as a three-ring circus, plus two platforms.

Thre weer 15 preliminary and 22 major athletic events, with 10 added contests and drills of semi-athletic nature. About 1600 men and women and boys and girls participated. Their appearance was so admirably and speedily directed that the Jefferson Barracks bandmaster fidgeted but could find no interluke for his music. At no time from 7 p. m. until 11:30 was theer an idle minute on the floor and frequently as many as four events were in swing at once. While the police were turning lobster red in vain efforts to prevent Park Department employes from pulling the mout of a tug-of-war trough, two teams of girls were playing basket-ball, runners were keeping up a "slap, slap," on the track and Jimlie Conzelman, the fistic pride of the navy, was finding it hard to keep his colors afloat in a boxing ring.

Sports and Drills.

Theer kere relay contests for Boy Scouts, parochial and public school pupils, playground youngsters and older municipal athletes. Championships were decided among St. Louis high schools and the city's two universities. Boxing and wrestling were engaged in. School teams played basket-ball. Teams from Jefferson Barracks fought tugs-of-war. Sunday-school athletes, too, had places in running races. Over all were the constant cheers of rooting contingents.

The athletic events were interspersed with colorful drills, thus freshening the crowd's spirit for enjoyment until the final number.

One hundred and fifty Boy Scouts gave a drill in first aid, showing a dozen bandagings of body and head wounds such as Young America is prone to encounter. About 160 women of St. Louis turner societies gave a drill in which each participant carried two flags. When all arms were extended aboce the 160 heads, the metaphor "a sea of flags" approached reality.

The Arab patrol of Moolah Temple elicited much applause with its maneuvers so perfectly executed that the very tassels on the men's fezzes waved in unison.

To Aid Soldier Welcome Fund.

Others of the drills enhanced in their appeal by attractiveness of costume were by women of the North St. Louis Turner Society, who appeared in fencing costumes and used the foils in pantomime; maneuvers by the Calvary White Shrine Girls' Patrol of East St. Louis and by Ainad Temple Arab patrol.

The Bryan Hill Drum Corps thumped its drums lustily, gymnastic tactics were shown by men and women of the Concordia Gymnastic Society, and the Women's Municipal Gymnastic Association appeared in a wand drill.

The receipts will be turned over to Mayor Kiel to be applied to a fund for welcoming home St. Louis war heroes. It was said that though few seats above the first balcony were occupied, all seats in the Coliseum had been sold previously and the return to the fund was considerable.

A complete summary of the results in the athletic contests will be found on the sports page of this issue of the Post-Dispatch.

CENTRAL HIGH ALUMNI WANT NAME OF SCHOOL RESTORED

A meeting of 18 members of the Alumni Association of Central High School was held yesterday afternoon at the Central Library to protest the action of the Board of Education in changing the name of the school to Roosevelt High School, and to petition the board to reconsider its action at its meeting March 10. VOCATIONAL EDUCATORS RE-ELECT DR. SNEDDON

Closing Session Devoted to Discussion of Women in Industry in War Time.

Dr. David Snedden, president of the Teachers' College, Columbia University, New York, was re-elected president of the National Society for Vocational Education at the close of the Twelfth Annual Convention, yesterday afternoon at Hotel Statler.

The morning session was devoted to a discussion of "War Time Participation of Women in Industry—Its Permanent Effect." In the absence of Miss Mary van Kleeck, chief of the Women in Industry Service, United States Department of Labor, C. B. Lord of the Wagner Electric Co., spoke of the experiences of that company. He admitted in his opening statement that the subject was beyond him.

"It is better policy," said Lord, "to deceive a woman than to argue with her. However, we will deal with plain facts, standing in the attitude of a physician who gives medicine that does not taste good."

Lord discussed problems of social hygiene, classifying the types of girls who apply for and are usually found in factories.

Aid in War Described.

Mrs. Anna L. Burdick, of the Federal Board of Vocational Education, presented the subject of War Time Participation of Women in Industry. "The war has meant a wonderful experience," said Mrs. Burdick, "a marvelous opportunity to all women. The under-employed woman achieved a joy in doing the first productive work of her life, and I hope that she will now turn this new found joy and power to civic problems and needs. The war has standardized the imperfectly employed woman. It has readjusted the improperly employed woman. The demand for efficiency forced the improperly employed woman out of certain lines and has given her a wider vision, and a wider range of occupations.

"War has cracked the ice of prejudice against factory work for girls, and it is up to us to break it. Social standards, based on work, must be changed. The opportunities offered by factory work are certainly worthy of consideration of any woman who wants to be self-reliant and self-sustaining, and we must make the work so that she will have a sense of self-respect."

Society's Work Discussed.

The future work of the society was presented by President Snedden and discussed by members of the society. The society now has a membership of 2000 men and women in every state in the Union.

Officers elected for the ensuing year, beside Snedden, are Lewis Gustafson, superintendent; David Rankin Jr., School of Mechanical Trades, St. Louis; H. L. Kenst, State Director Agricultural Education for Kansas; W. E. Bartholomew, specialist in commercial education, New York State Education Department; Miss Isabel Ely Lord, Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, vice presidents.

Frederic B. Pratt, Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y., who had served the society as treasurer for 11 years, declined renomination. The office will be filled by appointment by the Executive Committee, as will that of secretary.

The council, composed of 36 members, 18 teachers and 18 laymen, will elect the Executive Committee. Mrs. N. A. McMillan was the one woman honored by the society with membership in the council. She will represent the home-making section.

Trade School for Girls Advocated at Meeting

Gathering Assembled by Women's Religious Board Is Addressed by Officials of Institutions in Other Cities.

A vocational or trade school for girls in St. Louis was advocated enthusiastically by women speakers remaining over from the national convention of vocational educators, addressing an audience assembled by the Women's Religious Board at the Statler Hotel yesterday for luncheon. This board, of which Mrs. Louis F. Brooks is chairman, is perpetuating certain activities of the defunct Women's Council of Defense. Mrs. Elias Michael is a leading spirit in its vocational educational projects.

Lewis Gustafson, superintendent of the Rankin School of Mechanical Trades, presided. Dr. David Snedden of Columbia University, New York, president of the association; Robert Kissack, director of manual training of the St. Louis public schools, and members of the Board of Education, also were at the speakers' table.

Dr. John W. Withers, Superintendent of Instruction, declared himself in sympathy with the movement for a girls' trade school. A number of surveys preliminary to such an undertaking would be necessary, however, he said; a survey of what instruction would be most in need and demand, of what vocational courses already are being offered, of what equipment is needed and on hand. The hostesses were advised to organize their committee, but no further action was taken.

Short Courses Advocated.

Dr. Gustafson in his address emphasized flexibility as a quality much to be desired in planning vocational courses. Six months' or three months' training proved sufficient to fit boys for new occupations during the war emergency, he pointed out. Such short courses should always be available, he said, so that one could come back and prepare one's self for a more desirable position when one reached a blind alley in one's occupation.

Miss Helen R. Hildreth of the Worcester (Mass.) Girls' Trade School also emphasized the importance of short courses and evening classes to which women already employed could return to fit themselves for higher positions. Three days' training in her school had sufficed to fit untried women workers in a muslin underwear factory, during the war, where weeks of apprenticeship ordinarily would have been required, she said.

Home-Making Discussed.

Mrs. Anna L. Burdick of the Federal Board of Vocational Training called attention to how, while taxpayers support the schools for those who are able to continue on through high schools, little is done for that most needy class—those who must leave school in the fifth and sixth grades. Their going into industry without training is a disadvantage both to the industry and the worker, she pointed out.

Miss Elizabeth Fish, principal of the Girls' Vocational High School of Minneapolis, emphasized the advantage of such a school being a part of the public school system, and freely accessible, and that importance of having girls' technical schools separate from boys', since invariably girls' trades were neglected for boys' trades.

Miss Isabel Ely Lord, director of household arts and sciences at Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, spoke on the needs of training for home making as a vocation, not only for the wage-earning houseworker but for the housewife.

"The ideal of the home has changed," she said, "from a place to which a woman retired in seclusion, to a workshop into which entered the interests of the world outside." A woman should give attention to her own family, of course, but also she should seek to relate the family life to the community.

She urged that extention work for housekeepers be kept free from striving after commercial standards. "Better learn to can plums with the idea of getting the most possible out of a bushel for the family to eat, than strive for one perfect can fit for exhibition or for sale," she declared.

The Question of Teachers.

Mrs. Lucinda Price, head of her own school of salesmanship in Boston, told how training had raised the standards of a salesmanship as a trade, both from the viewpoint of the employer and the employe. Where $3 a week was an acceptable wage for a beginner in 1905, she said, now girls begin at $6 and $8.50, but at that wage the employer demands a girl who can show a certificate of training.

Miss Cleo Murtland, who organized and directed the first girls' trade school in Philadelphia, spoke on the difficulty of getting the right teachers for such schools. The teacher should have worked at the trade to be taught, should have technical training as well as professional training in teaching and the right social attitude toward an occupation, inculcating respect for any honest occupation. At the same time, no tired teacher, merely desiring a change and no tradesperson who had proved unsuccessful or tired of his work, should be appointed.

Miss Fish pictured how ideals in their importance have shifted throughout the ages; how in ancient history the warrior was regarded as the most important figure; in medieval times, the priest; later, the capitalist. With the new era she predicted the laborer, the person who rendered service, would be most important. And that next the cry would be for universal if not compulsory training for the industries

The Car That Led All Interest at the Show

Now Come Here Where You Can Get
Thousands Crowded the Exhibit at the Show
A Good Look at the Essex

On every tongue at the Automobile Show last week there was but one word concerning the most interesting exhibit there—it was the Essex.

The newspapers mentioned that fact in their news columns. Everyone asked, "Have you seen and ridden in the new Essex?"

And practically everyone replied, "I didn't get a good chance, because there were always such crowds about it."

So Come to Our Store, Where You Can Both See and Ride in It

Here we will have plenty of Essex cars for inspection and for demonstration.

Everyone is urged to ride in the Essex. Our plan is to acquaint everyone with its qualities. We let the car do that. The salesmen will not annoy you with their urgings that you buy. The Essex speaks more convincingly than anything we can say.

Here you will have an opportunity to view it without interference from such crowds as surged about it at the show. You can see how finely it is finished. You can manipulate the levers and know how easily they operate and their convenient locations.

You will be able to compare the Essex with other cars you know. You will see how it combines all the advantages that have made the light, cheap car so popular with the qualities that make you proud of it.

If You Have a Light Car That You Like And Still Want One That Is Better

You will find it in the Essex.

It is interesting to note the type of motor car users that are most enthusiastic over the Essex. They are, for the most part, those who own good light cars. They had never been dissatisfied with the cars they own, but when they have seen and ridden in the Essex, they speak of the qualities it possesses that are absent on their cars.

That is because the Essex has many things that are exclusive to large, costly cars.

Its performance and its long endurance and the way in which it retains its newness are distinctive qualities.

Light, cheap cars, even of the better grades, do not ride so easily. They don't retain their good looks so long, nor remain so free from squeaks and rattles.

We Repeat Only What Others Are Saying

One famous motor expert, the head of one of the largest gasoline motor manufacturers in the industry, said, "The Essex has the most wonderfully designed motor that has been produced in years." He does not build the Essex motor. He has no interest in its manufacture. He recognized its new principle that accounts for its great power. He saw why the Essex is capable of speed that rivals that of large and costlier cars.

You had little chance to see these features in your hurried examination of the Essex at the show.

And We Want You to Ride in the Essex

We put it through every test that any car is given to prove easy riding qualities, acceleration and speed. Rough roads, cobble-stone pavements and chuck holes do not bother those who ride in the Essex.

You will be able to see how this is accomplished.

One man said his light car was all right, but that he had often driven miles out of the way to avoid the rough roads, because the rattles and squeaks made him feel his car would go to pieces.

"That one feature in the Essex, even if it possessed no other advantage," he said, "made it the car of his choice."

Three Buyers for Every Essex

That situation is assured by reports received from all parts of the country. Many distributors say their entire allotments for the year are already spoken for. They want more cars.

You ask then, why do we advertise. The Essex today dominates motor car interest. We intend that it shall do so throughout the year.

The Essex is on the map. It is there to stay by virtue of its exclusive qualities.

TWO ST. LOUIS MARINES ARE LISTED AS DEAD

They Were A. H. Hanson and Roy S. Holmes, Both of Whom Died of Disease.

Two deaths of St. Louis members of the United States Marine Corps were announced in yesterday's official casualty list. They were Arvid H. Hanson, 23 years old, of the Seventy-sixth Company, Sixth Regiment, formerly of 4035 Clayton avenue, died from wounds, and Roy S. Holmes, 1357A Shawmut place, died from disease.

The only name from St. Louis in the casualty list issued last night for publication today, was that of Samuel Dennison, 3254 North Twentieth street. He was reported previously as missing in action, and later as having returned to duty.

Short Official Casualty List Is Made Public.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The short official casualty list made public tonight, showed 102 army casualties, of which 38 are deaths from disease, six deaths from accident, and 58 are under the head of 'wounded severely." An accompanying official summary of army casualties listed to date shows the following figures:

Killed in action, 31,554; died from wounds, 13,139; died of disease, 19,722; died from accident and other causes, 2929; missing in action (not including prisoners released and returned), 6917; wounded in action (more than 85 per cent returned to duty), 187,296; total, 261,557.

The latest Marine Corps casualty total is 5766, of which 2284 are deaths. Added to the army figures, this gives a total of 267,323 casualties listed to date, of which 69,628 are deaths.

No name from Missouri, outside of St. Louis, appears in the latest list, which contains the following names from Illinois, outside of Chicago and suburbs:

Illinois.

Died of disease—Charlie Cox, Windsor; Arthur Meller, Fairdale.

Wounded severely—Herbert Boyer, Ewing; Harry Jarrett, Roby.

U. S. HAS NOT BEEN ASKED TO SHARE WAR BILLS OF ENTENTE

No Proposal Made for American to Wipe Out Credits to Allies, Treasury Department States.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—No proposal that the United States share the war expenses of the Entente Allies, or wipe out the debt of the allies to the United States, ever has been discussed among financial representatives of the nations, it was stated today by Treasury officials.

This statement was prompted by reports that French officials had agitated this course among peace conferees in Paris. The Treasury has an official denial from the French Government that any authorized French spokesman made proposals to this effect to President Wilson or American representatives.

"GO TO IT, BUSINESS MEN!"—And "put industry and commerce on a prosperous peace basis!" P.-D. "Help" wanted ads will find efficient workers.

Protest Against Board's Methods of Examining Recall Petitions

OFFICIALS of the Civic League and the Citizens' Referendum League, which circulated the petitions for Mayor Kiel's recall, yesterday sent to the Board of Election Commissioners the following protest against the board's methods of examining the petitions, and demanding that the Election Board submit to them promptly all the names and addresses which the board's clerks rule out on the ground that there seems to them to be dissimilarity in appearance from the signatures on the registration books.

"To the Honorable Board of Election Commissioners,

"City of St. Louis.

"Gentlemen:

"We herewith protest against the methods and rulings you have adopted in examining the petitions submitted to you for the recall of Mayor Henry W. Kiel, for the following reasons:

"1. Three of your members have shown a distinct bias in favor of the Mayor and a hostility to the submission of a recall at the general election on April 1.

"2. You have shown partisanship in the selection of clerks in that you have rejected every applicant who has acknowledged to have signed a petition and have employed only those who are presumably opposed to the recall of the Mayor.

"3. A clear bias has been shown by the public statements of some of your members to the effect that more than half of the signatures were bogus and that there would be not more than 20,000 valid signatures in all the petitions. These statements were made before any of the petitions were examined, and before any of your members could have had any knowledge of the number and character of the signatures.

"4. The subsequent actions of the majority of your board have clearly indicated that it is your intention by one process or another to endeavor to substantiate this advance declaration and all of your rulings lead unmistakably to the conclusion that you are determined to rule out a sufficient number of names to prevent this matter going to a vote of the people at the general election.

"5. You are going outside of the law to set up barriers against the acceptance of signatures by introducing rulings not specified in the recall provisions of the city charter.

"6. The instructions which you have given to the clerks to rule out all signatures which seem to them dissimilar in appearance from the signatures on the registration books is a purely arbitrary act, under the guise of which practically all signatures on all these petitions could be ruled out if the clerks decided to do so. Signatures vary widely according to the conditions under which they are written. These signatures were secured under adverse conditions, in the majority of cases on the streets, in factories and in a vast majority of cases when the signer was standing. On two days when petitions were being circulated they were signed in rain and snow. Under such circumstances there will be an inevitable dissimilarity in the signatures and under the ruling which you have made and the instruction which you have given your clerks they can rule out practically every signature on the 1257 petitions which have been submitted.

"7. This rule, if adhered to and established as a precedent, will practically kill not merely the recall provision of the city charter but the entire institution of the initiative, referendum and recall. Under this guise a hostile board could absolutely prevent the submission to the voters of any proposition to which the board objected. The law has already provided ample safeguards against the submission of bogus or forged signatures by requiring the affidavit from each circulator sworn to before a notary public and certifying to the validity of all signatures submitted by him. Under your ruling you are permitting a prejudiced clerk to declare a signature to be forgery and the affidavit of a circulator to be perjury.

"Your persistence in the employment of dilatory methods to prevent the submission of this important matter to a vote of the people at the general election not alone reflects upon the integrity of the legal machinery now provided for the expression of the will of the people but moreover will place upon you the responsibility for imposing upon the people the burden of the cost of a special election.

"We demand that you submit to us promptly all the names and addresses which your clerks rule out on the ground that there seems to them to be dissimilarity in appearance from the signatures on the registration books.

"CITIZENS' REFERENDUM LEAGUE, L. H. Proske, Manager.

"CIVIC LEAGUE OF ST. LOUIS, Louis F. Budenz, Secretary."

URGES MINERS TO UNITE FOR A SIX-HOUR DAY

Illinois District Head Sends Pamphlet on Plan to Eliminate Unemployment.

An effort on the part of coal miners throughout the country to reduce their working day to six hours and the number of working days to five a week, with no double-shift work, so that no lack of employment for mine workers will exist because of the decrease in industrial activity occasioned by the end of the war, is urged by Frank Farrington of Springfield, Ill., president of District 12, United Mine Workers of America, in a pamphlet sent to the members yesterday.

The pamphlet states that during the war the mining industry was over-developed fully 50 per cent, with the result that half of the men employed in the mines have been thrown out of work since the demand for coal has been reduced to normal. Because of this condition, it is contended, unemployment will exist and work will be best where wages are lowest, as the demand for coal will be largely supplied for districts where it can be purchased cheapest, with the inevitable result that the wage scale in districts where high wages prevail will be threatened by the plentifulness of labor.

Would Limit Production.

"We must create a condition whereby a low wage scale will be of no competitive value to an operator when it comes to getting a market for his coal," the pamphlet states, "and the only way that this can be done is to create a condition that will make it necessary to work all the mines full time in order to supply the demand for coal, and the only way that can be done is by reducing the hours of labor, and our salvation is in our ability to do so."

The pamphlet says that the unions should urge the intervention of the Government in limiting the production of coal. To accomplish this, the unions are to request that the opening of new operations be prohibited, except as the demand for coal increases. When these steps have been taken, the matter of adjusting and equalizing wages will be easily accomplished and the problem of the unemployed solved, it states.

Agreement Expires April 1.

In advising the methods to be used the pamphlet says: "We cannot hope to settle the problems by sporadic or lunatic rebellion. The flame of Bolshevism that, for the time, is spreading its poisonous vapor throughout the world and luring men to folly and disaster, will be of no avail. Instead it will take a hard, steady, united pull if we are to succeed."

The issuance of the pamphlets was inspired by the approaching termination on April 1 of the joint agreement between the miners and the operators.

any of them was shown to be not genuine. Commissioner Oscar E. Buder, Republican, and Charles J. Lammert, Democrat, continued to oppose the request.

Permission to examine the petitions was also refused to reporters, on the ground that only the board's employes could be permitted to handle them.

Chairman Schmoll expressed fear that the announcement of the clerks' findings, made from time to time, would enable the recall workers to find out how many more signatures they needed, and that they might get them and file them in time to bring about a vote April 1. Chairman Arnold of the board told him the latter procedure would not be permitted, and he expressed the opinion that Schmoll was trying, by obstructive tactics, to prevent a vote April 1, and then to cast on the recall workers the blame for the expense of a special election.

Mistakes in Clerks' Work.

Arnold yesterday morning told the clerks he had discovered between 60 and 75 mistakes in their checking Friday night, principally in the classification of names as to ward and precinct. He instructed them whenever a name did not appear on the registration books of the ward and precinct in which it had been classified, not to discard it from the petitions without first going to the city map and verifying whether the name had been placed in the proper ward and precinct.

In the afternoon officials of the Civic League and the Citizens' Referendum League, which circulated the recall petitions, sent a formal letter of protest to the Board of Election Commissioners, demanding that the Election Board submit to them promptly all the names and addresses which the board's clerks rule out on the ground that there seems to be dissimilarity in appearance from the signatures on the registration books.

The letter, signed by Manager Proske of the Citizens' Referendum League, and Secretary of the Civic League, sets forth seven complaints against the methods and rulings adopted by the Election Board in examining the recall petitions.

At a meeting of the Election Board in the morning, Chairman Arnold said the checkers were too critical in the matter of handwriting, and that they did not take into account sufficiently the difference in a man's writing on the registration books, with pen and ink, and on the petitions, with pencil and usually in an inconvenient or cramped position. He said he tested this matter on one of the checkers, who said that all the names on a certain petition were, in his opinion, forged.

"I handed him a slip of paper and told him to write his name quickly," said Arnold. "Then I compared his signature with his name on the roster of judges and clerks and found that the signature not only did not look alike but the names were spelled differently. On the slip of paper he had spelled his name with one final "n," but as written on the book it had two. This checker then told me he was of German descent and that after we entered the war he had dropped one of the final "n's" from his name. He admitted that if he did not know that he had signed the book he would have thrown his own name out when making the comparison."

Suggestion to Checkers.

Chairman Arnold then suggested that the checkers be instructed not to note that any signatures were dis-similar unless satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt. Buder objected to the use of the term "reasonable doubt" as being vague. Lammert then suggested the instruction which was finally given to the checkers, with an amendment which struck out the word "satisfied" and let it in such form as to require that checkers be "absolutely positive" before throwing out a name.

MY TIRED FEET ACHED FOR "TIZ"

Let your sore, swollen, aching feet spread out in a bath of "TIZ"

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "Tiz" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "Tiz" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "Tiz." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "Tiz." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

Get a 25-cent box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel. You can wear shoes a size smaller if you desire.—ADV..

De Palma Smashes World's Records on Goodyear Cords

When Ralph De Palma shattered a galaxy of world's automobile speed records at Daytona Beach on Lincoln's Birthday, he rode on Goodyear Cord Tires.

As his Packard Special bulleted forward in its furious attempt against time, perhaps the heaviest strains of the test were concentrated on these tires.

Think of the intense heat and friction resisted by his Goodyear Cord Tires, revolving 1500 times per minute on a soft beach!

Think of this gruelling contest being kept up for 20 miles at the rate of nearly 150 miles per hour, the fastest time ever made by a self-propelled vehicle on mother earth.

We wish you could have seen De Palma's Goodyear Cord Tires at the end of the ordeal, looking fresh and unscathed.

You might have realized then that their spectacular performance meant more than their return to all motor activities, following a brief scarcity during the war.

It meant that Goodyear Cord Tires are now being built to meet even larger expectations of mileage, heavier tasks, more varied service than at any previous time.

It meant that although the superiorities of these tires may cost a little more in the beginning, more than ever now they cost less in the end.

Your nearest Goodyear Service Station is now prepared to supply Goodyear Cord Tires for your car.

Go to this station and get these tires—and yourself enjoy the kind of tire-goodness that carried De Palma to victory.

Focus Your Sales Campaign In The Chicago Territory

Newspaper Advertising

Practical experience is more and more forcing advertisers to the conclusion that the most efficient form of advertising is that which utilizes newspapers.

Newspaper advertising towers above all other forms of advertising, not only in volume but also in service to those who buy it and to those who read it—constituting the greatest public market in each community for the exchange of services or commodities.

Newspaper advertising is the only truly national form of advertising, in that it appeals to all the people of the nation rather than to all the geographical abstractions.

Chicago Tribune Advertising

Advertising in The Chicago Tribune is the highest type of advertising in the world today—clean, honest, efficient, actually being three hundred and sixty-five days in the year what advertising should be—actually serving many hundreds of thousands of people every day as advertising should serve them.

Chicago Tribune advertising is more important than its volume would indicate—and it has surpassing volume. It is more important than Tribune circulation would indicate—and that circulation is overwhelming.

The Chicago Tribune, the world's greatest newspaper, is most emphatically the world's greatest advertising medium for the reasons briefly summarized below.

Chicago Tribune Advertising Sways Millions—in Five Big Rich States

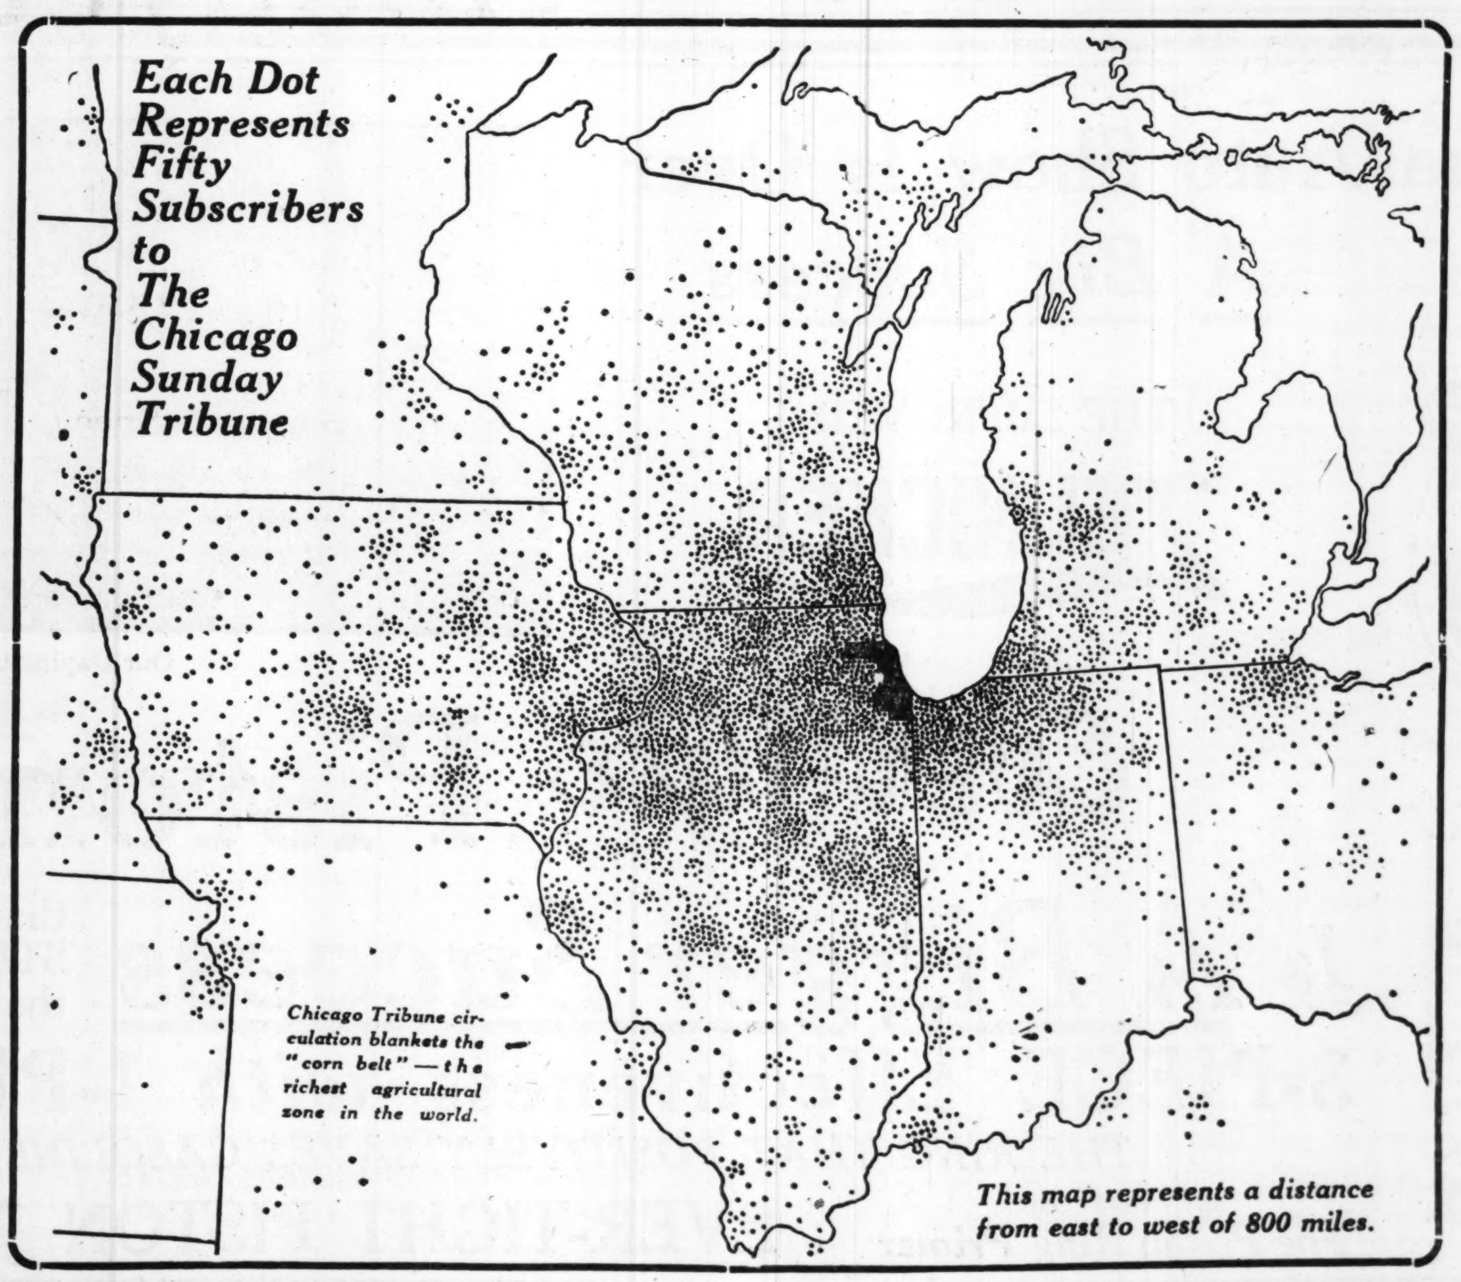
Wonderful Richness of the Chicago Territory

Advertising in The Chicago Tribune influences the purchases made by an unequaled aggregation of purchasing power—dominates a market of five great states, compact yet imperial—a market in which one-seventh of the population of the United States furnished one-fifth of the subscribers to Liberty Bonds—a market which raises one-fifth of the crops of the nation, produces one-fifth of the manufactures and possesses one-fifth of the wealth.

Wide Circulation of The Chicago Tribune in the Chicago Territory

In this magnificent market comprising these blue-ribbon commonwealths—Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin—The Chicago Tribune is read by one family in five. The map on this page pictures in graphic form the remarkable distribution of The Chicago Tribune throughout the ever-prosperous corn belt. Only a professional advertising or circulation man can appreciate the record of The Chicago Tribune in selling more than 400,000 copies each of six week days, and more than 700,000 copies each Sunday, at retail prices ranging from 2c and 5c for the Daily to 7c and 10c for the Sunday paper—25,000 more circulation than the next Chicago paper Daily and 100,000 more than the next Chicago paper Sunday.

Of the five states of The Chicago Territory, Iowa is the most distant from Chicago, yet The Chicago Tribune has more readers in Iowa than the largest national magazine. Furthermore, its prestige is out of proportion to the number of its readers. What people pay for anything is some measure of their regard for it. The people of Iowa pay approximately $206,382 per annum for the largest national weekly and the largest woman's monthly and the largest farm journal, all three combined. On the other hand, they pay more than twice this amount, approximately $444,709 per annum for The Chicago Tribune, of which $254,335 is for the Sunday issue and $190,364 is for the Daily. That is to say, they pay more to read one of the seven issues of The Chicago Tribune each week than to read three leading magazines.



Each Dot Represents Fifty Subscribers to The Chicago Sunday Tribune

Chicago Tribune circulation blankets the "corn belt"—the richest agricultural zone in the world.

This map represents a distance from east to west of 800 miles.

Desirable Character of Chicago Tribune Readers

These statistics give some clue to the character of the people who buy The Chicago Tribune. The character of the news, editorials, and features in The Chicago Tribune indicates a clientele of the best people in every community it reaches. The tremendous volume of clean, high-grade advertising proves conclusively that Tribune readers constitute the world's greatest market.

Just as a magnet passing over a sand pile draws out the particles of iron, so The Chicago Tribune has established communication with more than 700,000 families which are the most desirable in its vast territory—most in accord with all the sturdy, progressive Americanism for which The Tribune stands. They are not all rich. Their numbers are so great that they necessarily represent mass circulation, but they are the best of each stratum—the best mechanics—the best manufacturers—the best clerks—the best merchants—the best housewives.

Responsiveness of Chicago Tribune Readers

It is common for readers of a publication to become accustomed to particular features. They "get the habit" of reading the Lino-o'Type or following Briggs' cartoons, watching the Financial Page or the Fashion Notes. By many years of intelligent, intensive work, The Chicago Tribune has educated its readers in its advertising until by thousands, by tens of thousands, by scores of thousands, and now by hundreds of thousands, they have "the habit" of reading and responding to Tribune advertising. They have been taught that Tribune advertising is clean, convinced that it is worth money to them, sold on its value, until many of them buy the paper because of its large volume of exclusive advertising. They consciously use Tribune advertising as a guide in their daily purchases.

During 1918 2,994,805 replies to want ads with box number addresses were mailed or brought to The Chicago Tribune. It is estimated that in addition three times this number were telephoned or mailed to the advertiser or answered in person. Therefore, the total response which Chicago Tribune readers made to Tribune want ads alone must have approximated twelve million replies.

Chicago Tribune Merchandising Theories and Practice

Some years ago The Chicago Tribune formulated this theory:

> The Tribune considers it a waste of money to advertise a product distributed through the retail and jobbing trade until that trade has been supplied with merchandise to take care of the consumer demand when created.

How radically this differed from the old method of using advertising to force distribution only one familiar with jobbing and retailing can appreciate. The story of how The Chicago Tribune spent fortunes in order to live up to its theory—the story of Chicago Tribune Merchandising service—is too big to tell even on another page like this. It is a story which has new chapters every day. If you are interested in the sale of any product to the general public, ask The Chicago Tribune to send a merchandising expert to give you the benefit of our wide experience.

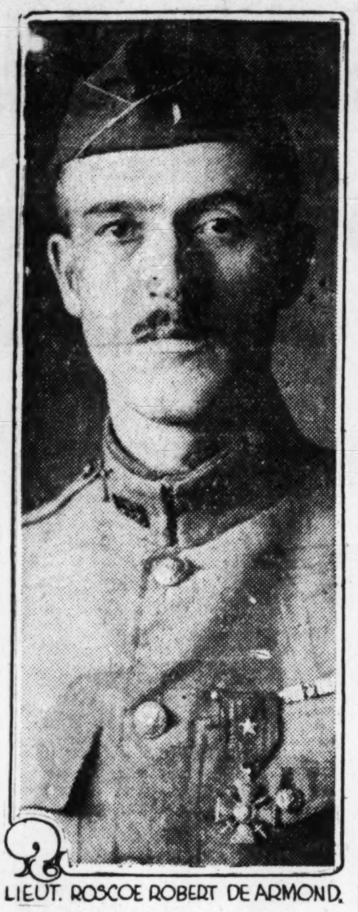
LIEUT. DE ARMOND AT BARRACKS WITH MEN FOR DISCHARGE

St. Louisan Served Overseas With Negro Unit Which Claims to Have Been First to Reach Rhine.

HE AND TWO WITH HIM WON FRENCH CROSS

Officer Praises Fighting Qualities of the 369th Infantry—Six St. Louis Soldiers in Party.

OFFICER WHO LED NEGROES IN BATTLE



LIEUT. ROSCOE ROBERT DE ARMOND.

Lieut. Roscoe Robert DeArmond, former St. Louisan, who served overseas in the 369th Infantry, a negro regiment, which claims the distinction of being the first American unit to reach the Rhine following the signing of the armistice, arrived at Jefferson Barracks yesterday in charge of 44 negro soldiers from Camp Upton, N. Y., to be discharged. Six are St. Louisans. The regiment was brigaded with the 161st French division and was in the lines almost continuously from March, 1918, until the cessation of hostilities.

Lieut. DeArmond and two Missourians in the group have been decorated with the Croix de Guerre with star. They are Private Myrl Billings of Springfield and Private Louis Martin of Hannibal. They were decorated following exceptional bravery shown in the capture of two Germans in a hand-to-hand fight in a deserted trench, Sept. 12 last. In addition to being awarded the War Cross, Lieut DeArmond was cited in a general order signed by Gen. Petain of the French General Staff as follows:

"Lieut. DeArmond of F Company, 369th Infantry, from Sept. 26 to 29, 1918, led his section with the greatest courage, keeping his men with him under the greatest difficulties. Caring for his wounded men under circumstances of very great danger, he kept ahead to the very limit of shell fire in pursuing the enemy, where he was wounded by an exploding shell."

Exploit in Champagne Sector.

He had his most exciting adventures Sept. 26 in the Champagne sector. When a general attack began at 5:10 a. m. DeArmond's platoon went over the top behind two platoons of French.

"Two days later," the Lieutenant said, "we leapfrogged the French and took over the brunt of the attack. At daybreak we found ourselves in a little valley. In some way we went too fast and got into a sort of pocket and some of the German machine guns began to shoot in a heavy enfilading fire. The result was we had to pull out of there. The French broke and we broke and we all fell back.

"I jumped into one of two big shell holes in an eight-foot bank, and every straggler that come along I pulled in. Finally there were 39 men gathered there—four Frenchmen, two Moroccans and the rest negroes.

Receives Croix de Guerre.

"About this time we began to notice a fellow who I swear is the bravest boche officer I ever saw. He entirely disregarded danger and stood in plain sight on the parapet of the boche trenches in a little hedge near the crest of a hill, 600 yards away, watching us through field glasses. Finally, the firing died down and we got kind of brave. I got the 39 chaps together and we went out and gathered in about 21 wounded men. All this time the boche officer was standing up there on that trench watching us, but not a shot was fired. I guess he respected the fact that we were doing a work of rescue. Anyway, we didn't fire on him, either. For that I was cited and received the Croix de Guerre and all the rest. The next day I was wounded. The same shell that struck me killed seven of my men and wounded 15 others. I was wounded about 11 a. m. I remember it was on a little road and the boche was just giving us hell. Shells of all descriptions were flying by there, and all of a sudden I got mine. Some fragments hit me in the left arm and I was knocked flat by a flying rock. My left side was paralyzed for eight days and the concussion was so great that I bled from the nose, mouth and ears. I did not rejoin my company until a week before the armistice was signed, having spent all the rest of the time recuperating in a French base hospital.

Praises Negroes as Fighters.

"I rejoined my company at Thann, a little place down in the Vosges. Here there were no trenches, but 'strong points.' Hilltops were fenced in with three or four lines of barbed wire with bells on the gates and inside a system of dugouts. At night it was dark as pitch and wildcats that infested that vicinity would bump against the gates, set off the bells, and first thing you knew all the negroes would go to firing grenades into the dark swearing that the boche was attacking.

"We saw them sometimes in the daytime cutting wood, but we did not fire because both sides played a watchful waiting policy along there. One time a boche soldier held up a can of tobacco and yelled: 'Come on over and have a smoke.' One of our fellows replied, holding aloft a loaf of bread: 'Come on over here and we'll give you something to eat.'

"The negroes were great fighters though, and I give them all the credit possible. They were irrepressible humorists. Of course the front lines are no place for hilarity and yet, do you know that those fellows were always bringing in banjos, French horns and even jews-harps which they would play at all hours.

"Men Always Cutting Up."

"They were always laughing and cutting up in the dugouts. Their proclivity in that direction got us into trouble once. Some German 'listener in' picked up the fact that the French were to relieve us that night. Seven boche soldiers and several officers slipped over after dark and penetrated past our own front line. They came up on a communication trench and, challenged by the sentry, replied in a low voice 'Francaise relief.' Well, the sentry fell for it and they not only took him prisoner, but four others, including a Lieutenant who was standing at the mouth of a dugout. They were quietly taking over the whole platoon when they ran into a Sergeant Blake moseying down the trenches. The soil in Champagne is rather chalky and he made out the round form of the cap one of the German officers was wearing

"'The boche,' he screamed, and fled around a traverse. Returning with an automatic rifle he opened fire on the advancing party, wounding the American Lieutenant, who was in the lead, but killing the raiders.

De Armond was formerly a manager of the Russell G ain Co. here, and was a member of the Merchant's Exchange. After the United States entered the war he attended the second officer's camp at Fort Sheridan, Ill., and immediately after his graduation was sent overseas. He served with the 39th and 77th Divisions in Flanders during the early months of his fighting experiences. The latter is the organization to which the famous "Lost Battalion" belonged.

During the year 1918 the Post-Dispatch printed 88,511 Female Help "Wants"—8229 more than the FOUR other St. Louis newspapers combined.

FIRESTONE MEN TO MEET.

On Tuesday F. C. Rudisell, branch manager of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., will give a dinner to 40 St. Louis tire men who are connected with the orange and blue stores which handle the city Firestone sales. This will follow a salesmen's meeting at the branch in the afternoon to meet E. W. BeSaw, sales manager from the factory, and C. H. Gerhold, the manager of the accessory department. P. B. Talbott, district manager, Mr. Hulke, district credit man, and Mr. Waddell, advertising manager at the factory, will also talk to the dealers on their respective departments.

ST. CHARLES ROCK ROAD IN BAD CONDITION

There is much complaint both among St. Louis motorists and among St. Louis County and St. Charles County farmers as to the condition of St. Charles Rock road, which is pronounced one of the worst in St. Louis County. From Wellston to St. Charles it is full of bad holes and ruts, making driving either in automobiles or horse-drawn vehicles unpleasant at day time and actually dangerous at night.

The condition of this road is to be taken up at a meeting to be held Tuesday night of the business men of Wellston and a proposition is to be put to them to repair the road from funds raised by popular subscription among the merchants of Wellston if the County Court cannot be induced to make the necessary repairs.

Much Interest in Auto Lock.

The recent show demonstrated the great demand for auto locks of efficient type.

Dealers took very readily to the Johnson auto lock and placed orders of large proportions. There were dealers represented from the entire southwest and all ordered heavily.

In view of the great number of automobile thefts and the rigid rules of the insurance companies regarding protective devices on cars, the demand for auto locks has developed with great strides. The Johnson auto lock has become firmly established and has proven efficient and popular.

The entire distribution of the Johnson auto lock is controlled by the Edwards Sales Co. of St. Louis.

Absorbing Shock Strip Means Greater Mileage

Racine Absorbing Shock Strip means more tire mileage for Racine Multi-Mile Cord users. It means bigger returns for every dollar invested.

The Racine Absorbing Shock Strip is an extra strip of rubber scientifically compounded to equalize the flex of body and tread. It distributes the force of road blows evenly through every part of the tread. It takes up shocks of the road and eliminates danger of tread and carcass separation.

Study the illustration. Note how the cord construction is protected by this exclusive development of Racine Rubber Company chemists.

The Racine Multi-Mile Cord non-skid design, is scientifically constructed to overcome skidding danger. On slippery, treacherous pavements, the bevelled edges hold your wheels true to their course.

AUTO SHOW CLOSES WITH MERRY DANCE AND GOOD RESULTS

St. Louis' Twelfth Annual Motor Exhibit, in Attendance and Sales of Cars, Was Best Ever Held Here and One of Best in Country.

With music and merry dancing by the public the twelfth annual St. Louis Automobile Show closed Saturday night at the Exhibit Building and made new history in St. Louis automobile circles. According to the management the figures up to the close of the show Saturday night at 11 p. m. showed an increase in the attendance of a little under 35 per cent over the previous year and more than that over any year prior to this.

The results to the exhibitors was much more satisfactory than at any previous show. A partial census was made to find the number of cars that had been sold during the show. One concern handling a car in the thousand dollar class sold 395 cars during the show. This included cars sold to sub-dealers at wholesale, in the St. Louis territory, and the cars sold at retail to users. Another big company reported sales of 290 cars to dealers and users. This includes, only in the case of dealers, sales to newly appointed sub-agents.

The total attendance for the entire week was a little under 100,000 passed through the gates. The largest attendance was Monday night when 24,000 people passed through the gates and cash turnstiles, and although a large number of free tickets were out for the night, the cash recipts were $1850.

The exhibitors at the show who are best satisfied with the results this year are those in the automotive equipment section. For the first time in the history of the St. Louis show, and for that mater in the history of any show in any city, the exhibitors in the automotive equipment section were given adequate and desirable space and their two sections at the show, on the Broadway and Fourth street corridors, were constantly thronged with people.

B. O. LEFTWICH STARTS NEW SERVICE COMPANY

A new service company operating exclusively from the owners' point of view has been organized by B. O. Leftwich, who was the originator of free road service to motorists and the organizer and, until recently, general manager of the Bittel-Leftwich Co. Associated with B. C. Leftwich is George C. Tandy, formerly connected with Bittel-Leftwich, a man with quate a few years' experience with quite a few years' experience

The company is called the "Associated Automobile Service Co." It is the purpose of this company to sell their service plan direct to the consumer; in other words, instead of operating automobile tire service, etc., from the standpoint of the tire company, it will be operated entirely from the standpoint of the owner. They plan to give the owner not only free road service, but also free emergency mechanical service, free towing in case they need it, to wash and polish one car of each owner twice a month and to give the owner expert advice on all questions pertaining to automobile equipment. Both of these gentlemen are in a position to give expert advice from their years of experience in the automobile business.

They will open up a large establishment not very far from Grand and Olive and will operate day and night continuously. They have several new ingenious features being installed in this establishment, such as a wash rack that will enable them to wash and polish a car in an expert manner within 20 to 25 minutes.

It is also their plan to allow the owners who join this proposition to store their cars with this company while they are out of town for a period not to exceed two weeks.

PREDICTS BIG YEAR AS RESULT OF SHOW

"The interest, enthusiasm and the actual buying which prevailed throughout the entire show week reminded one," said J. D. Barth of the Barth Motor Car Co., "of the early days when I first entered the business, 10 years ago.

"Automobile shows have always stimulated business more or less, but of late years people were given more to inspecting the various exhibits and comparing car designs and prices and deciding on the make of car they wanted to drive after the show was over. This year, however, retail sales right on the show floor were reported with great frequency and those who did not make their purchase have at least made their selection.

"If every automobile man in St. Louis does not get his share of the business to be had this year it will be his fault and not the fault of the times or conditions."

During the week W. F. Donlin, assistant sales manager, and Robert T. Walsh, publicity manager of the King Motor Car Co., spent the week with Barth and are loud in their praise of the St. Louis exhibition. Mr. Donlin in particular, who has visited most of the cities where shows have already been held, says that the St. Louis show is one of the finest he has attended, from every point of view, and if other cities match up in attendance and real business with the St. Louis show it looks like the great problem the dealers and factories will have to contend with will be the production of enough cars to go around.

Delco Expert in New Work.

W. Y. Haggard, formerly assistant service manager, Packard Motor Car Co., and an expert Delco man, has accepted the same position with the Automotive Electrical Service Co., 2129 Locust street, authorized Delco Klaxon, Remy service distributors.

WHISTLE BOTTLING CO. BUYS SANDOW FLEET

What was probably the biggest single commercial car order closed during the show and one of the largest made in St. Louis in many months was signed Friday night by J. E. Tate, manager of the Bishop Truck and Tractor Co. The Whistle Bottling Co. were the purchasers, Ves Jones, the president of the company, having decided to standardize their entire equipment with Sandow two-ton trucks.

The first 10 of these are to be delivered within 30 days. The chassis will come through from the factory painted in orange color trimmed with blue to conform in color with all of their advertising.

In addition to this first initial order, the Whistle Bottling Co., which operates branches throughout the United States and Canada, will supply all these branches with Sandow equipment, which will be purchased through Bishop.

The Whistle Co., which were the originators of Orange Whistle, a soft drink, have experienced a phenomenal growth and during the coming year are planning to extend their distribution throughout every section of the country.

"Mr. Jones, before deciding finally upon the Sandow as standard equipment made a most searching investigation of the leading lines of commercial cars," said Tate in speaking of the sale, "it was the many exclusive features of the Sandow that won for it the decision. The Sandow safety starter, the patented power increaser, the nickel steel cross member, which insures support for any overload, and the demountable motor are features sure to interest the experienced truck operator."

"The show this year was by far the biggest business producer in the history of the motor car business in St. Louis," said Frank Bishop last night. "The signed sales and contracts, each of which is protected by a deposit, on our four lines—the Briscoe, Liberty, Sandow truck and Sandusky tractor—aggregate the astonishing sum of $213,155, or almost a quarter of a million dollars' worth of business."

BELIEVES IN TRUTH IN ALL ADVERTISING

According to F. B. Caswell, sales manager of the Champion Spark Plug Co. of Toledo, O., who visited the St. Louis show last week, said the American people should be given some of the credit or blame for the coining of the word "camouflage." It is his contention that writers of advertising copy in this country were past masters in the art of "making things look like what they ain't" long before the war began, but that it remained for a Frenchman to sum it all up in the one word—camouflage.

"I don't want to cast any reflections on the advertising fraternity as a whole," states Mr. Caswell, "because I am deeply interested and a firm believer in truthful advertising myself. Neither do I blame the copy writer who writes the advertisement, for in most cases he is simply following out instructions of the man higher up. By higher up I mean the man or group of men who are spending their money to exploit their goods.

"Take some of the advertisements of automobile accessories—spark plugs, for instance. It is a well-known fact that Ford, Overland, Studebaker, Maxwell and one or two others comprise the cream of the so-called quantity producers of motor cars. It is also well known to the trade that Champion Spark Plugs are used as regular equipment on all four of these cars, in addition to over 200 other makes of gasoline-driven vehicles. Nevertheless, there are manufacturers of spark plugs who do not hesitate to feature the names of these cars in their advertisements in such a way as to mislead the public into believing that their product is made especially for these cars. In fact, the average reader of one of these advertisements would take it for granted that his Ford, Overland, Studebaker or Maxwell was equipped with this type of plug when it left the factory, while in reality it carried Champions.

"It is ths kind of misrepresentation that causes people to lose fath in advertising. Advertising is on a hgher plane today than t ever was before, but there is still room for improvement."

NEW SERVICE BOOK ON HYATT BEARINGS

The tractor bearings division of the Hyatt Roller Bearing Co., has issued from its headquarters in Chicago, a service hand book on Hyatt equipped tractors showing the location of Hyatt bearings and listing their serial numbers. The book can be had for the asking.

A main feature of the book is the emphasis laid on the fact that service on Hyatt bearings can be obtained by individuals and garages, from the 22 branches and 750 distributors of the Bearings Service Co. located throughout the United States and Canada.

"The Bearings Service Company has from its inception handled the entire Hyatt Service business and is admirably equipped to furnish users or dealers with any Hyatt Bearing made for any tractor ever built—with quickness, certainty and economy," says the book.

"By dealing directly with the Bearings Service Co., 3300 Locust street, St. Louis, Mo., you can save time, have difficulties adjusted, and secure the service of men thoroughly trained to the needs of bearing users."

NEW FACTORY FOR THE SCRIPPS-BOOTH

H. L. Schnure of the Velie Automobile Co., distributors for the Scripps-Booth cars for St. Louis and territory, was advised while at the Chicago show that the General Motors Corporation, which recently gained control of the Scripps-Booth, will establish that company in a new $1,500,000 factory building as soon as a suitable site can be obtained.

The proposed plant will have a capacity of 25,000 cars annually. Scripps-Booth was not seriously affected by the sudden ending of the war, inasmuch as they were not engaged very extensively in Government work. The company is running 20 cars daily, but during February it expects to boost production to 30 cars. While 5500 cars were built last year, the 1919 schedule calls for the manufacture of 10,000.

SAXON WILL OCCUPY NEW $1,500,000 HOME

The huge concrete and steel plant built for the Saxon Motor Car Corporation will soon be ready for occupancy, according to John Boe of the St. Louis Motor Car Co.

Just as the plant was nearing completion the country was plunged into war. The Government, looking about for warehouses big enough to house the trappings of a nation at war, took over the new Saxon plant for the duration of hostilities. It became a supply depot for a vast treasure in military stores. Aircraft engines, war trucks, officers' cars filled the big building and soldiers were on guard day and night.

As the Government is able to divert its war materials into civilian uses its great military warehouses will be emptied. The new Saxon plant will then be available as the ultra-modern home of Saxon Six.

It is located within five miles of the center of Detroit on a 40-acre tract valued at $5000 an acre. The property fronts upon a terminal railroad, thus affording excellent shipping facilities.

Big Business for U. & J.

One of the most popular exhibits at the Auto Show was that of the U. & J. carburetor, for which L. B. Tebbetts & Co., 2125 Locust street, are distributors for Missouri, Kansas and Southern Illinois.

Tebbett sreported that in addition to a large number of sales to individual Ford owners he had closed with 40 additional dealers for handling the U. & J. in his territory.

"While I give a great deal of credit for the large business done during the show to the fact that we had a good display," Tebbetts said in discussing the sales made, "still I belive that the biggest factor was the hook-up between the display and the advertising I did last Sunday and for the past six months in the St. Louis Sunday newspapers. Practically every dealer who took on the U. & J. was already acquainted with the performance of the U. & J. as told in our advertisements.

ADD IMPROVEMENTS TO RACINE CORDS

Engineers are credited with the creation of the modern automobile, due to their remarkable development of the internal combustion engine and the advancement in chassis construction. Chemists have been left to the undisputed claim of having made possible the present pneumatic tire, which carries out in fact what was once regarded as a dangerous experiment, "riding on air."

The latest and most amazing advance in tire construction is that announced by the laboratories of the Racine Rubber Co. in the perfection and adoption of what is called an absorbing shock strip. For the present this distinct innovation is being used in the construction of cord tires by the Racine Rubber Co.

It is described as an extra strip of rubber, specially compounded to a graduated degree of resiliency. Through this graduated strip the tough rubber tread and the resilient cord carcass are welded together into a rugged, wear-resisting whole.

Cord tire manufacturers have long been seeking an effective safeguard against the danger of tread and carcass separation. This absorbing shock strip has been hailed as a solution to this problem because it permits of a "neutral zone" where the jolts and jars of the road are taken up in order that the millions of tiny cords impregnated with rubber may not be disturbed by the violence of road bumps.

This absorbing shock strip has been put through the tests of two years of service and has come through standing up. Authorities agree that this achievement marks the greatest advancement in automobile tire construction since the introduction of the cord tire.

A HOTEL ON WHEELS.

Touring in your own hotel is a new motoring idea for which Charles G. Barley, president of the Indiana Truck Corporation, Marion, Ind., is responsible.

Mr. Barley and a party of three this spring will make a 400-mile trip to California and back in a "hotel" built upon two-ton Indiana truck chassis, mounted upon pneumatic tires.

Built into the chassis is a sleeping room for five people, including the driver. There is a kitchen and complete cooking apparatus, a small living room, a hall 20 inches wide between the sleeping compartment and a lighting system. The truck is also equipped with lavatory and toilet, shovels, picks, a powerful searchlight for the driver's seat, clothing chests, etc. There is a large refrigerator for cooling water and keeping food.

The sleeping compartments for each person are 26 inches wide, with springs and hair mattresses. The top of the truck is equipped wtih a canopy, like a regular army truck, and one side of this canopy is of sufficient length so it can be stretched to the ground and made into a regular tent.

There is also a space provided in the "hotel" for a motor cycle, for use of the driver on special errands. The truck, in addition to being equipped with pneumatic tires, has shock absorbers and snubbers, and Mr. Barley states that without pneumatic tire equipment such a trip would not be possible. The standard wheel base of the truck has been lengthened to provide for the equipment.

Trips like the above are sure to come into vogue with people fond of outdoor life. And it is expected that people making fishing trips to faraway points, camping trips and the like, will, providing they have the means, acquire equipment like that built by Mr. Barley.

IRVING COBB IN DORRIS ON FRENCH WAR FRONT

J. G. Faust, 5401 Easton avenue, has turned over to the Dorris Motor Car Co. a letter from his son, Private G. L. Faust, who is in the army in France, one sentence of which was very interesting to the Dorris Company officials. He wrote:

"Dear Folks: 'We had a surprise yesterday. Irving S. This auto tire valve and dust cap are attracting much attention in the motor world and appears to fill a long-felt want. The claim made by the manufacturer is that the valve is positively air-tight.

OVERLAND TO PRODUCE 400 CARS A DAY

By March 1 Willys-Overland, Inc., will have attained a production of 400 cars per day. This number will be increased as rapidly as conditions will permit.

This announcement was made yesterday by Overland officials.

Anticipating an unprecedented demand for cars, the Overland, since the signing of the armistice and the cancellation of its enormous Government contracts, has bent every effort toward the conversion of its energies to the production of automobiles. While the work of transformation is not yet complete, remarkable strides have been made in the last two months toward this end.

The Willys-Overland halted its production of motor cars on Nov. 1 and concentrated entirely upon the manufacture of war materials. Immediately after the cessation of hostilities plans formulated in advance for converting the various plants back to peace-time activities were put into effect. The rapid approach to capacity production is the result.

Dealers everywhere report unprecedented business for January and February and, spurred on by future prospects, are clamoring for cars in quantities which at the present are not to be had. One Overland dealer writes that his business for the first month of the year was 300 per cent greater than for any previous January. Reports of Willys-Overland, Inc., show that retail sales this year to date very largely surpass those of the same period last year and equal to those of the same months of 1917, the best year the automobile industry ever had. In proportion to supply, the demand for cars so far this year is far ahead of that of any preceding year.

SAWYER GETS ARMY MEN.

D. E. Sawyer, vice president and general manager of the Automotive Electrical Service Co., 2129 Locust street, authorized distributors for Delco-Klaxon-Remy service, has employed five expert electricians recently discharged from the army. He expects to add two more army men to his force. He reports that these men are the highest grade electricians he has come in contact with.

To Sell Hassler Shock Absorbers.

An announcement of unusual interest to Ford owners is that of L. B. Tebbetts & Co., 2125 Locust street, to the effect that they have taken on the distribution for St. Louis and St. Louis County of the Hassler Shock Absorber for Ford cars and Ford trucks.

The Tebbetts Co. has made a rather unusual success with the U. & J. carburetor, and the addition of the Hassler to the line is due to the hobby of L. B. Tebbetts, who is an engineer by training, to handle automobile devices that make for economy and greater satisfaction in driving.

The installation of a Hassler shock absorber on a Ford car or Ford truck means more miles per gallon of gasoline, less tire expense and a general reduction in upkeep, according to Tebbetts. By absorbing the road shocks it also makes the riding easier. The Hassler is guaranteed for the life of the car and is sold on the basis of refund of the purchase price if not satisfactory after 15 days' trial.

Dort owners and others should send for the "War Memorial Number" of our periodical, DORT DOINGS, published January 15. It tells a graphic story, mostly in pictures, of this Company's activities during the war and will prove a valuable souvenir to those interested in the big part played by the automobile industry in the great conflict. Yours for the asking.

How Many Profits Does Your Car Carry?

99% of the Briscoe car is produced from the raw material right in the 43-acre Briscoe plants. There is no piling up of separate profits on a hundred parts for you to pay.

That is why the Briscoe today offers the best dollar-value in the world. That is why we are able to give you a better motor, better springs, better bodies—a better car throughout.

Don't take our word for it. Investigate and make your own comparisons.

BRISCOE

AUTO NOTES and GOSSIP.

Capt. O. L. Halsey, formerly head of the Halsey Automobile Co. of St. Louis, who has been in the service for some years, was one of the much-welcomed guests at the Automobile Show.

James C. Smith, who was formerly branch manager for Nash trucks at Duluth, has come to St. Louis in an important capacity with the International Mack Corporation.

L. H. Whedon, who has been connected with piston ring concerns in St. Louis for several years, has cast his fortune with the Inland Machine Works in the sales department.

Elliott W. Major Jr., who is the son of the former Governor of Missouri, Elliott W. Major, has joined the sales force of the Johnson Automobile Co., Ford distributors, and made his debut at the Automobile Show by selling three cars.

L. K. Cooper, who has been sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co. of St. Louis, has been transferred to the New York office and F. N. Coates, who has been with the Minneapolis Chevrolet distributor, will take his position with the St. Louis factory.

Samuel Weir, general representative of the Commerce Motor Car Co. of Detroit, is in St. Louis at the Statler Hotel seeking a St. Louis distributor for the Commerce truck.

S. R. Jones, district manager for the Moon Motor Car Co., closed a contract Saturday for 100 of the Victory Light Six Moon cars with J. C. Beare, dealer at Sparta, Ill. This was one of the largest single sales made at the Automobile Show.

The exhibit of the Gasograph, a novel gasoline gauge, made at the Auto Show by the New Standard Adding Machine Co., attracted much attention.

W. A. Lee and J. Jokerst have taken the local distribution for the Dayton Pump and Manufacturing Co.

The Bailey Auto Body Co., distributors of the B. P. M. C. trailer, had on display at the Auto Show of these three spring suspension trailers. F. C. Corson, treasurer of the B. F. Mfg. Co., reports the closing with dealers of Colorado, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Mexico while in the city.

J. W. Harris, special representative of the United Motors, Inc., was in St. Louis last Thursday conferring with the Automotive Electrical Service Co., St. Louis distributors for Delco, Klaxon and Remy service.

I. Kommers of the St. Louis Nash Co. reports the following show sales: C. H. Edlin, 5754 Ridge avenue, sedan; J. B. Gander, 4937 Lisette avenue, coupe; L. M. Broheimer, 4935 Lisette avenue, coupe; J. E. Burdick, 1120 Washington avenue, one of the show cars; Charles Sasko, 3175 South Grand avenue, chummy; Otto Kuhn, 3115 Shenandoah avenue, touring car; J. O. Saylor, 6036 McPherson avenue, touring car; Frank Chapman, 5402 Page boulevard, chummy roadster.

H. P. Riefling of the Riefling Automobile Co., 2333 South Jefferson avenue, has announced his candidacy for Alderman of the Fourteenth Ward, on the Republican ticket.

Capt. Ralph E. Mooney will engage in the tire business with his brother, Art B. Mooney, 4547 Delmar boulevard. Capt. Mooney was with the Twenty-eighth Machine Gun Battery and saw four months' actual service in France.

W. M. Cooper, sales manager of the Barnes-Cooper Chemical Works, makers of Mo-Pep tablets, reports a very successful week at the show, interesting many new out-of-town dealers.

The Reifling Auto Co. have returned to their former positions the five soldiers who have returned home, 14 having joined the colors from the Reifling organization.

Lindman, Funk & Co. have opened at 3213 Locust street a wholesale branch for the Racine Auto Tire Co., makers of horse Shoe tires. They will carry a full line of plain, non-skid and pneumatic truck tires. The officers are E. F. Lindaman, president; R. W. Duff, vice president, and F. E. Wales, treasurer, with W. E. McClorg in charge as sales manager.

The Newell Motor Car Co. report the sale of the Essex model Paige, which was the center of their display at the show, to J. F. Lang.

McLaran Sawyer, formerly connected with the Chevrolet factory at Main and Rutger streets, but who has been engaged in war work for the past year and a half, has returned to St. Louis and has joined the sales force of the Chevrolet retail store at Locust street and Lindell boulevard.

L. M. Bartlett, formerly Kansas City representative of that company, has been made district manager of the St. Louis branch house of the Republic Rubber Co. at 2020 Locust street.

L. M. Pierce has been made sales manager of the retail department of the St. Louis Nash Co., local handlers of the Nash car and truck.

HAD A FAT SPARK.

The public's knowledge of automobile construction or, rather, its lack of knowledge was illustrated at the Oakland exhibit at the Auto Show. An Oakland open chassis had been fitted with tiny electric lights to show the up and down movement of the pistons. Pointing to the recurring flashes, a wise young man said to his companion: "That's a new kind of spark plug they use. It is made here. That big flash is the extra fat spark and, believe me, it makes the car hum."

Big National Production.

In order to supply the increased demands of the American and export markets the National Motor Car and Vehicle Corporation of Indianapolis on July 1 will start a production schedule that calls for the manufacture of one-third again as many cars as it built in the corresponding 12 months of 1917-18, when a record for quantity output was established.

The Saxon Motor Car Corporation employed chauffeurettes when the shortage of male employes was most acute. The girls were used to drive the cars from the factory to the loading platforms and also on some short cross-country deliveries.

DE PALMA IN PACKARD SETS NEW WORLD RECORD

"Ralph De Palma driving Packard Special Twin Six equipped with Packard aviation motor set a new official world's record for the kilometer (five-eighths of a mile) and the mile on Daytona Beach.

He sped over the course at 149 72-100 miles per hour as against previous records pace set by Bob Burman with German Blizen Benz 8 years ago of 141 72-100 miles per hour.

Official time announced by Chairman Richard Kennerdell of the AAA Contest Board is 24 and 2-100 seconds as against previous record of 25 40-100 seconds. De Palma and his Packard lowered the kilometer record of 15 81-100 seconds to a new mark of 15 86-100 seconds. Car performed magnificently, but beach was only fair and De Palma will go after his own record.

WINS ECONOMY RUN.

In the second annual economy run of Los Angeles motor car dealers, from Los Angeles to the Yosemite, the Stephens six won the trophy for Class B cars, classed according to price. It was also awarded the Automobile Club of Southern California cup for the best economy average on water, oil and gas.

The annual economy run to the Yosemite is a real test in economy, for the competing cars cover all classes of roads and must surmount the stiff mountain grades of the high Sierras. The cars must rise from sea level to about 7000 feet altitude before they descend about 1500 feet in three miles.

Biltwell Body Folder.

The Vehicle Top & Supply Co., 3414 Lindell boulevard, has prepared a very interesting folder illustrating and describing the Biltwell line of commercial bodies, for free distribution at the coming St. Louis Auto Show. All those interested should call for a copy.

GMC TRUCKS

While we are proud of the war record of GMC Trucks—a record unexcelled by any other—,our greatest satisfaction is that the big war production has enabled us to cut down manufacturing costs.

The GMC policy always has been, is now, and will continue to be to give our customers the benefit of all savings in manufacturing costs.

Another GMC policy is to make nothing cheap; to build the best trucks we know how to build; to use every ounce of material necessary—material of the best grade—and to add to this cost a legitimate manufacturer's profit.

The result is motor trucks of the highest quality at reasonable prices, and a long list of customers, including the largest users, who continue to buy GMC Trucks.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

STRONG, UPWARD SWING TO SECURITIES IN THE WALL STREET EXCHANGE

Gains of 2 to 5 Points Are Scored for the Week by Rails and Industrials—Bonds Also Firm.

Closing Prices on Liberty Bonds in New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Final prices on Liberty Bonds today were: 3½s, 98.30; first convertible 4s, 92.92; second 4s, 92.86; first convertible 4¼s, 95.26; second convertible 4¼s, 94.38; third 4¼s, 95.72; fourth 4¼s, 94.30.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"All financial and commercial exchanges in the United States kept holiday today and the banks were also closed. The bank statement, which was published late yesterday, because of today's holiday, showed the large reduction of $35,593,000 in surplus reserves. The surplus left by this reduction, $16,822,000, is the smallest reported since Sept. 1, 1917. This week's reduction was chiefly due to $30,800,000 curtailment in reserve credits at the Federal Bank. Rediscounts at that institution were reduced $33,000,000.

"The upward movement on the Stock Exchange this week has proceded by fits and starts and the rise was apt to be felt in one group of stocks on one day and in another group on the next. But the tendency has been unmistakable, and the advance has been sufficient to be accepted as at least an indication of a change in the financial view of things. What is the basis for such a change?

"Every one knows that a definite upward turn on the Stock Exchange may be caused either by actual events of an encouraging character or by the fact that unfavorable events, which had been expected (and had been "discounted" by a fall in prices) had failed to materialize. The truth in the present instance is that both influences have been at work.

Recent Break in Prices.

"A very considerable factor in the recent decline of the Stock Exchange prices was the feeling, which had become very prevalent, that matters were bound to go from bad to worse in our industrial situation. Prices of merchandise were declining; there were predictions that the decline would become precipitous. Labor was growing arrogant, it was a question whether we should not in this country presently have to face some sort of Bolshevik demonstration for the control of industry.

"Liberty Bonds were falling; there were gloomy predictions as to what would happen if Congress and the Treasury were obstinate in insisting on floating the April loan on the terms of last October's.

"With the demand for war munitions ended, it was doubtful what would happen to our foreign trade. Numerous corporations were confronted with decreased earnings in the face of war-time costs; why were we not headed for a series of insolvencies?

"As a matter of fact, not one of these predictions has come true. The decline in commodity prices has gone forward gradually and on orderly lines. Labor has gradually accepted some inevitable reductions until, at Seattle, the predicted Bolshevik demonstration came. It was opposed and discountenanced by the unions; the threat of seizure of industrial strike was met by the Socialist Mayor with a threat of armed resistance and in the words of that official, the movement "never got to first base."

Plans for "Victory" Loan.

"The Secretary of the Treasury and the Congressional Committee have worked out a sound plan whereby to meet market conditions with the forthcoming loans. Our export trade in January, two months after the armistice, surpassed all records. Insolvencies have thus far been so few as to be negligible.

"A market which had even partly adjusted itself to prices based on the fulfillment of such expectations, would be bound to reverse itself when none of them came true.

"But there were definite events also, and whatever the skeptical-minded say about it, every experienced financier knows perfectly well that the league of nations plan to settle this war and prevent another is one of them. To realize the truth of this assertion one has only to ask what would have been the effect on the Stock Exchange if the Paris conference had failed completely, if the negotiations had broken down, and a set of angry and jealous states had been left to quarrel individually over division of the spoils.

"In judging economic developments of the period, such as our foreign trade and our prospective harvests, one may look at them either in the light of the peculiar circumstances with which the war has surrounded them or consider them as they would have been considered before the war.

"Neither point of view should be neglected. Due allowance must be made for the fact that our Government is borrowing largely to lend money to nations purchasing our goods and that the war-time guarantee of a high fixed price for the American farmers' wheat creates a situation in which the loss to the Government on the operation will be greater in proportion to the magnitude of our wheat crop of 1919.

Big Crops Mean Prosperity.

"But these conditions cannot obscure the other facts that throughout our history the mainstay of American prosperity has been a great export trade, with an increasing hold by our markets on the world's capital and a great harvest at a time of foreign scarcity, which means both stimulated trade and increasing wealth to the grain-producing community.

"It is difficult to foresee what will be the upshot of these two conditions—the largest export trade in our history to start the new year and the most brilliant condition ever witnessed for the growing wheat crop.

"That these developments should occur at a time when our country has already virtually redeemed its foreign debt, accumulated the largest gold reserve in the world and used it to fortify a thoroughly scientific currency, are facts which at any rate indicate an extremely interesting chapter in economic history."

London Review.

By Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—"In the city's view the success of the league of nations at the outset is likely to be affected greatly by two practical considerations. These are, first, the ability of the present consertium at Paris to impose its just mandates on Germany and, second, the good will manifested and yet to be manifested at the conference. Had the league of nations shown inability to restrain the German attacks upon Poland the incident must have had a damaging effect, but the firm attitude taken by the conference helped matters.

"It is important to recognize that the nations, like individuals, are on edge after the war strain, hence the vital importance of complete harmony between Britain and America, which are the most disinterested of all the great parties concerned.

Germany's Big War Debt.

"Despite Germany's great war debt and bad financial position, a careful consideration, it is held here, should demonstrate her ability ultimately to meet as big a budget as Britain. The German population is greater than ours, while Helfferich's estimates in 1913 made the visible wealth of Germany greater than Britain's.

"On this assumption, there should be a considerable margin available for an indemnity in installments, even without repudiation of the internal debt.

"Our labor situation may only be regarded as worse, in the sense that conditions are more clearly revealed, and this is really a good feature, because the best cure for the problem is in turning on the light and concentrating public opinion. There will be temporary troubles, probably, but we perceive too clearly the necessity of thrift, concentration and production to permit anything approaching Bolshevism to take root. Indeed, it is already perceived that stable social and economic conditions here are indispensable for the maintenance of the national credit.

"The Premeir's proposal for a great conference of labor and capital is well received. Briefly, there is a general disposition to force the labor representatives to place all their cards on the table. The public seems determined to settle matters once for all.

"The annual circular of the Swiss Bank gives striking figures of war inflation. The world's bank deposits, according to this report, have risen by £5,000,000,000, while note circulation has risen by about £13,000,000,000.

BEEF STEERS ARE LOWER AT NATIONAL STOCKYARDS

Trade for Week, However, Is Active; Government Removes Restrictions on Hog Shipments.

Reported for the Post-Dispatch by the National Livestock Commission Co., National Stockyards, Ill.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Wk.	Wk. Before.	Last Yr.
Cattle	18,700	19,800	23,000
Hogs	94,300	88,000	87,000
Sheep	5,100	7,100	1,800

Beef steers closed the week active, but prices generally were 15c to 25c lower than last week's close, with the market especially dull on the lighter kinds. Stockers and feeders sold steady. The trade on anything with flesh in the cow, heifer or butcher line was active, and the market the highest in a long time.

Prime heavy beef steers are quoted at $18.50 to $19.25; choice to prime, $17 to $18.50; good to choice, $15 to $17; medium to good, $13 to $15; common to weighty steers, $11.50 to $12.75; common light steers, $9 to $10.25. Good to choice feeders, $12 to $13.50; common to medium, $10 to $11.50. Good to choice stockers, $10 to $11.50; common to medium, $8.50 to $9.50. Choice to prime fat yearling butcher cattle, $13 to $15; good to choice, $11.50 to $13; common to medium, $8.50 to $11.50. Choice to fancy heavy beef cows, $12.50 to $14; good to choice, $11.50 to $12.50; medium to good, $10 to $11.50; fair fleshed cows, $8.50 to $10. Cutters, $7 to $8.50; canners, $6 to $6.50. Good to choice stock cows, $7.75 to $8.25; good to choice heifers, $8 to $9. Fat bulls, $10 to $13; heavy sausage bulls, $9 to $10; light sausage bulls, $8 to $9.

The hog market was active and 10c to 15c higher yesterday, on the best hogs; pig market in bad shape. Extreme top was $18.20.

Bulk of the good hogs weighing 210 lbs. up are selling from $17.80 to the top; light hogs, 160 to 190 lbs., $17.25 to $17.75; small lights, 120 to 150 lbs., $15 to $15.50; lighter pigs, $9 for common Southerns up to $15 for good kinds. Best rough hogs, $16.40; half-fat roughs, $12 to $15.

The United States Railroad Administration yesterday removed all restrictions against shipment of hogs to the St. Louis National Stockyards. The order went into effect at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

This means the abolition of the permit system in shipping hogs to market here. Receipts have fallen off to such an extent that authorities deemed restrictions unnecessary and a burden on shippers to further require permits for shipment.

The letup in receipts here, as well as at other points, particularly the East, is taken to indicate the bulk of fat hogs, fed out during the winter, have gone to the shambles. No date has been announced for a conference on March hog price fixing, but many believe the market after the present month will be left to take care of itself.

Sheep supply was limited, and the market mean; lambs were fully 50c to 75c higher than a week ago; sheep steady.

Good to choice lambs are selling at $17.75 to $18; half-fat and medium kind of lambs, $16.25 to $17.25; cull lambs, $12.75 to $15.25; fat sheep, $11 to $11.50; choppers, $8 to $8.50; canners, $5 to $6; fat goats, $7 to $9; medium flesh goats, $6 to $7; thin, common kind of goats, 3 to $4.50; kid goats, $7 to $11.

STOCK TRADING IS LIGHT IN THE LOCAL EXCHANGE

Sales for the Week Are Small; Boatmen's Bank Raises Quarterly Dividend Rate.

There was a light trade in securities on the Stock Exchange here last week, compared with recent weeks' turnovers. Prices, however, were fairly well maintained on most issues and sentiment generally is optimistic owing to strength in the Wall street market.

Boatmen's Bank stock was firmer around $116, and was influenced by an increase in the quarterly dividend rate from 1½ to 1¾ per cent. Shoe stocks were firm and American Bakery issues were quoted steady on the announcement of the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on the preferred stock and 1¾ per cent on back dividends.

The National Enameling and Stamping Co. issued its annual report for the year ending Dec. 31 last.

The income account shows surplus, after all charges and Federal taxes, of $2,773,265, equivalent, after deduction of preferred dividends, to $13.94 a share earned on the $15,591,800 common stock, as compared with surplus of $4,245,555, or $23.39 a share earned in 1917.

SMALL RECEIPTS FORCE SHARP ADVANCE IN CORN

Prices Here Gain 2c to 6c for the Week; Oats Also Higher on Export Demands.

With receipts of corn about the smallest ever known and with commercial stock meager, the corn market here last week showed decided strength. The result was a net advance ranging from 2c to 6c. Oats gained ⅛c to 1¼c.

Attention to scantiness of readily available supplies and to constant dwarfing of the crop movement rendered the corn market especially sensitive to the bullish influences of snowstorms, rain and sleet that threatened to bring about an even greater curtailment of arrivals and to increase feeding on farms.

Values underwent temporary setbacks, however, owing to reports that the minimum average price on hogs might not be continued after March 1 and that Government help in the export of packing house products would soon be withdrawn. At times also the bears made much of unverified assertions that labor troubles in Argentine had been settled.

Export sales to Holland, together with a shortage of seed in Canada, had a bullish effect on the oats market. Trade also was influenced by unusually small receipts.

Total primary receipts of corn during the week (five days) were only 2,520,000 bu., compared with about 8,000,000 bu. for the corresponding week last year, and the movement is causing traders to question the veracity of the Government estimate on the crop, as at no time during the year has the movement from farms been in line with supposed supplies on the farm.

Recent figures showing 41,000,000 hogs on the farms, or 7 per cent more than a year ago, also suggests enormous consumption, even considering the open winter, especially as at present minimum prices of $17.50 the farmer can make more by feeding than selling his corn in the open market.

Other factors in the market were announcement that food import restrictions to Germany had been removed to a certain extent and a report by the investigating committee that Germany is badly in need of all food supplies.

A sharp rise in rye prices as the week closed was said to be based on the removal of import restrictions to Germany.

Other influences were record-breaking allotments of hog products of 250,000,000 pounds for March shipment and talk of bad weather in March and possibly April, owing to the unseasonably warm winter.

Flour, Meal and Bran.

RYE—Nothing done; No. 3 had $1.22 bid.

KAFIR—Nominally at $2.60@2.63 per 100 pounds for No. 3 milo or kafir.

FLOUR—Government purchase this week were reported at 500,000 barrels at $9.95 to $10.20 for hard and $9.75 to $10.12 for soft, jute, Baltimore basis, but of this amount only 10,000 barrels known to have been sold by St. Louis and nearby Illinois mills. Market stagnant otherwise, few domestic orders, and it was wired that the Cuban Government has placed an embargo on importations of flour for 60 days. Locally, soft 100 per cent flour offered at $9.50 bulk and hard 100 per cent at $10 jute.

Quote nominal values in jute sacks: Soft 100 per cent at $9.65@9.90; hard 100 per cent at $9.90@10.10; spring 100 per cent at $9.90@10, and 95 per cent at $10.15@10.30, hard and spring first clears at $8.75@9.25, and second clears at $6.25 to $7.

RYE FLOUR—Quote white patent at $8.85@9, straight at $7.75@8 and dark at $5.75@6.25 per barrel in sacks in car lots; jobbing prices higher.

CORN MEAL—Dull; city mill quotes in 100 pound sacks: Corn meal at $3.10, cream meal at $3.30, grits and hominy at $3.50 per 100 pounds.

MILLSTUFFS—Wheat-feed quiet and steady; soft bran in 100s at $40; middlings at $43. Other feed-stuffs dull; barley feed at $43@44.50. Yellow hominy feed offered at $48.50; oat-feed offered at $24.50; prompt shipment: No. 1 alfalfa meal in new sacks nominal at $33 and No. 2 at $31.

Horses and Mules.

HORSES—There is a scarcity of little mares, 950 to 1050 pounds, for Southern farm trade, and market on these is strong. Eastern chunks, $150@180; farm mares, Southern type, $125@160; Southern horses, choice, $110@120; Southern horses, medium, $65@95; plugs, $25@45; Southern horses, cheap, $30@50.

MULES—Market slow and barely steady with last week's sharp decline. 16 to 16½ hands, $200@325; 15 to 15½ hands, $140@225; 15 hands, $165@180; 14 to 14½ hands, $90@135; 13 to 13½ hands, $50@125; 12 to 12½ hands, $50@125.

WOOL—Small lots are selling at the following range of prices: Missouri bright wools at 45c to 50c. Clear lambs' wool at 35c to 40c, burry 20c to 30c. Tubwashed wool at 70c to 77c.

Chas. J. Brand, chief of the Bureau of Markets, advises that it will be satisfactory for St. Louis wool merchants who are operating under country wool dealers' permits to report on Form A merely the total pounds of 1918 wools received, the total gross amounts paid, the total freights deducted, the total commissions deducted, and the net amounts for which the wools were sold, together with the names of the approved dealers to whom sold or consigned.

Murchison Establishes New Record for 50-Yards Dash in Municipal Track Meet

St. Louis A. A. Runner Defeats Mahl in 5 1-5 Seconds in Championship Event, While He Also Is Winner in Open Handicap Dash—Other New Standards Are Set.

LOREN MURCHISON, St. Louis' only National Athletic champion, created a new Municipal Athletic Association record in one of the two 50-yard dashes that he won in the athletic carnival under the auspices of the Municipal Athletic Association and Division of Parks and Recreation at the Coliseum last night. He won the Municipal 50-yard championship in 5 1-5 seconds, which is one-fifth second faster than the record he created in the same event last season. Murchison also won the 50 yards handicap event, starting from scratch.

With the two sprint victories and a two-point award, because of his participation in the relay event which was won by his team, Murchison totaled 12 points, enough to give him the individual honors of the meet. A trophy presented by the War Camp Community Service goes to him as being significant of this distinction.

In both races he beat his old rival, Irwin Mahl of the Columbian Athletic Club, who finished second each time. Charley Bechtold, a St. Louis A. A. teammate of Murchison, was third in both races. While Mahl started from scratch with Murchison in the Municipal Handicap dash, Bechtold was unable to fare better than third, despite the fact that he was conceded a lead of four feet. These three runners were the only starters in the championship event.

The meet was held for the benefit of the "Welcome Home Fund" for St. Louis fighting regiments. More than 1600 individuals participated in the contests and exhibitions. The attendance was not as large as last year.

Boeddecker Wins 600 Yards.

Al Boeddecker, a St. Louisan who represented the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, won the 600 yards Municipal Championship run, after making pace in the event from the beginning. Don Hause, another Gob from the Great Lakes, finished second, while George Puchta of the Columbian A. C. was third. The winner's time was 2m 1 2-5s.

While Boeddecker jumped to the fore at the crack of the gun, he was threatened in the early stages by Bob Probst, running under the colors of the St. Louis A. A. Probst hung onto the sailor until the final lap, when he began to drop back. Then Hause, who had been "lost" in the large field of starters, came from nowhere and on the stretch run threatened to overtake his fellow bluejacket. Boeddecker managed to stagger across the line in the lead with Hause second. Probst, who ran a good early race, finished fourth.

Bremser Sets New Mark.

The 50-yard high school championship was run shortly after Murchison had won the handicap dash, with the winner bobbing up in Bremser of Roosevelt High. When Bremser's time was announced as 5 1-5 seconds, considerable comment was heard among the athletic fans, as Murchison's time in the handicap was one-fifth second slower. Bremser will be credited with Murchison for having created a new dash record. Trumm of Cleveland finished second and Van Sickle of McKinley was third.

New Record in Hurdles.

Johnston of McKinley, in winning the 50-yard high school hurdle championship in 6 seconds, created a new standard for this event. Two teammates, Kinsey and Thumser, finished second and third, respectively. The old record was 6 2-5 seconds, created by Dean Leffler, former McKinley boy, in the 1918 meet.

Drake of Washington University won the municipal high jump championship by clearing the bar at 66 inches. Kinsey of McKinley was second and Leo Shanley of Washington U. third.

Pikers Are Easy Winners.

The dual meet between Washington and St. Louis Universities, the first occasion upon which the two local institutions have had an opportunity to meet in track sports in years, resulted in a decisive victory for the Pikeway squad. The eight men entered by Rutherford amassed 34 points in the five events, whereas St. Louis U. representatives could raise but 12.

The events, with the exception of the 50-yard-dash and the relay race, were contested as parts of the municipal events. However, the actual performances were disregarded and the respective positions of the school athletes considered as the basis of point award.

Probably the best race of the five was the 1000-yard dash. Hurd, a newcomer at the Pikeway, gave Bob Probst of the St. Louis A. A. a great fight from the very start to the last few yards of the race. Hurd was an out-and-out dark horse, as it had not been expected that he would even be in the running. Epp of the Billikens and Lewis of Washington raced neck-and-neck during the last three laps, the blue and white runner finally breaking ahead at the tape.

McKinley High School Victor.

McKinley High School had comparatively easy sailing in the interscholastic competition. The South Siders scored 28 points and landed the Washington University trophy, whereas Roosevelt High, the runner-up, tallied but half that number. Cleveland was third with 8, while Webster trailed with four.

The name, Sellman, will be the newest to be engraved on the Hess Trophy emblematic of supremacy at the half mile run among the high school athletes of the city. Sellman, wearing the Crimson of McKinley broke ahead of the field of opponents at the start of the second lap and thereafter was never threatened. He increased his lead until he was more than a quarter-lap in the lead of the second man at the breasting of the tape.

Every kind of race that might be imagined found a place on the far-reaching program arranged by the Municipal Athletic Association. There were school shuttle races, soccer team races, military races, races betwen employes of mercantile firms, and races calling forth competition between members of universities, turnvereins and athletic organizations.

Concordia Trims Billikens.

Devotees of basketball also enjoyed service to their penchant. Three games were played, the main attraction resulting in a 30 to 25 victory for Concordia Seminary over St. Louis University; while two other games featured the play of teams of the Girls' Municipal League. The feminine exhibitions of the court pastime were each of 10-minute duration. In the first game, the Ashalnd Girls defeated the Matthews, 5 to 3; while the Gren Peppers gained a 1 to 0 verdict over the Khaki Girls in the windup.

The Billiken-Concordia game was hotly contested throughout. At no time during the entire 40 minutes of play was one team more than five points in the lead of the opposing quintet. The first half was ended with the ultimate winners leading 15 to 12.

Summers, right forward of the Concordias was the outstanding star of the game with five field goals to his credit. Diethelm of the losing five counted four baskets from the field and three from the oul line. The lineup:

Another feature of the three-ring entertainment was a three-round boxing exhibition between James Conzelman of Washington University, recently middle-weight boxing champion of Great Lakes, and George Finke of East St. Louis.

The boxers are both rather heavy and neither has enjoyed any too intensive training in preparation for the match. Consequently the bout was little more than a give and take punching orgy. Conzelman seemed to have a slight edge on the number of puches and extent of punishment rendered. In one heavy exchange of artillery, Finke went to the floor, but whether this was the result of a punch received or to his own too anxious endeavors, is uncertain.

Then there was more. Tug-of-wars, fencing exhibitions, wrestling matches, drills of all descriptions, aesthetic dances, cage ball, gymnastic tactics, and whatnot. It was a program which was more than any carnival that has been held here heretofore.

Yale Beats Princeton.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 22.—Yale defeated Princeton, 20 to 15, in an Intercollegiate League basket ball game here today.

Murchison Slightly Hurt After Sprint; Starts East Today

FOR a few minutes after he had won the 50-yard municipal championship at the Coliseum last night, it was feared that the athletic career of Loren Murchison, the crack sprinter, had been ended.

After brasting the tape in the race, Murchison ran up the banked turn of the track and after crashing into the padding at the top of the incline, he fell as a result of catching his foot in the base of the padding. Coach Paddy Fitzgerald of the St. Louis A. A. and others ran to Murchison's side and carried him to the center of the arena. A few minutes later he was able to hobble to the dressing room unattended.

Later Murchison anounced that his ankle was only slightly turned and would not interfere with his departure today for the East, where he will compete in four big meets. He will start in the Millrose A. A. games in New York next Tuesday. He is entered in the 50 and 300 yards events of the Boston A. A. meet March 1, and will also start in the National A. A. U. championship meet and the New York A. C. games later next month.

STEIN DEFEATS HUITT IN INDIVIDUAL EVENT; KREWINGHAUS IS VICTOR

Otto Stein and Louis Krewinghaus were the winners in the matches rolled last night in the Greater St. Louis individual bowling tournament at the Washington alley. Stein won six of seven games from Roy Huitt and Krewinghaus took four of seven from Walter Schmitz. Stein had the best total of the quartet, with 1362.

The scores:

Stein 203-192 199-208-176-194 190—1362

Huitt... 164-169-177-171 164-203-180—1229.

Krewinghaus 185-213-169-202-179-213-166—1327

Schmitz.. 156-185-167-204-192-146-197—1247

Linnemeyer Is Victor.

Henry Linnemeyer was the winner in the Washington individual championship tournament, winning five of nine games from Jule Scheske. Both rolled very poorly. The scores:

Linnemeyer. 159-203-184-156-160-172-164-158

Scheske. 138-167-159-183-143-184-202-157

ARMY AND NAVY SEEK PERMISSION TO COMPETE IN PENN RELAY MEET

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22.—Pennsylvania's twenty-fifth annual relay carnival will probably be featured this year by a championship service race between Annapolis and West Point. The graduates of these two great schools have desired for years to compete at Penn's famous classic, but the general rule forbidding the cadets leaving the academies has been an insuperable obstacle.

As the athletes at both the acadamies are desirous of the event, it is quite possible that the race may take place on April 26, the closing day of the great carnival. If the Cadets come to Philadelphia they will be the guests of the university while here.

The fact that though the invitation letters have been sent out only a couple of weeks, and that there are already 110 colleges and schools entered indicates that the interest in track and field sports is coming back with a rush and that this year's carnival will be up to the standard set prior to the war.

TOURNEY AT CORSE'S.

An elimination handicap three cushion tournament, with 12 entries, will start tomorrow night at Corse's parlors, on Delmar boulevard. This is the first regularly scheduled tourney Corse has booked, but he expects to hold many others in the near future.

Micus and Maurer Win.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 22.—William Micus and Michael Maurer of Detroit won the individual doubles handball championship tonight, defeating Sackman, singles champion, and Groden, the former champion, both of New York, in straight games, 21—18 and 21—9.

CLEVELAND DEFEATED BY ROOSEVELT TEAM

Mid-City Quintet Upsets "Dope" With 29-28 Victory—Soldan Is Easy Winner.

When Theodore Roosevelt High School quintet, formerly Central, defeated Cleveland, 29-28, in an Interscholastic League game at the Cleveland gymnasium yesterday afternoon it marked the greatest upset of the season in high school circles. In the other contest, Soldan downed McKinley, 37-8, for its fifth straight victory.

The result of the contests yesterday practically clinched the championship for the West Enders. Soldan has a record of 5-0, while Cleveland in second place has four victories and two defeates to its credit.

Prior to the contest, Roosevelt was accorded little chance of gaining a victory. The Mid-City five in its other five games had landed on the right side of the ledger only once. However, the team played in great form yesterday and was the aggressor throughout. The game played was easily the best exhibited by the former Centrals this year.

Placke Loses Good Chance.

At the close of the first half Roosevelt was leading, 15—14, and at one time during the second period owned a margin of six points. However, Cleveland always came back and at one time was only one point to the bad. Placke missed a free throw in the last few moments of play that would have tied the count and necessitated an extra period.

Roosevelt outplayed the Clevelanders in all but the last few minutes of the game and deserved the victory. The passing of the Mid-City boys was far from accurate and it was only the great guarding of Walsh that kept them from running up a larger score. Lee George was the star for the winners, he scoring seven of the 13 field goals counted by his team.

In the other contest it was merely a walkaway for the leading Soldan aggregation. In the second half the West Enders set a new record for the season in that they kept their opponents from counting a field goal. In the closing period McKinley scored only two points, both on free throws. At the end of the first half the score was 25—6 in Soldan's favor.

May Change Schedule.

A change probably will be made in the schedule for next Saturday. Soldan is scheduled to play Cleveland, but Coach Guy of the latter has asked that the contests for the coming week-end be switched to the following Saturday, as it is necessary for him to be out of the city. Coach Flag agreed, providing the change is accepted by the other coaches. The matter will be taken up by the league officials early in the week.

EASTERN COLLEGES TO HOLD ATHLETIC EVENTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Co-operative movements in track meets among the colleges seem to be the order of the day. Amherst, Williams and Wesleyan have arranged to hold a three-cornered set of dual meets, while the Middle Atlantic States' Conference, an organization founded a year or two before the war, has determined to renew its activities with greater vigor than ever before, and will hold its annual championship competition at Swarthmore on May 17, two weeks before the intercollegiates.

Furthermore, there are signs that the defunct New York City Intercollegiate Conference, which included Columbia, New York University, Fordham, C. C. N. Y., Brooklyn Poly, St. John's and Stevens Institute, will also come back to life for the purpose of holding a track and field meet at South Field some time in May.

The establishment of such sectional organizations as these cannot but help to arouse more interest in track sports. New York, Lafayette, Lehigh, Dickinson, Rutgers, Stevens Institute and Swarthmore are the colleges which have taken the largest parts in the affairs of the Middle Atlantic Conference.

Bean Defeats Arthur.

OTTUMWA, Io., Feb. 22.—Alex Bean, local wrestler, defeated Ernie Arthur, Canadian middleweight champion, two falls out of three here last night. Bean is claimant of State honors in this class. He lost the first fall in eight minutes, but took the second in one hour 11 minutes and the third in 16 minutes.

McDonagh Sets Record.

TROY, N. Y., Feb. 22.—Martin J. B. McDonagh, former South Atlantic Association A. A. U. hurdling champion, established a new record in a bar-vaulting contest here this afternoon when he cleared 6 feet 11 inches. The best previous mark was 6 feet 8 inches, made by McDonagh at Philadelphia in 1916.

MANN GAINS SHUTOUT VICTORY OVER ADAMS IN GRAMMAR CIRCUIT

In the third round of the Grammar School Basket Ball League only one shutout game was played. Mann being returned the winner over Adams, 26—0, in this contest. Jefferson, which had captured its first two games by blanking its rivals, was downed by Glasgow by a 9 to 3 count. Arlington ran up the largest score, tallying 37 points against Divoll. The losers counted only one.

Last Week's Results.

ALFREDO DE ORO HERE FOR EXHIBITION GAMES AT GRAND CUE PARLORS

Alfred de Oro, world's three-cushion champion, arrived in St. Louis last night from Chicago for his series of exhibitions against local cue stars at the Grand Billiard Parlors, Sixth and Pine streets, this week. The schedule for De Oro's stand follows, the champion to play 50 points as against the handicaps noted:

Monday—Thomas Sperry, State champion, 40.
Tuesday—Ed Zamzow, 38.
Wednesday—Elmer Farrar, 40.
Thursday—Clifford Allen, 35.
Friday—William Hellmich, 35.
Saturday—John Simon, 40.

TEARNEY IS OFFERED PRESIDENCY OF W. L.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 22.—Al R. Tearney of Chicago has been tendered the presidency of the Western League and clubowners meeting here today said there was no doubt that he would accept. The office was first offered to Tom Fairweather of Des Moines, president of the Des Moines club and Mayor of that city, but he said his other duties would prevent him from accepting. The second man selected was John Savage, secretary of the Kansas City (American Association) club, but he, too, declined. Mr. Tearney was then chosen.

The magnates this afternoon ratified the sale of the Joplin club by John Savage to a Joplin stock company, paving the way for the ratification of the transfer of the former Denver franchise to Spencer A. Abbott, who will place the club in Tulsa, Ok., and elected Jack Holland, W. A. Rourke and E. J. Hanlon on the schedule committee, which will draft a playing card of 140 games. Whether the season will open on April 23 or one week later has not been decided, however.

Tearney Accepts Offer.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—Al. R. Tearney, for nine years president of the Three-I League of baseball clubs, in a telephone conversation with leaders of the Western League tonight accepted their offer of the presidency of that organization.

Mr. Tearney has long been recognized as a leading representative of the minor organizations.

Tearney probably will make a trip around the Western League circuit next week. He is temporary chairman of the Three I and will retain the position until its organization has been effected.

"CYCLONE" TOM DALEY TO TRY FOR COMEBACK

"Cyclone" Tommy Dailey, who will be well remembered by local boxing fans, writes from Tulsa, Ok., that he has placed himself under the management of Tom Jones, former manager of Jess Willard, and that under the guidance of "Cherokee Tom," Dailey says he expects to cut a wide swath in ring circles in the future. He recently helped Bryan Downey train for his bout with Willie Laughlin.

Jimmy Murphy Loses.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 22.—Fowler "Mutt" McGheen, Oklahoma City, jabbed his way to victory over Jimmy Murphy, St. Louis, in a fast 10 round bout here tonight. The boys are bantams.

REGAN TRAINING FOR BOUT WITH PAL MOORE

St. Louis Boy Expects to Give Jimmy Wilde's Conqueror Hard Fight.

The Rialto Athletic Club is busy perfecting arrangements for its opening show, which takes place March 4 at the Coliseum. The new organization is being run on improved lines, in that it has voluntarily agreed to hold its shows with due consideration for the dates of other legitimate clubs.

A number of familiar names are to be found on the list of active officers, including Manager Harry H. Morris, Capt. J. A. Kinsella, president; Billy Klosterman, vice president (who for many years kept the St. Leo soccer team at the top); Charles Fitzgerald and others.

Pal Moore, who beat Jimmy Wilde in London last December, and Kid Regan (Charley Crouse) of St. Louis will be opponents in the opening night feature. The Coliseum has been obtained for the first show, as the club's regular home at the Crystal Natatorium is being reconstructed.

Moore has had plenty of experience and is considered a genuine championship class bantamweight. Regan, who has already begun training, is just a newcomer who, however, has proved his mettle by his recent contest with Harry Kabakoff. Unlike the latter, Regan will not clinch himself into safety, but will fight until either he or the other fellow is hurt.

Billy Cole and Young Abe Attell, two local boxers, have been matched to meet in the semi-final it was announced yesterday by the officials of the club. In addition there will be two preliminary events, which will be announced at a later date.

It was also stated that the club this week would open a downtown office at 811 Locust street, where membership cards and other information regarding the organization can be obtained.

Willard Contract Worthless?

Jack Dempsey's manager points out that Dempsey is legally signed for the title fight but not Willard. There are no strings to the champion, because Illinois has laws against boxing or arranging boxing matches in that State. His signature to the agreement written in Illinois is, therefore, illegal, it is contended. Both fighters will be signed to new contracts as soon as the site is located.

Here's a Brave Man.

Ritchie Mitchell, one-time light championship candidate, is a man of courage. Notwithstanding Benny Leonard put him to sleep in Milwaukee two years ago, he is going to tackle that package of T N T once more. March 7 Leonard and Mitchell will box six rounds at Seattle, Wash.

Rickard Has a Partner.

Frank Flournoy, a young cattle rancher of South America, is now Tex Rickard's partner in the Willard-Dempsey fight promotion enterprise. He is said to be Willard's partner in the ownership of ranch consisting of 40,000 head of cattle. Rickard says there's too much work connected with the match to be handled by one man.

Kid Norfolk Is Poison.

Jack Dempsey was right. Jack turned artist and drew a realistic color line; offered a bout with Kid Norfolk and another with Joe Jeanette he showed great impartiality in declining both.

After reading about Clay Turner we are convinced that Jack was right. In two bouts Kid Norfolk first knocked Turner out for so long they had thought he never would come up for air. In their second engagement Norfolk broke two of Turner's ribs.

Norfolk is a dangerous fighter of about 185 pounds weight.

Morris Out of the Game.

Carl Morris has settled down to a permanent career as a fruit grower at Monrovia, Cal. Carl should specialize in lemon growing, since it would be impossible to develop a larger type than Carl made out of himself.

Passing of Dutch Brandt.

Battling Lahn stopped "Dutch" Brandt last week at Montreal, the event marking the decline of a great little bantamweight. Dutch Brandt performed often and well for fans in this city—he was one of the few boxers that never rested an arm or took a backward step unless knocked back.

Here Comes Mike Gibbons.

Mike Gibbons is easing his way back to the limelight. Mike has accepted a bout for Feb. 17 with Tom Ginty of Scranton. On March 4 he is to box Soldier Bartfield at St. Paul. He also has an offer for March 3 at Peoria against Jeff Smith with which he will be unable to connect.

Here's a Fine Match.

Lew Tendler, the improving Philadelphia lightweight, has been mached to fight Joe Welling at Newark Feb. 26. Class to both men.

48 BOWLERS ENTERED IN INDIVIDUAL EVENT

Forty-eight bowlers will compete this afternoon at the Washington in the Wagner individual handicap bowling tournament. All the men are employes of the Wagner Co. C. B. Lord, president of the Municipal Athletic Association, will be one of the contestants. There will be 10 prizes. The entries:

1:30 o'clock: Woodworth, Ulm, Elles, Kohnle, Hayes, Gallagher, Donahue, Haines, Hammond, Westling, Koehler, Chestnut, Shields, Jacobi Eck and Spang.

2:30 o'cloen: Layman, Lord, Shartle, Allison, Schmur, Richardson, Maher, Fraunfelder, Munson, Klaussman, Reardon, Thompson, Peskorse, Bohn, Schneider and Witter.

3:30 o'clock: Wickman, Albrecht, Bayer, Riggs, Yungbluth, Ritter, Grant, Johnson, Simpson, Smith, Wagner, Knight, Anderson, Grady, Dwyer and Grogan.

SOCCER LEADERS PLAY SCREW CO. ELEVEN IN TODAY'S FEATURE GAME

The Inisfails, present leaders in the St. Louis Soccer League pennant struggle, face the St. Louis Screw Co. eleven in what should prove the feature contest of the double-header at Cardinal Field this afternoon. The Scullins and Ben Millers fight it out in the opener. Play at 2:15 o'clock, with Phil Kavanaugh as referee.

There is a chance that the Innisfails will be forced to play without Mickey O'Neill, star fullback, who has signed with McGraw's Giants and who has been asked to quit the kicking pastime by the New York manager. If he does not play, Szpanski will take his place. Manager Miller of the Screw Co. will have Sucher back at fullback, while he will play a forward.

The other contest also should be hotly contested, as in order to remain in the pennant race the Scullins of Tate Brady must win from the present champions. Pete Ratican will show two new men in Buddy Kling at half and Joe Ledger at forward.

Holland to Sell Club.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 22.—Local baseball interests have been given an option for one week on the St. Joseph baseball team by E. J. Hanlon, owner of the club, who, at the meeting of clubowners of the Western League here today, announced his determination to sell. A Kansas City man, whose name he declined to give, bid $14,000 for the team and this is the figure at which the local men are offered the club. Mayor Whitsell said today the club would stay in St. Joseph.

Jayhawker Five Again Defeats Pikers, 39--19

Washington University Quintet Is Badly Off Color in Clash With Kansas.

BUNN IS REAL STAR

The Kansas University basket ball team last night closed its two-game series against Washington University by winning from the Pikers by a 39 to 19 score. It was the second straight victory for the Jayhawkers and the sixth defeat for the Pikers in a Missouri Valley conference contest this season.

At the end of the opening half the Jayhawkers were leading, 14 to 8, and at one time during the closing period had a margin of 20 points on Rutherford's aggregation.

Kansas won the game through the great work of its two forwards, Bunn and Bennett, and Center Matthews. This trio exhibits great team play and the three of them are always playing two of the opposing quintet. They form one of the best trios in the Missouri Valley conference this season.

Bunn Is Star of Game.

Left Forward Bunn was the real star of the contest, he throwing seven field baskets. He was the shining light of the Lawrence five on its entire trip. In the four contests the Kansans played away from their home court they won three and lost only one, the reverse coming at the hands of the Missouri Tigers.

The Pikers played poorly throughout, missing many easy chances for field goals. Center Marquard, usually a mainstay for the locals, was badly off color and scored only eight points. Of the four forwards, Russell was the only one to play anywhere near his real stride.

Washington was first to score, getting the opening point on a free throw. However, in a few minutes the Kansas aggregation assumed the lead and was never headed.

The lineup:

Kansas (39).	Position.	Washington (19).
Bunn (14)	Left forward	Russell (7) McElwee (2)
Bennett (6)	Right forward	Duncker-Bryant
Mathews (15)	Center	Marquard (8)
Mason	Left guard	Rodden
Lemberg (4)	Right guard	Berger-Russell-McCallum (2)

HARVARD MAY DEFEND GRAND CHALLENGE CUP IN RACE IN ENGLAND

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 22.—A movement has been started to send a Harvard crew to England next July to defend the Grand Challenge Cup at the Henley regatta over the Thames course. The movement has been put before the Crimson authorities by the Harvard Alumni Bulletin. The second Harvard crew, coached by Robert Herrick and stroked by Charles Lund, won the cup in 1914, and since then there has been no race.

In discussing the possibility of entering a Harvard crew the Alumni Bulletin says in part:

"Many rowing men believe that it would be good sportsmanship to have Harvard represented in the regatta by an eight made up either of undergraduates or of recent graduates, and that the entry of such a crew would tend to strengthen the friendship of England and the United States.

"It is taken for granted that Yale and Harvard will resume their boat races at New London. The rowing men in each college apparently desire to renew their annual contests on the course which has been used, with two interruptions, for about 40 years. Harvard rowed at Poughkeepsie in 1896 and 1897, and because of the war there was no race in 1917. In spite of these two breaks, the picturesque races at New London have become almost as important rowing events in this country as the contest on the other side of the ocean between Oxford and Cambridge and the regattas at Henley on the Thames."

PENN ELEVEN TO PLAY EIGHT GAMES IN 1919

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22.—Eight games are on the Penn varsity's football schedule, announced recently. All contests with the exception of that with Dartmouth, will be played on Franklin Field.

The schedule follows:

Oct. 4—Pennsylvania Military College.
Oct. 11—Delaware College.
Oct. 18—Swarthmore.
Oct. 25—Lafayette.
Nov. 1—Pennsylvania State College.
Nov. 8—Dartmouth, either at New York or Philadelphia.
Nov. 15—University of Pittsburgh.
Nov. 27—Cornell.

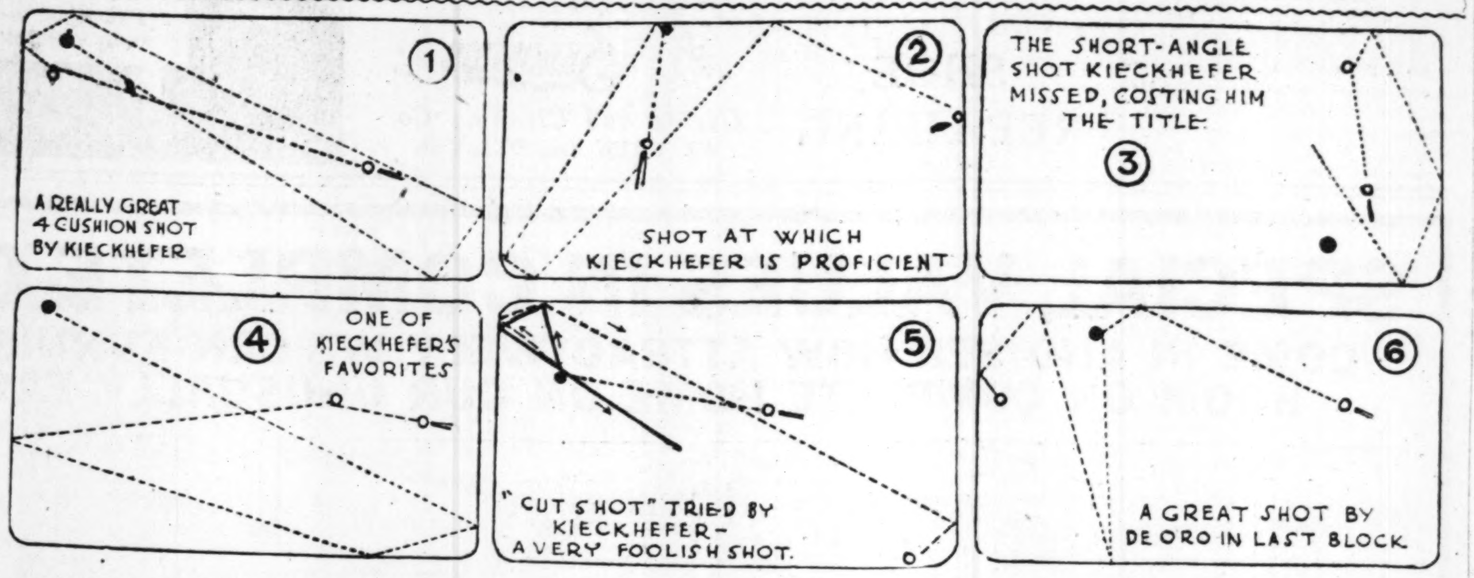
The University Council on Athletics has decided to continue for the remainder of the college year "war time conditions" with respect to the training table. Pennsylvania discontinued the use of the training table in 1916 and yesterday's action was taken in accordance with a recommendation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

GRENADE THROW EVENT DROPPED BY BIG TEN

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—With athletic directors and coaches of the Big Ten making extensive preparations for outdoor track and field games, one event will be dropped and another changed, according to President Avery Brundage of the Western Conference I. A. A.

The grenade throw, which does not meet with the approval of most of the coaches, will be dropped, and the rule regulating the throwing of the javelin changed.

Plays and Misplays Which Cost Kieckhefer His Three-Cushion Title



①
A REALLY GREAT 4 CUSHION SHOT BY KIECKHEFER
②
SHOT AT WHICH KIECKHEFER IS PROFICIENT
THE SHORT-ANGLE SHOT KIECKHEFER MISSED, COSTING HIM THE TITLE
③
④
ONE OF KIECKHEFER'S FAVORITES
⑤
"CUT SHOT" TRIED BY KIECKHEFER—A VERY FOOLISH SHOT.
⑥
A GREAT SHOT BY DE ORO IN LAST BLOCK

CHARLES C. PETERSON, veteran St. Louis billiard expert, who officiated as referee in the Chicago match, in which Alfredo de Oro, the Cuban, wrested the world's three-cushion championship from Augie Kieckhefer, has reproduced in the above drawings the six shots which impressed him as the contest progressed.

Just two of the above drawings represent shots which Peterson places in the "boob" class, and which he claims lost the title for Kieckhefer.

No. 3 is a reproduction of the shot which really cost Kieckhefer the title. It is a short angle carom, which Kieckhefer missed very badly and left De Oro a natural five-cushion shot on which the Cuban scored his 150th and winning point.

Peterson claims Kieckhefer never should have missed the object ball as far as he did. He attributes the miss to one of two things, viz: carelessness in failing to properly vizualize the angle or failure on the part of Kieckhefer to apply the proper amount of "english."

Shortly before this failure Kieckhefer tried the shot as outlined in chart No. 5. Peterson says this was a "million-to-one" chance, as Augie had only an inch at the most to cut the red ball, drop into the corner and count off the white ball at the far end of the table. In this chart, the dotted line represents the manner in which Kieckhefer tried to count and the black line the direction in which the cue ball went after Kieckhefer, instead of hitting the end rail, hit the first ball too full and went to the side rail.

At the time Kieckhefer tried his fatal "cut" of the first object ball he needed three points and De Oro two points to win the match. At such a stage, Peterson says, Kieckhefer never should have played such a shot, though Augie himself said after the match that he was confident he could feather the first object ball and get into the corner, from where the cue ball would have rolled to the other end of the table either for the count or safety.

Nos. 1, 2 and 4 are shots at which Peterson says Kieckhefer showed remarkable proficiency.

No. 6 is a truly great shot played by De Oro in the final block of the match. He made cushion first, red ball, back and forth across the table, dropped onto the end rail and counted. It was a spectacular effort in a championship match.

Peterson says the match between De Oro and Kieckhefer was unique in that not one reverse english carom was made during the entire three blocks.

BUDWEISERS ROLL TO LEAD IN PIN EVENT

Team Totals 2824 in City Scratch Tournament—Moose Boosters Get 2771.

Good bowling marked the second night of the city scratch bowling tournament on the Congress alleys, when the Budweisers rolled into top position, with a total of 2824, with a high single game of 1057. The Moose Boosters were next, with 2771. Fred Utley, with 629, was the high individual, with a score of 629, while Jule Schmitt, 258, had high single game for the Budweisers.

GEORGIA U. IS AFTER HOWARD BERRY AS COACH

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22.—Georgia U., old-time rival of Georgia Tech, has made a coaching offer to J. Howard Berry, Penn's former all-round phenom, according to a report here.

Berry, who is in the bookbinding business with his father, is seriously thinking about accepting. Time was when this university, which is located at Athens, Ga., was a football dictator to Georgia Tech. It was not so many years ago that the athletic pendulum swung the other way and Tech started its long winning streak. The University of Georgia is coming back strong," said Berry. "It has been out of football for the last two seasons and has big plans made for next fall. The alumni the keenly interested in putting Athens institution back on the map athletically, and are more than anxious to start with a victory over their old-time Tech rivals."

It is the intention of Georgia to have Berry take charge of football, baseball and track, the three sports in which he starred at Penn.

Northwestern Five Wins.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—Northwestern defeated Wisconsin, 32 to 21, in a Western Conference basket ball game tonight. Wisconsin outplayed Northwestern in the second half, but could not overcome the handicap of the 20 to 7 score at the end of the first half.

Penn Quintet Wins.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 22.—Pennsylvania defeated Cornell, 39 to 24, in an intercollegiate basket ball game here tonight.

WRAY'S COLUMN

What About This, Dempsey?

JACK DEMPSEY'S name has been associated in a distinctly unpleasant way with three boxing events, without his having sought to condone the charges made in two of the three instances. The Fred Fulton "confession" has been denied by Dempsey; and an examination of it reveals no internal evidence that Dempsey was "double-crossing" his foe for a 23-second knockout at Harrison, N. J., as Fulton asserts.

But for the fact that another double-cross charge has been made against Dempsey without his having made a general denial of it, the Fulton matter could be dismissed. But the case of Battling Levinsky cannot be ignored.

According to Billy Rocap of Philadelphia the Battler also "confessed" publicly that he had arranged a bout with Dempsey, though out of condition, on the understanding that he was not to be knocked out. He was stopped by Dempsey in the third round, to the surprise of the country, or that part of it familiar with the extreme cleverness and skill of the former light-heavyweight champion. So far as can be learned, Levinsky's story has not been refuted by either Dempsey or his manager.

The Dempsey-Flynn Evidence.

ANOTHER reason for thinking that Dempsey's career may not be spotless is found in the Dempsey-Flynn contests. In the first Dempsey was beaten in a punch; a year later Dempsey settled the ancient James with one swipe.

When Dempsey came East for his campaign Kearns and Dempsey stopped over in St. Louis. The writer asked Kearns how that crumbling ruin Flynn ever stopped a live wire like Dempsey.

"Well, you know—or if you don't you can guess," Kearns replied: "Jack was a kid; probably he needed the money and he agreed to 'take one.' He hardly realized what he was doing, then."

Do It Again, Jack.

IT would be easy to ignore any one of these instances; but the cumulative effect of the unpleasant episodes is causing certain reflections on the part of fans.

One of these is that Dempsey could readily clear the atmosphere of doubt that is gathering around his unprecedented knockout record by fighting both Levinsky and Fulton before the Willard engagement.

There is apparently not the remotest possibility of this occurring, however, unless the promoter, "Tex" Rickard, insists on it. Fans would certainly applaud if he so ordered.

Dempsey, if he is a sportsman and won the disputed fight on his merits, should welcome the chance to meet his foe again. It would mean vindication and added income, if he is blameless.

Willard Gaining Friends.

ONE effect of the wrangle will be to nominate Willard favorite when the fighters enter the ring July 4. Already Sam Langford and Fireman Jim Flynn both pick Willard to defeat Dempsey. Willard seems to be in fair condition and will have four months in which to fit himself and regain his boxing intuition.

History tells us that he'll need four years, rather than four months. Willard fought comparatively few fights in his career. On less than a half dozen occasions has he opposed men of CLASS. In addition, he has not fought in three years; has battled only 10 rounds in four years.

In coming back from Hasbeenville Willard will find the way harder and longer than for the youth just coming up. Willard, to be at his best, ought to FIGHT his way back to form against opponents who mean business. Instead he will be gymnasium-trained, by partners careful not to injure him.

You can take the witness, Bo—for me the evidence is already strong enough to make out a case of defeat and a new title holder.

Burning Up the "Big Three."

CORNELL is burning with indignation at being ignored and classed as "secondary" by a recent decision of Yale, Harvard and Princeton to have no "secondary rivalries" in football and other sports. Other teams outside the triumvirate will be met, but it will be thoroughly understood that they are on the basis of conditioning contests, not championship events. The "big three" have let it be seen that they look only to one another for equals in intercollegiate events.

Under the caption "How Big is the Big Three?" the Cornell Sun says editorially:

> The existence of "powerful" cliques controlling the future of intercollegiate athletics is at once the greater stumbling block to success and the greatest menace to the future of the whole system. The easily arrived at conclusion that a given group contains within its restricted confines all the meat and marrow seems to constitute the raison de'etre and the strength of the "Big Three."
> Harvard, Yale and Princeton are perhaps just a little behind the times in setting up their hierarchy of intercollegiate sport. With the multiplicity of colleges sending teams out into intercollegiate competition, the existence of a sport aristocracy is an anomaly and an anachronism.
> The Big Three idea is a bit undemocratic and against the spirit of the times. College athletic competition should be broadened in scope. Any attempt at forming closed syndicates attacks the very essence of athletics. War should have taught the "Big Three" a lesson or so, and it is possible that the forthcoming army plan of preparedness may include a few eyeopeners for the self-constituted "Big Three."

This seems a bit unjust to the "hierarchy" which, after all, is entitled to operate on the principle of self-determination when it comes to selecting its opponents or arranging its athletic affairs. It may smack of snobbery to the Cornell Sun, but it is certainly unreasonable to expect any eleven to load up with difficult games early in the season, creating an anti-climax in its development.

LOOMIS WILL COMPETE IN EVENTS IN EAST

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—Jo Loomis of the Chicago Athletic Association, just released from the army, began work today in preparation for the twelfth annual indoor games of the Millrose Athletic Association to be held in New York on Feb. 25. Loomis said his army experience kept him in good trim and therefore he will need only the finishing touches to be ready for the Eastern contests. He will run in the military yard dash and the military yard high and low hurdles. Loomis was one of the American team which participated in the Olympic games at Stockholm.

Joie Ray of the Illinois Athletic Club, will also compete in the Millrose Club events. He will try to win the third and final leg of the Rodmen Wanamaker trophy, which becomes the porperty of any runner who wins the 1¼-mile run three times. Ray has won the race for the last two years.

BROWNS CLOSE DEAL TO TRAIN IN TEXAS

Business Manager Quinn Announces Club Will Depart Between March 10 and 15

Business Manager Bob Quinn of the Browns announced last night that arrangements had been completed whereby the local American Leaguers would do their spring training at San Antonio, Tex. The deal was closed by Louis Von Weise, who is connected with Phil Ball, and who has been visiting in Texas with his family for the past few weeks.

During his stay in Texas Von Weise was approached by several men interested in getting a major league club to train there, and after communicating with the officials of the Browns completed arrangements yesterday.

While in Texas the Browns will use the Bronchos' park. They will practice from 9:30 to 11:30 in the morning and from 2:30 to 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. This was done because the San Antonio club will be conditioning at the same time in preparation for the Texas League opening.

While no definite date for the departure from St. Louis has as yet been named, Quinn stated that it would be between March 10 and 15.

Practice games will be played with the Bronchos, while Quinn also stated that efforts would be made to schedule exhibition games with other major league clubs training in Texas.

BASKET BALL PLAYER IS HANDED KNOCKOUT

Members of the University City High School do not take kindly to reports from Troy, Mo., that the recent game with Troy High School was cleanly played. Regarding the contest, one of the players has the following to say:

"We admit the defeat, but resent the statement that it was a clean game. One characteristic of the game was that no fouls were called by the referee, not because there were none, but because no rules were enforced. In the first two minutes of play one of the Troy players struck Weber in the face, which halted the game until he came to. The spectators were continually urging a fight and several times rushed upon the floor. The treatment received by the University City players was the worst they had ever experienced."

2000 WOUNDED WATCH AMERICAN BOXERS WIN

Jimmy Bronson, Missouri Boy, Official Referee for Paris Boxing Show.

Jimmy Bronson, manager of the Southwest Athletic Club of Joplin, Mo., one of the best-conducted boxing organizations in the State, has written a letter to the Sporting Editor of the Post-Dispatch describing boxing conditions in France. Bronson went over to Paris last year for the Y. M. C. A. In part his letter reads as follows:

At present I am referee and matchmaker of the most unique boxing organization under the blue canopy, and up to my ears in an effort to handle my job in the best possible shape.

I ran over to the Palais de Glace—a real show place here—where the Y. M. C. A. holds its boxing bouts. Louie Albert, once a scrapper under Bill McCarney's wing, now a First Lieutenant in Uncle Sam's fighting forces, was on the card that night to officiate. However, when he saw me, he took me to the chaps in charge, suggested I was the fellow to handle the bouts—and I hopped into the center.

They must have gotten pretty putrid refereeing in past bouts as they seemed to think my work giltedged. At any rate the following morning, military officers, Louie and newspapermen went to the bat, and I was installed referee * * * and now I look a cheering four thousand soldiers in the face every Tuesday night.

These boxing shows are staged weekly and are for no one but those in an allied uniform, with a very rare exception when a distinguished visitor is invited. French and American fighters participate and to date some mighty lively scrapping has developed.

2000 Wounded Watch Bouts.

The day ahead of Christmas we staged a show for the American wounded. Two thousand were transferred from hospitals in ambulances and 30 newspapermen accompanying President Wilson attended, as also did the U. S. Consul General. We tried to prevail on the President to attend but he ducked the issue by sending his private secretary instead.

Last night we had eight boxing shows and two wrestling matches on the bills. Admiral Wilson, with his band—the greatest jazz organization I've heard, poured out sweet music to the 4000 soldiers who were on hand.

"Heretofore, French fighters have usually won from their American brothers. That's been due to condition, the American fighters not having had the same chance in the conditioning game as the French.

However, last night a little "blackbird" from Philadelphia, Eddie Kane, knocked a "frog" as cold as a mackerel. He received the greatest ovation ever given a fighter in this city. Officers and men got to their feet and cheered till they were hoarse. Didn't matter in the least whether red, white, blue, black or yellow—just the fact that he was an American got that crowd and when the returns were all in, Kane gathered over 1000 francs thrown at him. Today he's the happiest "blackbird" in the world.

Yanks Win by Knockout.

After this Auggie Ratner, winner of the middleweight title in the recent tournament for the King's trophy at London, Eddie McGoorty and Joe Lynch took "Frogs" into camp by the knockout route and the bunch celebrated in real American style.

All of which prompts this prediction that when these soldiers roll back to the States with their respective units they'll start legislation going in favor of boxing to such an extent that those who heretofore have opposed the sport, will take to the tall and uncut. Boxing is the one sport soldiers have taken to.

We are at present lining up on a card that will provide for the winners of the A. E. F. championships. The finals are to be staged in Paris, and as I am going to shoot a weekly letter to the States on sport affairs—one of which will go to you—I'll keep you in touch with conditions as they occur.

Your Friend,
JIMMY BRONSON.

HUGO BEZDEK OVERLOOKS CARDINALS IN TALKING OF 1919 PENNANT RACE

Manager Hugo Bezdek of Pittsburg, who made quite a success last year in his first season at managing a major league team, or any baseball team for that matter, looks for a great race this seanson in the National League. In Bezdek's opinion, New York will start as favorite in the race, as it has the strongest team, on paper, in the league. But that paper strength does not signify, as the pitching staff looks not too strong, and the team may repeat the history of last year when it won seventeen out of the first eighteen games and yet was out of the race after mid-season.

The champion Chicago team will again be in the race, though its team is not particularly strong, as it has the best pitching staff in the league, even without counting Alexander. Manager Bezdek modestly does not claim any pennant for the Pirates, contenting himself with saying that they ought to, and probably will finish in the first division, as they did last year, much depending upon luck, condition and the "breaks" of the game.

The other contenders for the first division ought to be the Cincinnati Reds, under Pat Moran, and Jack Coombs' Phillies. Evidently Bezdek forgot all about Brooklyn, St. Louis and Boston, or he does not regard them seriously, as he did not mention them at all. As a matter of fact, these three teams do not look very formidable, and yet, under the new spirit that is bound to prevail in base ball this year, one cannot tell what may happen to upset the dope and the dopesters.

MICHIGAN TRACK STAR WILL COMPETE IN PENN RELAY CARNIVAL IN APRIL

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22.—Carl Johnson of Michigan, who startled Middle West intercollegiate athletics last year by winning both hurdles and the broad jump at the Western Conference championships, will compete in the Penn Relay Carnival the last Saturday in April on Franklin Field.

Johnson is the logical successor to Simpson of Missouri as the miracle man in track and field athletics. Last season he scored almost one-third of the points made by Michigan in their dual and championship meets. During the year he won not only the hurdles and broad jump, which are his specialties, but also sprint events and the high jump, at both of which he is equally strong. In the broad jump Johnson made a new conference record of 23 feet 11¼ inches.

Coach Farrell thinks that he will get beyond the 24-foot mark this year.

Johnson won the broad jump at the Penn Carnival last year with a leap of 22 feet 9¾ inches. He also was a very close second to Erdman of Princeton in the hurdles.

Coach Farrell hopes in addition to Johnson to bring East a relay team for either the one or the two mile championship.

IOWA WOULD LEGALIZE 10-ROUND BOXING BOUTS

DES MOINES—Boxing contests limited to 10 rounds, with no decisions, would be permitted in Iowa if the Legislature passes the bill introduced by Representative Frank Lake of Sioux City.

The measure provides for the appointment of a state athletic commission of three members to supervise and regulate all boxing contests, which clubs or other organizations would be licensed to conduct.

Ten per cent of the gross receipts would go to the state treasury, and after expenses of the commission had been deducted, the balance would go toward a memorial for Iowa soldiers and sailors killed in the war.

Clubs licensed to conduct matches would pay a fee of $50, depending on the size of the city, and a bond of $2000 would be required to guarantee complete observance of all provisions of the law. The Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus and Amateur Athletic Union would not have to pay the license fee to conduct amateur bouts. Contestants would be examined by a physician appointed by the commission, and no contestant under 18 years of age and no spectators under that age, unless accompanied by parent, would be admitted.

BRAVES GET HOLKE FOR INFIELDER AND CASH

BOSTON, Feb. 22.—George W. Grant, owner of the Boston National League baseball club, announced tonight that he had obtained First Baseman Walter Holke from the Cincincinnati club, giving in exchange James Smith, utility infielder, and a cash consideration. Smith came to Boston from the New York Nationals last spring.

Blue Jay Five Loses.

FULTON, Mo., Feb. 22.—By playing a brand of teamwork that was hard to break up and scoring heavily at the beginning of both halves, Central Wesleyan College of Warrenton defeated Westminster College here tonight by the score of 48 to 25. In the last of the second half Westminster broke up Central Wesleyan's plays and scored heavily. Weidlick started for Westminster and Buschmann for Central Wesleyan. Westminster plays Central, Tarkio and William Jewell here next week.

WEILMAN IS READY TO RESUME HURLING

Browns' Star Southpaw Signs Contract; Believes He Can Come Back This Year.

Hopes of Bob Quinn and Jimmy Burke that the Browns will be able to start the coming pennant fight with one of the strongest pitching staffs in the baseball universe were given a tremendous boost yesterday when the signed contract of Carl Weilman, the elongated southpaw reached the headquarters of Phil Ball's organization.

With the contract was a letter in which Weilman discusses at great length the effort he will make this year to rank among the leading southpaws of the league. Weilman evidently is confident he can pull a come-back, else, as he says, he never would have signed a contract.

If the big southpaw comes through the Browns unquestionably will be extremely well fortified in the pitching department and considerably stronger as a team than last year, for one pitcher such as Weilman was in 1916 very often marks the difference between second and first divisions.

It will be remembered that Weilman was forced to undergo an operation which has kept him out of the national pastime for two years. Previous to this Carl was rated among the best lefthanders in the Ban Johnson circuit. His letter to Quinn follows:

HAMILTON, O., Feb. 20, 1919.
Mr. Robert Quinn,
St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Sir: Enclosed please find my signed contract for 1919, with which I want to say I am well pleased, and hope that I can prove your faith in me is well founded.

Without a doubt I believe I can give a good account of myself again, because I have hunted, bowled and worked hard at the machinist trade since last September, and can see no ill-effects from it; in fact, it is just the opposite; I went into the shop weighing 189 pounds and today I weigh 195, compared to 187 when I was playing ball.

My work has been particularly heavy, which you will realize when I tell you we just completed a gun lathe 220 feet long, which required 15 cars to ship to the Washington navy yards. Of course I do not mean to tell you that I lifted the various parts upon the cars, but just wanted to give you an idea of the kind of work I was doing. It has been a test for me and I am well satisfied that I can endure playing ball again. If I didn't think I could I would never sign a contract.

Hoping I can "come across" with a better season than I ever had and instead of "pulling" a "come-back" (as some would term it) it will only be a "continuation" of whatever anyone wants to term my former record; also wishing the club a few more better breaks than have been their share in the last few years, I remain,

Very sincerely yours,
(Signed) CARL E. WEILMAN.

WOMAN HAS SCORE OF 60 FOR 18 HOLES OF GOLF

Probably the lowest score made by a woman golfer for an 18-hole round in this country is the total credited to Mrs. Peggy Cameron, playing over the Griffith Park links in California. Mrs. Cameron, competing for the "Sassy Jane" trophy, turned in a 74, and as she had a handicap of 14 her net was 60. It later turned out that she had a handicap of 6 in the British Women's Golfing Union.

For many years the lowest 18-hole total for a woman on record was that made by Miss Genevieve Hecker, winner of the first two championships of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association in 1900 and 1901. It was in 1902 at Essex County that Miss Hecker went around like a wild horse, finishing with a 77 in the qualifying test. Essex County then had a yardage of slightly more than 5000 yards. The Griffiths Park course measures 5424 yards.

GARRISON TO RUN FOR HEAD OF ALDERMEN

Decides to Enter Race on Democratic Ticket in Primary in March.

Flint Garrison of 5835 Bartmer avenue, president of the Garrison-Wagner Printing Co., and manager of The Drygoodsman, a trade publication, announced last evening that he would file as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President of the Board of Aldermen, in the primary March 7. The time for filing for this nomination, and for nomination for the Board of Aldermen from the 14 even-numbered wards, to be chosen at the election April 1, ends tomorrow night at 9 o'clock.

A petition signed by 152 Democrats and Republicans, asking Garrison to become a candidate was presented to him Friday. This was reinforced by a similar formal request from the Democratic City Committee. In the first petition, the fact was emphasized that the present Mayor may be removed by means of the recall, and that in this event the President of the Board of Aldermen would become Mayor.

Garrison has been active in the recall movement.

Letter Announcing Decision.

In his letter to Chairman Daley of the Democratic City Committee, announcing his decision, Garrison said:

"Your personal and definite assurance that every influence will be exerted to induce men of purely public interest to file for each of the 14 aldermanic places on the ticket, and your further assurance that every effort will be made to nominate as candidates for the Board of Education the very highest type of men who can be induced to serve in that capacity are both gratifying and convincing. In view of this assurance I am very glad to accept the honor which you confer upon me and will file as a candidate."

Republican Candidates.

Up to last night, Louis P. Aloe of 37 Kingsbury place, present Republican President of the Board of Aldermen, was the only person who had filed as a candidate for that office on either ticket.

Members of the present board, all Republicans, who had filed for renomination up to last night are: Fourth Ward, William F. Otto; Sixth, William L. Tamme; Tenth, Otto A. Hampe; Sixteenth, Adam Reis; Twentieth, Wilbur C. Schwartz; Twenty-second, Herman C. Kralemann; Twenty-sixth, Ralph Eilers; Twenty-eighth, Luke E. Hart.

Others seeking the Republican nominations are: Fourth Ward, S. Goldman, publisher, 2119 Biddle street; Eighth, Edward Hirth, 2000 South Second street; Tenth, Dr. Charles E. Anderson, 3105 South

"The unanimous request of the members of the Democratic City Committee that I become a candidate for the nomination for President of the Board of Aldermen has conferred upon me a most unexpected distinction. To say that I feel honored is to but mildly express my appreciation. This feeling is further heightened by the frank acknowledgment, in your letter, that I am known to be free from partisan entanglements and from party domination in local affairs. The unusual manner in which this invitation has been extended and the support that already has been given to the idea of my candidacy has apparently made of it an obligation which I cannot well evade.

"No useful purpose will be served in my becoming a candidate for this office unless there is brought to my support upon the ticket, as candidates for the other offices, men who are known to be interested in public office, not for what they can get out of it, but instead for what they can put into it, in the way of disinterested public service.

Grand avenue; Twelfth, Charles A. Neumann, merchant, 6419A Virginia avenue; Fourteenth, Harry P. Riefling, automobile dealer, 2621A Armand place; Twenty-fourth, Charles A. Groeschel, master plumber, 5839 Arsenal street.

Democratic Candidates.

Those who had filed, up to last night, for the Democratic nominations, are: Eighth, Thomas Bastian, merchant, 1503 South Ninth street; Tenth, Charles J. Doran, chiropractor 2856A Salena street; Twelfth, George Meek, bricklayer, 4341 Bates street; Fourteenth, Jerome L. Fuerst, salesman, 2820A Oregon avenue; Eighteenth, Frank Korasiek, grocer, 2500 Hebert street; Twentieth, William Krummenacher, druggist, 3810 Page boulevard; Twenty-fourth, Nils Grant, real estate agent, 7008 Hancock avenue.

No candidate has filed in the Second Ward, and no Republican in the Eighteenth, where the party leaders are said to be looking for someone in place of Alderman Alfred Bergman. Grant, the Democratic aspirant in the Twenty-fourth, is president of the Citizens' Referendum League, which is backing the movement for the recall of Mayor Kiel. Julius Haller, present Republican Alderman from the Twenty-fourth, is the only member of the board who voted against the recent whitewashing of the Mayor's action. He said yesterday he had not decided whether to file again for Alderman or to file for President of the Board of Aldermen. Groeschel, who has filed in the Twenty-fourth, is Republican committeeman from that ward.

Dr. Edward Richter, Alderman from the Twelfth Ward, who is a physician for the United Railways Co., and rides in street cars free, by means of a badge, has not thus far filed, and is opposed by the party organization. The organization is also against Alderman Gus Baur of the Fourteenth, the reason given being that he, being a saloon-keeper, would weaken the ticket. He has not filed thus far.

ELOQUENT APPEALS FOR FREEDOM OF IRELAND

Right of Country to Liberty Taken Up at Convention in Philadelphia.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22.—Eloquent appeals for the freedom of Ireland and bitter arraignment of England marked the opening session today of the Convention of the Irish Race. The convention, which is being held under the auspices of the Friends of Irish Freedom, sent a cablegram to Cardinal Mercier of Belgium, thanking him for his contribution to the cause of world freedom and another to Edmund De Valeria, of the provincial government of Ireland, explaining the purposes of the meeting, which was called to demand for Ireland the right of self-determination.

All the speakers, including Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, of the New York Supreme Court; the Rev. Peter E. Magennis, of New York, president of the Friends of Irish Freedom, Representative Thomas Gallagher, of Illinois, and the Rv. Francis McCabe, president of DePauw University, emphasized the right of the Irish to liberty.

"Time to Plead Gone."

"The time to plead is gone forever," declared Dr. McCabe, "we want promises of Irish freedom fulfilled. We demand that the military forces be withdrawn from Ireland so that the strain of the present may be taken away.

"Self-determination for small nations, promised to the parents who gave up their sons in the war, must be applied to Ireland. We must not ask for the fulfillment of this promise; we must demand it.

"With all due respect to the fighting qualities of other nations, America won the war and now we have a right to demand that President and congress keep faith with those who died."

"Solution in America."

The Rev. Dr. Magennis, who is assistant general of the Carmelite order, said:

"The work before the convention is of supreme importance. Every day, every hour, nay every moment must be offered up on the altar of that country's freedom. Outside of Ireland itself the solution of the problem that is so near to our heart lies in America.

"For almost two years America directed her steps to the bloody fields of Flanders. During all that time the voice of the great President of this republic was ringing through the world announcing the glad doctrine of the freedom of all small nationalities.

"We have wept enough for Ireland, we have glorified sufficiently in Ireland, now our duty is to work for Ireland and to work in such a way that the world shall understand that our work is the work of men who could die for Ireland."

Justice Cohalan took exception to the statement that the Irish question was one of democratic policy with the British empire.

"Surely," he declared, "no question which now involves the right of one people to govern another without the consent of that people can be regarded as other than an international problem and one in which all the peoples of the world have a vital interest."

MAN WHO KILLED BREWERY FOREMAN AND SHOT SELF DIES

Motive for Benjamin Schmidt's Attack on Henry Bunke Has Not Been Discovered.

Benjamin Schmidt, 42 years old, of 3617 Louisiana avenue, died at the city hospital yesterday after shooting and instantly killing Henry Bunte, a brewery foreman, of 3640A Louisiana and then shooting himself.

Schmidt, who was an elevator operator, walked into Joseph Cafferata's saloon, 3400 Miami street, at 6:15 p. m. Friday and opened fire on Bunte. After he had shot Bunte and fired a shot at Cafferata he ran to his home and went into the basement and shot himself in the head. His motive for shooting Bunte is not known to the police.

12-STORY ANNEX IS PLANNED FOR JEFFERSON HOTEL

Realty Company of Which Festus J. Wade Is President, Awaits Enabling Action by Board of Aldermen.

PROJECT HINGES ON VACATION OF ALLEY

Addition to Occupy West Half of Block Fronting on Thirteenth and Locust Streets, Facing Library Park.

By Berry Moore.

The Hotel Realty Co., of which Festus J. Wade, president of the Mercantile Trust Co., is the dominant factor, has completed plans for the erection of a 12-story annex to the Jefferson Hotel, situated on the west side of Twelfth street and extending from Locust to St. Charles streets.

The improvement is to occupy the entire west half of this block, with a frontage on Thirteenth street of 204 feet, overlooking Library Park. The frontage or depth on Locust and on St. Charles street will in each instance be 225 feet. The annex thus will be twice the size of that of the present hotel, which is only 225x100 feet. It will be constructed in two units, each 102x124 feet, but both structures will be combined with the present one to form one imposing hostelry.

The Locust street section of the site will be built up first. This, with its flood of automobile traffic, of which Thirteenth and Locust street is the vortex in the downtown districts and which the rooms of the Thirteenth street frontage will overlook, will form a most attractive feature of the proposed annex. Thirty feet was cut off the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Locust streets to eliminate the jog in the thoroughfare at this point. This has heightened the plaza effect produced by Library Park.

Execution of the annex project awaits only the passing of a bill before the Board of Aldermen for vacation of the north and south alley, forming the west boundary of the Jefferson Hotel and dividing the block. The entire block is owned by corporations composed of clients of the Mercantile Trust Co., whose interests are closely identified, the east half, 225x100 feet, the present site of the hotel, being held by the Hotel Realty Co., and the west half, which is in two plots, each 102x225 feet, by the Composite Realty Co. and by the Mutual Realty Co.

Alley Formerly Private.

The alley which the city is asked to vacate for this monumental improvement originally belonged to the owners of the ground held by the Mutual, Composite and Hotel Realty Co.'s. The situation is identical with that of the alley vacated by the Board of Aldermen for the erection of the Mercantile Trust addition at the southeast corner of Eighth and St. Charles streets, and giving that establishment a building of the arcade type, extending from Locust to St. Charles streets, at the northeast corner of Eighth and Locust streets.

The Jefferson Hotel comprises 12 stories. It was erected at the instance of Festus J. Wade by a group of public-spirited citizens in the year preceding the World's Fair, to provide first-class hotel accommodations, of which there was then a dearth, incident to the demands of that enterprise.

As was the case at that time, the enlargement of the hotel is projected in order to provide for the increasing demand of first-class accommodations. As president of the Hammett-Anderson-Wade Realty Co., which formed the nucleus of the Mercantile Trust Co., Wade organized the syndicate that erected the Planters Hotel, the first tall building of this character to be erected in St. Louis.

Although there has been no expressed opposition to it, the bill providing for the vacation of the alley for the proposed annex to the Jefferson Hotel, it is understood, has been before the Board of Aldermen for a year or more, it apparently having been overlooked with the abstraction due to the war. The site of the projected annex is occupied by large warehouse buildings used for storage purposes under a lease which soon will expire.

Other Big Holdings.

Wade is the moving spirit in the Corner Realty Co., which erected the 10-story building at the southwest corner of Twelfth and Locust streets, comprising the Schubert Theater and the general offices of the Union Electric Light and Power Co., which controls the building under a long lease.

Plans contemplate the erection of the proposed annex to the Jefferson Hotel as soon as the site is available, according to Wade, the Hotel Realty Co., together with the Composite and Mutual Realty companies, being composed of a group of the wealthiest men in St. Louis, and thus having ample resources to prosecute the project on a commensurate scale.

Nothwithstanding the fact that the Statler Hotel, embracing 600 rooms, and which, incidentally, was promoted by Tom W. Bennett, president of the Mortgage Guarantee and the Mortgage Trust companies, the hotel accommodations of the city are still inadequate to provide for the transient population of the city, to say nothing of its growth, which recently, it is believed, has received new impetus. During the last three years several office buildings in the downtown district, including the Houser Building, at the northwest corner of Broadway and Chestnut street; the Navarre Building, at the southwest corner of Sixth and Chestnut streets, and the Roe Building, at the southwest corner of Broadway and Pine streets, have been converted into hotels, such has been the demand.

ORVILLE GROVE . . .

At a recent meeting of it's Board of Directors, Orville Grove was elected assistant real estate officer of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. He has been identified for many years with the company as office manager of its Real Estate Department. He is a firm believer in St. Louis real estate as a medium of investment, and is regarded as authority on real estate values.

JOHN W. HARRISON BUYS HOME ON WATERMAN AVENUE

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Harrison have purchased the home of Mrs. M. Hayward Post, at 5371 Waterman avenue. The transaction was handled by the Fletcher R. Harris Realty Co.

The premises comprise a lot fronting 70 feet on the north line of Waterman avenue by a depth of 212½ feet to an alley. It is the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison to occupy the house.

The residence is one of the handsomest in that section of the city.

OLIVE STREET BUILDING LEASED

Barngrove & Specht, in conjunction with the J. Kreuger Real Estate Co., report leasing of the third floor of the building at the northeast corner of 15th and Olive streets. The lessees, the Levin & Lander Book Binding & Sample Co., were formerly located at 816 Pine street. The lease was made for the Jane Holding Co.

The company also leased the storeroom at 10 North Sixth street, from the Central Amusement Co. to Louis Demetroff. Barngrove & Specht represented both parties.

PRODUCE COMPANY BUYS LOT

The Ben Altheimer & Bro. Realty Co. reports having sold to Victor Cicardi and Lewis Cicardi Jr., of the Cicardi Bros.' Produce Co., a large lot on the south side of Morgan street. It adjoins the German Evangelical Lutheran Church at the southwest corner of Fifteenth and Morgan streets. The property was sold for the Peabody Realty and Investment Co., of which Richard M. Sayers is president.

The management of the property will be in the hands of the Altheimer company. The sale contract was closed one hour after the Civardis opened negotiations for the property.

LEASE EFFECTIVE IN 1924 TAKEN BY EASTERN CONCERN

Washington Avenue Quarters for Department Store Acquired for 15 Years at Annual Rental of $30,000.

RUSH FOR CENTRAL DISTRICT LOCATIONS

Broadway, Olive, Locust and Other Thoroughfares Figure in Feature Transactions of Past Week.

The foremost features of the week in realty circles were embodied in a number of leases made for quarters in the central retail district of the city, according to announcements by leading real estate agencies.

Negotiations were concluded yesterday whereby W. T. Grant & Co., a 25 and 50 cent department store, with headquarters in New York, acquired a 15-year lease of the six-story building at 616-618 Washington avenue. The lease, however, will not become effective until 1924, when the leases of the present tenants, the Brandt Shoe Co. and the Sloan Millinery Co., will expire. The rental provided for in the lease to the Grant company will aggregate $450,000, it being at the rate of $30,000 a year.

The building has a frontage on Washington avenue of 48 feet and a depth of 151 feet, the property having a like frontage on St. Charles street. It is in the midst of what may be termed the maelstrom of the real estate district. The lessor is the Byron Nugent estate, which was represented by Nathan Frank. Negotiations for the building were conducted through the Charles C. Nicholls Realty Co. of St. Louis, in conjunction with C. C. Nicholls Jr., who is a junior associate of Joseph P. Day & Co., a real estate concern of New York.

Chain-Store Company.

Grant & Co. operate a chain of 25 and 50 cent stores established in the principal cities of the country, all of which are conducted on a large scale. The locations for 11 of these stores were obtained by C. C. Nicholls Jr. and his partner, Bennett T. Barnby. The Washington avenue store is the twenty-fifth acquired by this company. Those nearest to St. Louis are at Peoria, Rockford and Dayton, and in Louisville, Ky. The company has also recently taken four locations in Texas.

In acquiring the lease here the concern has taken time well by the forelock, but the presumption is that it still has a hand to play which will give it earlier possession of the building than that provided for in the lease.

Woolworth & Co., it is recalled, recently acquired through the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co., a half block of four-story buildings, embracing the southwest and the northwest corners of Broadway, Washington avenue and St. Charles street. These buildings, owned by Nathan Frank and Salveter & Stewart, respectively, are being remodeled for a mammoth 5 and 10 cent store.

F. H. Kresge Co., a client of the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co., has just completed construction of a four-story building on a quarter of a block at the southeast corner of Sixth street and Washington avenue. The site is held under 99-year leases, embracing a multiplicity of ownerships, which were obtained one at a time by the Weisels-Gerhart company. This store has introduced a 25-cent department, which, however, is distinct from the 10-cent store, but located in the same block.

Broadway Building Leased.

With plans for a restaurant and billiard and pool parlors, George Angelick has leased, through Cornet & Zeibig, the five-story building at 111 North Broadway, owned by the Elmer G. Clark heirs. The dimensions of the structure, which is situated on the south side of Broadway, between Pine and Chestnut streets, is 25x127 feet. Parties whose identity has not been disclosed, have leased, through Cornet & Zeibig, two stores at 425-27 North Broadway, owned by the Doan estate.

The Reilly Optical Co. has acquired a lease of the building at 619 Locust street, the lessor being the May Department Store Co., a client of Cornet & Zeibig.

As a store for pianos and musical instruments, Frank P. Krite has leased 1012 Olive street, owned by A. P. Ghio, represented by Cornet & Zeibig.

The Grafanola Shops has taken a lease, through Cornet & Zeibig, of A. P. Ghio's building at 1008 Olive street. The Martin Breitt Real Estate Co. assisted in the transaction.

The Philadelphia Battery Co. has obtained a lease of a three-story building, 22x100 feet, at 205 North Twelfth street, the property of Col. F. H. Phipps of the U. S. army, who was represented by Cornet & Zeibig.

Another lease effected by Cornet & Zeibig was that of the second floor corner room of the Post-Dispatch Building at Twelfth and Olive streets, to the International Association of Railroad Supervisors and Foremen. Cornet & Zeibig recently leased the entire eighth floor of the Post-Dispatch Building to the Missouri Portland Cement Co., which will take possession March 1. This corporation, of which Harry L. Block is president, is now located in the International Life Building, at Eighth and Chesthut streets.

EXHIBIT BUILDING PROJECT REVIVED FROM WAR-QUIET

With the close of the annual automobile show last night there came definite revival of the exhibit building enterprise on a basis that it is declared by the corporation to assure success up to the full measure designed at the outset a year ago. The project has, in fact, the corporation officials state, been merely quiet because of the conditions attaching to the war, and since the signing of the armistice activities toward reorganization have been moving with constantly increasing encouragement.

Fred J. Perabo, long prominent in the St. Louis jobbing dry goods trade, is the new president of the corporation, to which he is devoting his entire time. "We are not proclaiming in advance what we propose to do," he said yesterday. "Rather are we doing the things first and letting them speak for themselves. Prior to the auto show we spent nearly $20,000 in putting the building, formerly the Southern Hotel, in permanent shape for the purpose it is to serve. This included a concrete flooring of the entire second floor, removal of inside walls and beautifying the main walls as far as we could go in advance or removal of the decorations for the show, which are to remain until after the used car show, beginning March 3, and to continue for one week. When the latter show has closed we are going ahead with the improvements and complete them as rapidly as possible. Meantime, we are proceeding with the business of getting permanent exhibits and arranging to insure the necessary audiences to make the exhibit profitable to those installing them.

"Our program hmas been definitely laid out to make St. Louis the center of these permanent exhibits, which the foremost cities of the country are recognizing as of paramount importance in the upbuilding of foreign and domestic trade, and plans are well nigh perfected to make that program an actuality. We are not expecting to accomplish this undertaking in its entirely within a week or a month, but we know that it will be accomplished and that St. Louis will derive vast advantage from it."

BANK MAKES FORMER SOLDIER MANAGER OF BOND DEPARTMENT

Natt T. Wagner, Recently Released From Quartermaster's Office, Joins Third National Staff.

At a recent meeting of its board, Lieut. Natt T. Wagner was appointed manager of the bond department of the Third National Bank.

Wagner received his commission at Denver in the Quartermaster's Department and has just been mustered out of the service.

Wagner was born at Asheville, N. C., and educated at Davidson College. For two years after his graduation he was in the service of the Government in connection with the United States Indian Land Department, and it was here he became interested in municipal bonds, in which business he was later engaged for several years in Oklahoma.

In 1912 he assisted in the organization of the National Bank of Commerce at Wichita Falls, Tex. He later became associated with Sweet, Causey, Foster & Co. of Denver, as the manager of their municipal bond department.

LOCUST STREET FACTORY PLANT LEASED BY THREE CONCERNS

Former Livery Stable Property at Channing Avenue Converted to Industrial Purposes.

The Paul Jones Realty Co., through Le Grand Jones, reports having leased the two-story building at the northwest corner of Locust street and Channing avenue, having a frontage of 150 feet on Locust strret by a depth of 135 feet and contains 40,000 square feet. It was leased to the Universal Manufacturing Co., occupying 26,000 square feet ,to the Missouri Auto Top and Suply Co., 10,000 square feet, and to the Bick Auto Delivery Co., 4000 square feet.

The property was formerly occupied as a livery stable, but it has been converted into a light manufacturing building, a considerable sum having been spent in improvements.

The company also reports having leased 3040 and 3042 Locust street to Henry Shields. The property is owned by the Missouri Botanical Garden.

A demand for stores in the automobile district on Locust street is declared to be much greater than the supply.

LACLEDE AND FOUKE COMPARED IN TRUST COMPANY PUBLICITY

Former Lived to Found Great City, the Other Has Made St. Louis Foremont Fur Center.

A comparison, which is not so very far-fetched, between Pierre Laclede, a well-known New Orleans and St. Louis fur trader of the early 1720s, and Philip B. Fouke, also from New Orleans, who has done big things in the same line of business here in the past few years, is made in the latest of the series of historical advertisements of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., which appears in today's Post-Dispatch. G. Prather Knapp is the writer.

"Laclede lived to found a city that is one of the greatest, and may one day be the greatest, in the world," the writer says. "Fouke has lived to make St. Louis the center of the world's fur trade."

The next article of the series will tell of the Mississippi River as a feature of St. Louis' business history.

RETURNED SOLDIER ENTERS REALTY FIELD

Lieut. D. E. Attebery Joins Sales Staff of Mississippi Valley Trust Co.

David E. Attebery, who until last November was a First Lieutenant in the Sanitary Corps of the United States Army, has joined the sales force of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co.'s real estate department.

Lieut. Attebery is a regular army man whose enlistment dates back to December, 1914. Before entering the service he was in charge of the real estate and development department of the Peabody & Burnwell Coal Corporation, operating from Chicago through Oklahoma, Arkansas, Iowa and the Dakotas.

He entered the medical department of the army as a private, and at the entrance of the United States into the war was Sergeant in charge of sanitary arrangements at the first training camp at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. He won his commission soon after and since has served at Fort Warren, Mass.; the Presidio, San Francisco; Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.; Camp Sevier, Cal., and Fort Screven, Ga. His last detail at Fort Screven was that of adjutant and registrar and disbursing officer in charge of 6000 men.

As sanitary officer, Attebery had much to do with the laying out of camps and cantonments, the selection of building sites and similar matters which will be useful to him in the real estate business.

NOTICE

SPECULATORS, BUILDERS AND HOME- SEEKERS.

I am closing out the remaining 6 lots in Helfenstein Park. Out of 43 lots there are only 6 left (4 sold in last 30 days). Highest and best restricted residence section of Web- ster Groves. Look at them, covince your- self. You make the terms. The prices are low in comparison to the quality. Bounded by Rock Hill road, Swon and Lockwood avs. Nothing better anywhere, few as good. High- class, established neighborhood. All improve- ments made. Twenty-five handsome homes already built; several others will be started shortly. If you contemplate buying a lot this is your last chance to buy at rock-bottom price from the original owners. I intend to sell every remaining lot at once. Plat at office. JAS. C. MORFIT, 807 Chestnut st.

FAMOUS FARM LANDS.
Through a fortunate purchase we are able to offer for sale the famous Nutwood drainage lands in small tracts. The land is located 50 miles from St. Louis; is perfectly level and perfectly drained. The soil is a black alluvial silt, heavily bearing in lime, and there are comfortable houses and barns on every 80-acre tract.
There are 40 or more acres of growing wheat to each 80, which goes with the land if sold by March 15, and should yield on last year's basis 35 bushels to the acre, one-fourth the price the are asking, according to the location and improvements. Terms as reasonable as one-fourth cash.
See us at your earliest convenience, as these farms are going fast and it is almost impossible to secure additional land in this region in small tracts.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

BEAUTY CULTURE

MISS DELMAR.—A beauty writer says: The woman with the thin arm needs to develop her muscles. Tennis, rowing, swimming are all pleasant remedies which she can apply; or, if she is not disposed to outdoor sports (more's the pity!) boudoir exercises will help her out. To Develop Shoulder Muscles: Standing with heels together, chin up, body erect, stretch the arms out at sides on a horizontal line with the shoulders, palms up, but fingers closed to form a fist. Now, describe a vertical circle with each arm, being careful not to bend the elbow, but letting the shoulders move. Continue for 2 minutes; rest; repeat for 2 more minutes. Practice this at odd times during the day. To Develop Forearm: Standing in same position, with arms outstretched horizontally at sides, shut the hands quickly; open and stretch the fingers, as if really seeking to touch something; close again; open and stretch; and continue till the muscles begin to feel tired.

READER.—Sometimes removal of hair on upper lip can be effected, but not always. Even electric needle is not always sure; and if the root of the individual hair is not killed when the needle is applied, or is split, two grow in the place of one. Of remedies, common to all, and about as sure as any—for with some the hair has great tendency of growth—is the application of an exceedingly weak preparation of ammonia, after pulling out the hair with a swift, strong jerk of the tweezers. Do not try too large a place at one time. After wetting the spot with ammonia and it dries apply a little cold cream. Do not use vaseline. Repeat this operation until growth is stopped or greatly diminished. Another way is to rub the hair off with pumice stone being careful not to take off the skin, and apply very weak ammonia. The cold cream must be used afterward to prevent soreness. If ammonia is too strong it makes a painful burn.

F. H. M.—Ashtabula iron bridge disaster, Dec. 29, 1876. Of 147 persons on the train, 72 were rescued alive, most of them badly injured; 75 were killed outright, burned to death or drowned. Ira D. Sankey, evangelist, was not on the train. He died Aug. 13, 1908. Philip Paul Bliss, evangelist and hymn writer perished with his wife on the train. There is now no bridge, the place having been filled and there being culverts. The bones of those burned or drowned were collected and placed in the beautiful Chester Grove Cemetery and a monument was raised over them.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

H. E. B.—Dye stain: Moisten fresh bleaching powder with water and rub into a paste. Then moisten the spots and put some of the paste on both sides. Let dry and repeat process if necessary. Rinse between each application of paste. • • • Clothes are sometimes splashed with dyes in dyeing at home. These splashes can be readily removed by soaking them in ammonia water.

ORANGES. — For candying orange peels use only the thick rinds; soak the peels in water, changing several times, until they lose their bitterness; then put them into boiling sirup and boil gently until they become soft and transparent; then take them out and drain, roll in powdered sugar and put in a dry place. The sirup which adheres to the peel will "candy."

MISCELLANEOUS.

E. H. Write War Dept.

LADY.—You might submit your stories to some of the short-story publishing syndicates, such as the Associated Literary Press, care of McClure Newspaper Syndicate, 43-45 West 34th st., New York; the International Press Syndicate, 86 La Salle st., Chicago, Ill. Manuscripts (on one side of paper) and folded; never rolled. They should be accompanied by stamps in case of rejection, and they ought always to bear the name and address of the author.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BELIEVER IN THE STARS.—Birthday first part of October, sign Libra. Ambitious, energetic, inspired. Men fascinating; gamble and speculate; full of hope and enthusiasm. Women not so reckless; detest money matters; not intentionally dishonest, but not good pay. Yet both men and women have a keen sense of justice. Poets, writers, musicians. Give away half they possess. Impatient; wounded by trifles; despise routine; when angry resemble a cyclone; espouse new cause too readily.

MARGUERITE.—Birthday, Fe. 19 to Mar. 21, Pisces, loving and trusting; do a great deal for relatives and friends; love the beautiful; are magnetic; naturally honest; modern and clean-minded; are good accountants, deficient in self-esteem; worry a good deal; women lose and mislay things; careless in household matters. Pisces people talk too much; may be intellectually dishonest and inattentive; lack judgment and discrimination. • • • Birthday May 20 to June 21 sign of Gemini. Gemini persons have dual nature; happy and unhappy; satisfied and dissatisfied; affectionate, generous, courteous; have much family pride; thoughtful of poor; fond of art and science; readers and talkers; see a point quickly; religious, very executive. Don't try to explain to them or argue with them. Complainers; never still; deceive themselves; liable to go to extremes; suspicious; untruthful.

IGNORANCE.—Both of you should deed to an outsider (straw party), who, in turn, should deed it to wife only, which deed must be properly drawn so as to exclude the curtesy and all marital rights of present or of any future husband; a deed called "Conveyance in Trust," is generally used for the purpose by which the straw party deeds the property to some person as trustee for the wife; the quit-claim will do but great care should be taken in drawing it, otherwise the object you wish to obtain may not be accomplished. The estate consisting only of the homestead property you mention, widow can occupy same as such during her life or widowhood; or take her dower, or, if she has a child by such marriage living may take a child's part absolutely, but such would be subject to payment of husband's debts. In the personal estate widow can take household furniture absolutely; is also entitled to one year's provisions and meat and if not on hand court upon application will make an allowance in cash for that purpose and in the remainder is entitled to a child's share. The insurance payable to his estate is personal property referred to above.

CARMODY.—In pewspaper printing the process is completed by means of a succession of printings in one trip of the ribbon of paper through the press. The press is divided into sections, each complete and each capable of applying one color. The original plates are made by the "Ben Day" process to print respectively only in yellow, red, blue or black, and are, for press purposes and to preserve the originals in case of accident, reproduced by the electrotyping process in the form of curved or semi-cylindrical plates. The paper on its going through the press is printed first on one side in black only; next, in succession, on the opposite side in yellow, red, blue and black in the order named and by the superimposition of colors more than the three primary colors and black are obtained: Thus, blue on top of yellow yields green; red on top of yellow, orange; blue on top of red, purple; black on top of red, brown. After the printing is completed the sheets are carried in a solid ribbon of paper to the folding mechanism and folded, and, in the case of the colored magazine section wire stitched and delivered in bundles of 50 papers, the comic on one side and the magazine on the opposite side of the press, all at a speed of 14,000 of each kind of papers per hour.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Alice Rolves Nieman, who departed this life Feb. 22, 1917:

A rose that is sweetest and fairest,
In the end is killed by the frost.
And the flower that is dearest and rarest
Is the mother we have lost.

Sadly missed by
DAUGHTERS, SONS AND SON-IN-LAW.

DEATHS

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our darling baby, Kenneth J. Quante, who died Feb. 24, 1918:

A rose that is sweetest and fairest,
In the end is killed by the frost.
But the flower that was dearest and rarest
Is the loved one that we have lost.

Sadly missed by THE FAMILY.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Philipine Sittel, who departed this life three years ago, Feb. 15, 1916:

Dearest mother, how we miss you
Since that day you left us all.
You are sadly missed by others,
But we miss you most of all.

HUSBAND AND FAMILY.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of our dear father, Peter C. Schneider, who departed this life Feb. 23, 1918:

Just one year ago today
Since our father passed away.
Friends may think the wound is healed.
But they little know the sorrow
That is in our hearts concealed.

Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our dear father, Alois Schmid, who died Feb. 23, 1918:

Just one year ago you left us.
How we miss you, daddy, dear.
You are gone, but not forgotten,
By the ones who loved you dear.
Dear Daddy, how we miss you,
Since from earth you passed away.
Sad our hearts, but sweet the memory,
As we think of you today.

Sadly missed by children,
ALOIS, DELLA AND FRED SCHMID.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of our dearly beloved daughter and sister, Eleanor E. Nolde, who departed from us two years ago, Feb. 26, 1917:

The month of February is here—
To us the saddest of the year,
Because it took from us away
Our dear one, just two years ago today.
God called her home—it was His will—
But in our hearts she lingers still.
For us she tried to do her best,
May God grant her eternal rest.

Sadly missed by her
FATHER, MOTHER AND BROTHERS.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of my dear brother, Frederick Spieker, who died Feb. 27, 1918:

Sad and sudden was the call
Of my dear brother, loved by all.
I little thought on that day
My brother would be called away.
I could not realize what was said
When the message came he was dead.
That God, who loved him best
Had taen oimhkehmETAOIN ETAOII
Had taken him home forever to rest.

Sadly missed by his sister,
ELIZABETH SPIEKER.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of our dear daughter and sister, Elvira Nagle, who departed this life two years ago today, Feb. 23, 1917:

Two years has passed since that sad day.
One whom we loved has passed away.
Your loving smile, your loving face—
None can fill your vacant place.
Little did we think that day
That she so suddenly would be taken away.
God took her home—it was His will—
But in our hearts she liveth still.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER, BROTHERS and all who loved her.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Mary Purdy, who departed this life just one year ago, Feb. 22, 1918:

In the graveyard, softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we loved so dearly
In her silent, lonely grave.
Peaceful be your sleep, dear mother—
It is sweet to breath your name.
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
Just one year ago you left us.
How we miss you mother, dear,
And remember all your kindness
As we drop a silent tear.

INFORMATION FOR HEIRS WANTED.

The war has made many new heirs; investigate. Many now living in poverty are rich, but don't know it. Our 400-page index, entitled "Missing Heirs and Next of Kin," dating 1772 to recent date, alphabetically arranged, contains authentic list of unclaimed estates and heirs wanted and advertised for in America and abroad to claim fortune. Also contains Chancery Court of England and Ireland lists, and Bank of England unclaimed dividend list. Thousands of names in book. Yours or your ancestors' names may be among them. Send $1 at once for 400-page, cloth-bound book. Established 1881. International Claim Agency, 29, Pittsburg, Pa.

WOMEN'S slightly used dresses and suits for sale very cheap. Mrs. Banks, 1415 Biddle.

BE the "hirer" and not the "firer." "The hired laborer of yesterday labors on his own account today and will hire others to labor for him tomorrow." "Keep on trying." Don't go around looking "Down and out." "Get a Real Job; show the world" that you will be "something" and "somebody." Don't go around looking "down and out." Make your personal appearance "count." We must make 5000 new friends for 1919. "Will you help us?" We have "placed on sale" hundreds of suits, overcoats, pants, coats and vests, mackinaws, which means a big saving to you. We have in "store" for you hundreds of high-class suits and overcoats, so that you can afford to wear two or three suits a season for the price of the customary one by purchasing our uncalled-for garments from our cleaning departments; garments are tailor-made and from the best manufacturers. Hundreds overcoats and suits. Can you wear 34, 36, 38, 43, 40, 46, to 50 sizes? AlsoEnglish and plain models, $7.50 to $15. Vests, 25c, pants, $2 to $2.50, coats $3 to $6.50; uncalled-for Stetson hats 95c. Open Sundays until 6 p. m. Abrams Cleaners and Dyers, 926 S. Vandeventer, near Chouteau. Mail orders filled. Both phones. Liberty Bonds accepted. (c)

DON'T make your "body" a "loafing place for a suit;" make the "suit a loafing place for your "body;" "wear them right and stylish;" we're showing "high-class" spring suits at "low prices." We are out of the "high rent district." We're going to get your business if your money is going to "count." We will save your money for you. Returning soldiers, get busy; 300 new "sample suits" and overcoats; prices $13.39, $14.44, $16.66, $18.39, $19.45. What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you: These fine garments are made by the manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount; we give the benefit of our immense buying capacity; this policy enables us to save you $5 to $10. Sample pants $2.50 to $5.50; tailor-made suits, cost up to $35, our price $19.50, $22.50. We again announce our "Trade-in-Sale" Department. We will make you a liberal allowance on your old clothes for new ones. "The place to buy clothes." 926 S. Vandeventer av., near Chouteau. Liberty Bonds accepted. (c)

SONG WRITERS, ATTENTION!
Sergeant-Major Harold Dixon, band leader of the Fourth Infantry Regiment, U. S. A., has just been discharged and is again resuming his former capacity in the music business. Dixon is possibly the only song writer with an international reputation living in St. Louis, and he has written more song hits than any other song writer in the world. If you have a song poem that possesses merit and that you want set to original and melodious music, come up (or write him) and talk matters over with him. He also makes all kinds of music arrangements at reasonable prices. If you can arrange with him to set music to your composition he will guarantee you publication and circulate your song all over the United States without any charge for this service—and in addition you will get a royalty for each and every copy sold and paid for. Dixon-Lane Music Publishing Co., Holland Bldg., St. Louis, Mo. (c30)

Why My Memory Rarely Fails Me and how the secret of a good memory may be learned in a single evening

By DAVID M. ROTH

NOTE: When I asked Mr. Roth to tell in his own words, for nation-wide publication, the remarkable story of the development of his system for the cure of bad memories, I found him reluctant to talk about himself in cold print. When I reminded him that he could do no finer service than to share his story with others—just as he is sharing his method for obtaining a better memory with thousands who are studying his famous Memory Course—he cordially agreed to my proposal. And here is his story.—President Independent Corporation.

DAVID M. ROTH

FIFTY members of the Rotary Club were seated in the banquet hall of the Hotel McAlpin in New York. I was introduced to each member in turn, and each gave me his telephone number and told me his occupation. An hour later, after they had changed seats while my back was turned to them, I called each man by name, gave his telephone number and named his occupation, without a single error.

The following evening, in the office of a large business institution, I asked the president of the concern to write down fifty words, numbers and names, and to number each item. An hour later I called out each item, and gave the number opposite which it had been written.

At another time I glanced at the license numbers of a hundred and five automobiles which passed. These numbers were written down by witnesses, in the order in which the cars passed. Later I called each number correctly and gave the order in which the numbers went by.

From Seattle to New York I have appeared before salesmen's meetings, conventions and Rotary Clubs giving demonstration of my memory. I have met over 10,000 people in my travels. Yet I am quite sure I can call nearly every one of these men and women by name the instant I meet them, ask most of them how the lumber business is or the shoe business or whatever business they were in when I was first introduced to them.

People wonder at these memory feats. Hundreds have asked me how I can store so many facts, figures and faces in my mind and recall them at will. And they are even more mystified when I explain that my memory used to be so poor I would forget a man's name twenty seconds after I met him! In fact that was what led me to investigate and study the cause of poor memory and the remedy. For years I read books on psychology, mental culture, memory and other subjects. All of these books were good, but none of them was definite or easy enough. So I labored until I found out what it was that enabled me to remember some things while I forgot others. Finally I worked out a system that made my memory practically infallible.

I explained my system to a number of friends and they could hardly believe it possible. But some of them tried my method and invariably they told me they had doubled their memory power in a week. They got the method the first evening and then developed it as far as they cared to go.

The principles which I had formulated in improving my own memory were so simple and so easy to apply that I decided to give my method to the world.

At first I taught my memory system in person. My classes, in Rotary Clubs, banks, department stores, railway offices, manufacturing plants and every kind of business institution grew amazingly in size and number. Memory teaching became my sole profession, and a wonderful experience it has been all the way from Seattle to New York City.

I soon realized that I could never hope to serve more than a small fraction of those who needed my memory system and were eager to take it up unless I put it into a home-study course which people could acquire without personal instruction.

The Independent Corporation, whose President. Mr. Karl V. S. Howland, had become interested in my work as a member of my Rotary Club class in New York, saw the large possibilities of my course as an element in their broad program for personal efficiency and self-improvement.

So it was my pleasure to join forces with this great publishing house, and the Roth Memory Course, in seven simple lessons, was offered to the public at a price of $5 (correspondence courses having been sold hitherto at anywhere from $20 to $100.)

No money in advance was to be asked, the idea being that the Course must sell itself purely on its merits.

As you have doubtless observed, an extensive advertising campaign was launched by my publishers with full page announcements in all the leading periodicals of the country and in many leading newspapers.

This campaign has continued without a letup and with ever-growing momentum.

From the very start this advertising became successful. The idea spread. Orders came in from everywhere. Edition after edition of the lessons was printed and still thousands of orders could not be filled.

The promise was made that the Course would improve any man's or woman's memory in one evening. And it did! Letters of praise began to pour in almost as fast as the lessons were shipped—and have kept up ever since in a veritable flood.

For example, Major F. B. Craft, Assistant Chief Engineer of the Western Electric Company, New York, wrote.

> Last evening was the first opportunity I had to study the course, and in one sitting I succeeded in learning the list of 100 words forward and backward, and to say that I am delighted with the method, is putting it very mildly. I feel already that I am more than repaid in the real value and enjoyment that I have got out of the first lesson.

Read this letter from Terence J. McManus, of the firm of Olcott, Bonynge, McManus & Ernst, Attorneys and Counsellors at Law, 170 Broadway, and one of the most famous trial lawyers in New York:

> "May I take occasion to state that I regard your service in giving this system to the world as a public benefaction. The wonderful simplicity of the method, and the ease with which its principles may be acquired, especially appeal to me. I may add that I already had occasion to test the effectiveness of the first two lessons in the preparation for trial of an important action in which I am about to engage."

McManus didn't put it a bit too strong.

And here is just a quotation from H. O. (Multigraph) Smith, Division Manager of the Multigraph Sales Co., Ltd., in Montreal:

> Here is the whole thing in a nutshell: Mr. Roth has a most remarkable Memory Course. It is simple ,and easy as falling off a log. Yet with one hour a day of practice anyone—I don't care who he is—can improve his memory in a week and have a good memory in six months.

Then there is the amazing experience of Victor Jones, who ,increased his business $100,000 in six months. And there are hundreds and thousands of others who have studied the Course and who have secured greater benefit from it than they dreamed possible.

Perhaps the main reason why my method is so successful is because it is so ridiculously simple. You get the method of obtaining an infallible memory in one evening—in the very first lesson. Then you develop your memory to any point you desire through the other six lessons. There are only seven lessons in all. Yet the method is so thorough that your memory bcomes your obedient slave forever. And instead of being hard work, it is as fascinating as a game. I have received letters from people who say the whole family gathers round the table for each lesson!

Men and women from coast to coast have thanked me for having made it so easy for them to acquire an infallible memory. As one man said:

> Memory and good judgement go hand in hand. Our judgment is simply the conclusions we draw from our experience, and our experience is only the sum total of what we remember. I now store away in my mind every valuable fact that relates to my business, whether it is something I hear or read, and when the proper time comes I recall all the facts I need. Before I studied the Roth Course it took me three times as long to gain experience simply because I forgot so many facts.

And how true that is! We say of elderly men that their judgment is "ripe." The reason it is ripe is because they have accumulated greater experience. But if we remember all the important facts we can have a ripened judgment 15 or 20 or 30 years sooner!

Thousands of sales have been lost because the salesman forgot some selling point that would have closed the order. Many men when they are called upon to speak fail to put over their message or to make a good impression, because they are unable to remember just what they wanted to say.

Many decisions involving thousands of dollars have been made unwisely because the man responsible didn't remember all the facts bearing on the situation, and thus used poor judgment. In fact, there is not a day but that the average business man forgets to do from one to a dozen things that would have increased his profits. There are no greater words in the English language descriptive of business inefficiency than the two little words, "I forgot."

My pupils are gracious enough to say that nothing will make that fatal phrase obsolete so quickly as the memory system it has been my good fortune to evolve.

Mr. Roth has told his story. It now remains for you to turn it into dividends. This will happen, we are sure, if you will spend the fraction of time it requires to send for his complete Course on absolute aproval.

After a few hours spent with the Roth Memory Course the fear as well as the tragedy of forgetting should be largely eliminated. You will obtain a fascinating new sense of confidence and power.

Not only that, but you will have a sense of freedom that you never felt before. You will be freed of the memorandum pad, the notebook and other artificial helps to which most of us are slaves.

So confident is the Independent Corporation, the publishers of the Roth Memory Course, that once you have an opportunity to see in your own home how easy it is to double, yes, triple, your memory power in a few short hours, that they are willing to send the course on free examination.

Don't send any money. Merely mail the coupon or write a letter and the complete course will be sent, all charges prepaid at once. If you are not entirely satisfied send it back any time within five days after you receive it and you will owe nothing.

On the other hand, if you are as pleased as are the thousands of other men and women who have used the course, send only $5 in full payment. You take no risk and you have everything to gain, so mail the coupon now.

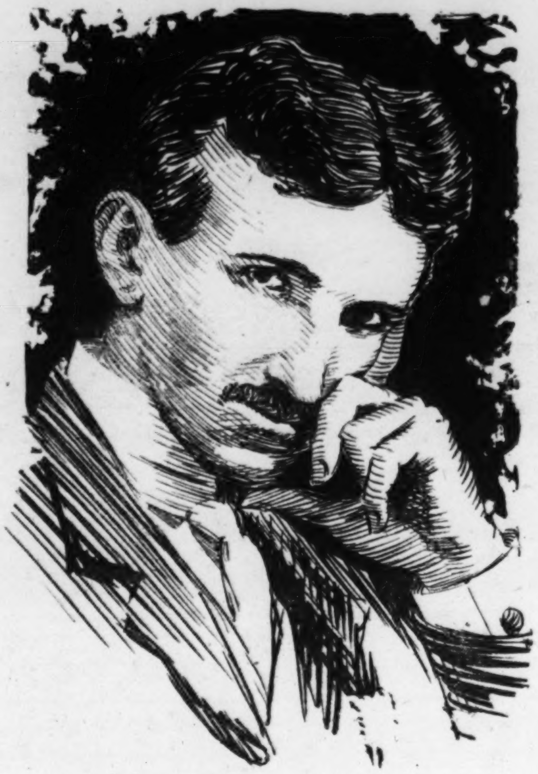
TESLA'S PLAN FOR WIRELESS TRANSMISSION OF ELECTRIC POWER

Experiments covering many years have now reached point, he declares, when practical demonstration of his invention is possible — Tremendous energy, generated by water power thousands of miles away, to be picked up on sea or land, or even in the air :: :: :: ::



NIKOLA TESLA.

THIS space has been reserved for a serious, scientific treatise on recent important developments and discoveries in the field of wireless transmission of electrical energy. But let us forget all about that for the time being, you and I, and take a pleasure trip instead into the Land of Make Believe. It will be far more entertaining, and besides, when the journey is ended, we may know more about the subject than if we traveled concatenated tuned circuits, or lost ourselves in a maze of kilowatts, statics and radiations, or ventured beyond our depth in Hertz waves.

It is summer time in the Land of Make Believe and we are off for a fishing trip in a big pleasure boat. There is plenty of room aboard for a party of 12 or more. There is a big, roomy cabin, noticeably free from the smell of gasoline and machinery oil. In fact, the only machinery aboard is an electric tiny motor, coupled to the driving shaft of the propeller. We are making 10 knots an hour and we are out for a good time, so why worry ourselves with questions as to where that motor gets its energy from. There are no storage batteries on the boat. One insulated feed wire runs from the motor to the ceiling of the cabin and from there up the mast to a bright metal ball at the top. It stops there. So, having observed that, let's forget it and talk about fishing and the glorious lunch packed away in the basket.

When we reach the fishing ground we stop the motor by pressing a button. We anchor, or drift, catch fish, eat and enjoy ourselves until it is time to go home. Then our well-behaved craft carries us back to the pier without mishap.

And tomorrow we go up in a Make-Believe airplane. It looks much like an ordinary airplane, but the wing spread is less. The reason for this, we are told, is because the airplane is much lighter than an ordinary plane, due to the fact that our plane has no engine—nothing but a lightweight motor, a twin brother of the motor we saw on the pleasure boat. The motor drives the propeller blades, but we cannot see what is driving the motor. An insulated wire leads from the motor to a ball above the higher plane, and that is all.

Anyway, we have faith in the thing and we climb aboard. The pilot presses a button, the motor begins to hum and the propeller to spin and we are off.

"Suppose the motor stops while we are above the clouds," we suggest, "what's going to happen?"

"We'll glide," is the comforting assurance of the pilot.

Sure enough, the motor does stop, and we glide until it starts again.

And that night, seated in the Make Believe Clubhouse, we read by electric light which looks familiar and homelike. The club electrician may show us, if we are interested, the electric light meter in the basement, and he will help us to trace the feed wires right from the meter to the roof of the clubhouse, where it terminates at a metal ball perched on the top of the small, round flagstaff.

Next morning we leave Make Believe Land and pay a visit to South America. In British Guana there is a mighty river called the Potara. At one place, Kaieteur, the river makes a clear drop of 822 feet and at the base of the cataract the waters of the Potara branch off in various directions. The Kaieteur Cataract is the show place of British Guiana.

When the members of the British Geological Survey visted the falls in 1875 they heard the following legend of Kaieteur and embodied it in their official report to the British Government.

"Once upon a time there lived an old Indian at a village above the falls, an exceedingly feeble old man, whose feet became infested with Chinese fleas to such an extent that he gave his friends and relatives an immense amount of trouble in picking them out for him every morning. So they determined to rid themselves of the nuisance, and accordingly placed the old man in a woodskin canoe, above the edge of the falls, and shoved it out into the stream. The strong current hurried him to the brink and swept him over into its foaming water and he was seen no more. But not long after, strange to relate, his woodskin appeared at the end of a small island in the smooth water just below our camp, in the form of a long slab of rock, while on a slope on the right-hand side of the fall a large, square rock represents his canister, similarly petrified. After the tragedy had been enacted, the Indians named the fall 'Kaieteur,' which means 'Old Man Fall.'"

Twenty-eight thousand cubic feet of water pass over the edge of the cataract every second. This vast volume of water, properly applied, would be capable of furnishing four times as much power as we derive today by the harnessing of Niagara Falls. At Niagara the fall of water is 18,000,000 cubic feet per minute, but a flow of only 15,000 feet per second is diverted above the falls and harnessed for the use of man.

Although everybody is familiar in a general way with the meaning of the term, "harnessing Niagara," it will not hurt to refresh our memory. At Niagara the motive power which furnishes electric light, power and heat to many municipalities, including the City of Buffalo, is not derived directly from the falls themselves, but from the water of the Niagara River, drawn off by an enormous tunnel at a distance of about one mile above the falls. The tunnel is 6807 feet long, 21 feet high, 18 feet 10 inches wide at its widest part and 14 feet wide at the base. In shape it resembles a gigantic horseshoe. This tunnel was cut through solid rock. It took 1000 rock men three years to make the excavation. The tunnel leads out of a pit 178 feet deep, 40 feet long and 18 feet wide and has an outlet below the falls. The enormous hydraulic pressure in a pit 178 feet deep drives the water through the tunnel with a force that may be considered almost irresistible. The tunnel has a slight grade, from four to seven feet per thousand feet. The water rushing through the tunnel turns water wheels geared to electric generators. It has been estimated that the 18,000,000 cubic feet of water which flow over the falls every minute are capable of furnishing 7,000,000 horsepower, sufficient to furnish light to 25 cities the size of New York.

Now we can pay another visit to the great Kaieteur Cataract in British Guiana and visualize the harnessing of all its enormous water power by the tunnel and water-wheel process employed at Niagara. And, having seen how all that energy, theoretically 2,100,000 horsepower, is obtainable, we may be curious to know what connection it has with the mysterious force which propelled our make-believe pleasure boat and airplane and illuminated the Make Believe Clubhouse. And here is where day-dreaming ends and we begin to study this subject from the materialistic point of view.

As far back as 1898 several scientific journals published an announcement credited to Dr. Nikola Tesla, in which the assertion was made that he had found it possible to send out from an aerial terminal an estimated electrical pressure of 2,500,000 volts, which would be effective at an unlimited distance. The Electrical Review, in commenting on that matter, said at that time:

"Tesla now proposes to transmit, without the use of any wires, through the natural media—the earth and the air—great amounts of power to distances of thousands of miles. This will appear a dream—a tale from the Arabian Nights. But from the extraordinary discoveries Tesla has made during a number of years of incessant labor, it is evident that his work in this field has passed the stage of laboratory experiment and is ready for a practical test on an industrial scale. The success of his efforts means that power from such sources as Niagara will become available in any part of the world, regardless of distance."

That was 21 years ago, when wireless telegraphy was still in the Land of Make Believe. Tesla made certain experiments and got certain results. Since then he has made other experiments based on later discoveries and aided by one of his most recently patened inventions, by which, he declares, an unlimited amount of energy can be transmitted any distance whatever, to the antipodes if desired.

And a few days ago he explained to me his perfected plan for applying harnessed energy to the world-wide operation of the wheels of industry, including our little make-believe pleasure boat and airplane and even the illumination of the clubhouse.

"It is now possible," said Dr. Tesla, "to transmit power anywhere by my wireless system. Power generated in New York, for instance, may be used to operate a motor launch thousands of miles away. It is now possible to apply for man's use the many millions of horsepower which today are allowed to go to waste."

Dr. Tesla mentioned specifically the Kaieteur Cataract, the harnessed power of which, he said, will be made available for use all over the world. He referred to Norway and Sweden, where, he said, the large waterfalls can be harnessed to produce 32,000,000 horsepower for utilization in industrial England and elsewhere in Europe. There are four immense waterfalls in Norway; Rjukan, 780 feet; Skjaeggedalsfos, 520 feet; Vettes, 950 feet, and Voringfos, 600 feet.

Briefly explained, the plan is to generate electrical energy at the source of supply—Niagara, Kaieteur or Rjukan, for instance—and transmit it by his wireless system to the nearest receiving stations in other countries. Distance will be no impediment to the transmission of this energy, but various conveniently situated receiving stations can be established for storage and supply. This energy is not to be scattered promiscuously to the four winds of heaven for the free use of all who care to "tap" it. It will be controlled, Dr. Tesla said, by a secret key or combination, like that of a safe, so that only those for whom the power is intended will get it.

"The best design of which I know has been adopted," said Dr. Tesla, referring to a large plant which he has designed, "and the transmitter will emit a wave com-

WHO NIKOLA TESLA IS

NIKOLA TESLA, now in his sixty-second year, is regarded throughout the world as a wizard in all matters pertaining to electric energy, its transmission and its application. He is a native of Smiljan Lika, Austria-Hungary. His father was a Greek clergyman and an orator of some distinction. His mother was Georgina Mandic, who was an inventor, as was her father. Tesla's education was taken in hand by his parents almost in his babyhood and every opportunity was afforded him, and he proved an apt and appreciative student. All of his early collegiate studies were pursued in his native country, and then came a long career of post-graduate training. He was passionately fond of mechanics and physics and followed these branches with enthusiastic earnestness. He achieved many notable discoveries in electricity before he came to the United States, in 1884, and on his arrival he took steps at once to become a citizen of this country.

From the beginning he entered upon a successful career as an inventor, producing a system of arc lighting in 1886. Then in quick order came his motor and system of alternating current, power transmission, coils, transformers, high potential magnifying transmitters, system of wireless transmission of intelligence and many others that attracted widespread attention among scientists and commercial electrical concerns. One of his more recent undertakings was to establish a plant at Niagara for the transmission of current without wires. He has earned enormous fees as consulting engineer in big electrical enterprises.

tle string o' pearls that was my last birthday present."

At first Clo had hoped that this might be a false alarm—that Kit was trying to frighten her; but men's voices spoke. Churn and Isaacs had indeed arrived. The girl put her ear to the keyhole once more and listened.

"Stole your string o' pearls!" Churn repeated. "How did she do dat? You vent out of de room? I t'ought you"——

"Only for a few minutes," cut in Kit. "It seemed all right. I hid the pearls inside a pillow and put on the cover. You see, I—I wanted to speak to you, if I could catch you; but I changed my mind. I came back instead. Something made me. Not that I thought of danger. Who was to know I had those little pearls? And our door was locked. I took the key."

"What did I tell you about dat key?" Churn retorted. "You're 10 kinds of a fool, girl! But de t'ief's dere all right, you say?"

"Yes, she's there all right. She must have took Chuff's key off our mantelpiece—you left it there. She's been phonin' to some pal to come in a taxi, so she can drop my pearls out the window."

"Vot's dat?" cried Churn. "Vy, I—I—don' want to mix up"——

"Let me go down and talk things over with the pal when he comes," said another voice, which was very smooth and had a slight lisp. Clo guessed that it was the voice of Isaacs.

"Yes go down!" she jeered him through the keyhole. "I'll call from the window what you are! A fence—that's your nickname. You're a receiver of stolen goods!"

Isaacs was silent. Clo thought that he would not go down. They would try some other plan. She heard them whispering. Then, for a few breathless moments there was no sound.

The girl wondered if Ellen had started, and how soon she would arrive. Perhaps the time was really longer than it seemed in her excitement. She went again to the window and looked out. There was no taxi in sight, no vehicle of any sort.

The girl gazed wistfully down on the heads of the passersby—workaday persons who seemed so much happier than she. As she gazed, two things happened. In the house a blow from a hammer made the door quiver; in the street a taxi came swinging into sight.

"They'll have the door down!" she gasped. "But if only that's Ellen, she'll be just in time!"

The bag containing the pearls in their red wrapping was in her hand. She stood, prepared to throw it if Ellen appeared.

The taxi was slowing down. Yes, it was stopping in front of the house. It must be Ellen—but no, it was not. A man stepped out and glanced quickly in all directions, as if he expected someone. He did not look up at the window, where Clo had shrunk back as far as she could without losing sight of what went on below. He seemed to be intent upon a gray limousine car, with several men in it, which had followed the taxi along the street.

The limousine passed on, however, and its occupants—there were four or five, Clo fancied, though she could not see their faces—were busily talking. They did not look out or interest themselves in the stopping of the taxi. The man who had come in the latter had the air of hiding behind it as he paid the chauffeur and carefully counted his change; but the instant the limousine had gone by he ran up the steps. Clo, at the window, could see him no more.

"What if it's Chuff?" she thought.

Crack! One of the panels splintered and Clo, flying to the door, snatched the key from the keyhole. She knew the panel could not last many minutes; and a picture rose before her mind of a hand pushing through a hole to turn the key in the lock.

Back she fled to the window again. Another taxi appeared. The gray limousine had turned and was coming back; but Clo was not interested in that. She cared only for the taxi. It was slowing down. A woman thrust her head out—a neat little head in a black toque—and looked up.

"Miss Blackburne!" Clo cried shrilly.

Crash! The panel broke with a loud shriek of rending wood. The hammer came through and was jerked quickly out again. A man's hand seized a jagged piece of the panel and tore it away. An eye peered through the aperture, but Clo was not looking.

"Quick—quick!" she implored, and brandished the bag outside the window.

The eye disappeared from the panel and the muzzle of a revolver took its place.

"If you throw out that bag, I fire!" a voice warned Clo—a new voice, not Churn's.

The girl looked around involuntarily and saw the small black object framed in the smashed door panel. Her nerves jerked, but she turned back to the window.

"String these and get them to her, if you have to take them to Newport!" she cried.

There was a queer, muffled explosion, not unlike the breaking of wood, yet somehow different. Clo felt a stinging blow on the shoulder, and then a strange, heartrending pain. She staggered and fell forward onto her knees, hanging over the window sill; but she threw the bag.

She saw a little woman in black catch the bag and standing still, looking up. Clo tried to wave her hand, motioning:

"Go on—hurry!"

Her lips formed the words, but she was not sure whether she spoke them or not.

There were noises behind her. The men in the hall had burst the door open. She could not look around this time. Her head was on her arm, lying on the window sill.

Then someone was dragging her away. It was all over for her; but she had done her utmost to save Beverley's pearls.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

A BIG blond man had hustled Mrs. McMahon and Violet downstairs before the shot was fired.

Cheffinsky was like a general directing the defense of a beleaguered city.

The spy must be muzzled at any cost, for he guessed at a word from Kit that this was the girl of the telephone.

"Pick her up," he said to Kit, when they had got the locked door open.

Like the other two women, Kit obeyed. She dragged Clo to the back of the room.

"Now," said Chuff, "if we're spotted this is suicide—see? She stole your pearls, and when she was caught she killed herself."

"But the shot's in her shoulder—came from behind—and she ain't dead."

"She's got to be dead," Chuff decreed. "Into the closet with her, Kit!"

In anxiety for her mother, Ellen Blackburne had almost forgotten the mystery of the Sands pearls, closely as it concerned herself. The message, however, instantly awoke her sleeping interest.

She guessed that Clo had tracked the thief, and that the place to which she had summoned her friend was the miscreant's den.

The pearl stringer abandoned the work laid out for the morning and dashed off in a taxi at a moment's notice. Clo's little face at the window of a tenth-rate boarding house told her nothing new. She heard only the sound of her own taxi, and the snort of a big gray car, which had at the instant come to a stop.

Miss Blackburne was used to odd adventures, and prided herself on keeping cool, but she could not help giving an undignified jump as a man sprang out of the gray limousine and laid a hand on her arm.

"What is in that bag, and where are you taking it? I've a right to know," he said sharply. "I'm a friend of Miss Riley.

Ellen grabbed at the door of her taxi

"I'm acting for Miss Riley," she returned as sharply. "My name's Blackburne."

"You are Miss Ellen Blackburne, the pearl stringer?" the man inquired.

"The same," she answered.

"Then go on your errand!" he said.

While Ellen stared, he ran up the steps of the house.

To save delay, and further suspense for Mrs. Sands, Ellen drove straight to the Park avenue house, in order to string the pearls there; for she had collected her materials before starting. It was a blow to find that the Sandses had already left New York.

Ellen realized that, if she asked to enter, she might be regarded as a suspicious character and treated accordingly. She accounted for herself, therefore, by explaining that important business with Mrs. Sands would take her to Newport immediately. If there were any letter or parcel to be sent, she would be glad to carry it.

Anna's reply to this offer was a stiff refusal, but Miss Blackburne had not reached the lift when the woman came after her.

"I've just remembered that there's a telegram for Mrs. Sands' French maid. You might give it her by hand, if you're going to Newport today," she said, with a grudging air. "It will be quicker than mailing it."

The woman slipped the envelope into Ellen's hand, turned away without waiting for an answer, and shut herself into the flat again, smiling acidly.

Having telephoned to the store where she was employed, Ellen decided to string the pearls at home.

She determined simply to work as fast as possible and to take the first train she could catch for Newport, with the restrung rope of pearls.

Hints for Women in Big Business

we wonder why someone did not think of it before. In my opinion, however, I don't think that there is the slightest danger that there is going to be any sweeping charge of the women on the important positions, previously conceded to the men. When the war reconstruction period is passed and we all get ourselves adapted to the normal peace conditions, I think that some of the women who have been driven into the business world will manifest a greater love for the home, and thus sever relations with the office and its promise of advancement."

There is a growing movement on now to give the women representation on the directorates of banks and other influential bodies, dealing in big business. Those who would put women on the boards point to the fact that they have stock in the corporations and as a matter of right are entitled to such recognition, if it suits their pleasure to take a more active part in directing a business in which they have invested or otherwise acquired a substantial interest. Many have already been placed on such boards throughout the country, and others have been elevated to high-salaried executive positions in large corporate bodies, where they are directly over men who also command alluring salaries, but not quite as much as the overlady.

Some of the women who have taken such commanding positions inherited them from their husbands. Such was the rise, for instance, of Mrs. Melodia B. Jones, president of the Gulf & Ship Island Railroad, a rich transportation system with valuable properties in Louisiana and Mississippi. When Mrs. Jones, who lives in Buffalo, N. Y., was made president at the death of her husband, her daughter, Miss Grace E. Jones, was elected vice president. All the other officers are men, but they all reported to Mrs. Jones until the Government took over the property and placed it in the operating charge of a Federal manager, who was not a woman. When the Government returns the carriers to their owners, Mrs. Jones will again be president in something else as well as name and again will direct the entire business.

St. Louis, which has a habit of keeping up with all innovations of modernism, is also giving serious attention to the higher rank of the women, in the conduct of business. At the annual meeting of one of the larger banks a short while since, the prediction was made that it would be only a short while until the directors would have a woman sitting in their meetings, and there was no suggestion of jest or humor in the forecast. It was expected, as a matter of course, in the evolution of the woman in business, that her right to such recognition would come as a demand of fairness, and not as a concession to any notion of chivalry.

La-may Face Powder Stays On Better Than Any Other

Now you can use a pure face powder that beautifies your complexion wonderfully and is guaranteed not to injure the most delicate baby skin. And it really stays on better than any other face powder. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder (Poudre de Riz) to make it stick. White lead poisons the skin and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that encourages enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder pimples. The specialist who makes this improved powder uses a medicinal ingredient that doctors use to heal the skin. In fact, this new powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores and pimples. It is also astringent, discouraging flabbiness, crows' feet and wrinkles. Because it is pure and because it stays on so well this La-may powder (French, Poudre L'Ame) is now used by over a million American women. The large size is only fifty cents and the trial size is twenty-five cents. Remember, La-may is guaranteed absolutely pure. Five thousand dollars reward is offered any chemist who finds it contains any white lead or rice powder. Refuse substitutes. Your common sense will tell you that when you are offered a substitute it is sure to be a demonstrator trying to sell an inferior powder that pays a big commission. When you use this absolutely pure La-may and see how splendidly it beautifies your complexion, you will understand why it so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York. Save this notice.

"The Greatest Lion Story I Ever Heard"

—THE LATE THEODORE ROOSEVELT

It was amazing tale told by Lieut.-Col. J. H. Patterson, D. S. O., of man-eating brute that stalked three men in railroad car, opened door when they were asleep and entered—Door slid shut and all were locked in together—Animal stood on one man while killing another in berth, and third man jumped on lion's back to reach door :: :: ::

THE late Col. Roosevelt was no mean judge of a lion story. He had himself met the king of beasts face to face, usually to the detriment of the lion. He was on terms of intimate acquaintance with the foremost nimrods of the day, and from them heard a whole epic literature of lion tales. But he himself was fond of saying that the greatest lion story he ever heard, the one abounding most in the elements of the unusual and the terrible, was one told by Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. Patterson, D. S. O.

This story has been made public by Col. Patterson in a book, "The Man-Eaters of Tsavo" (MacMillan), which has a foreword by Frederick Courteney Selous, original of the character of Allan Quartermain in Rider Haggard's African novels.

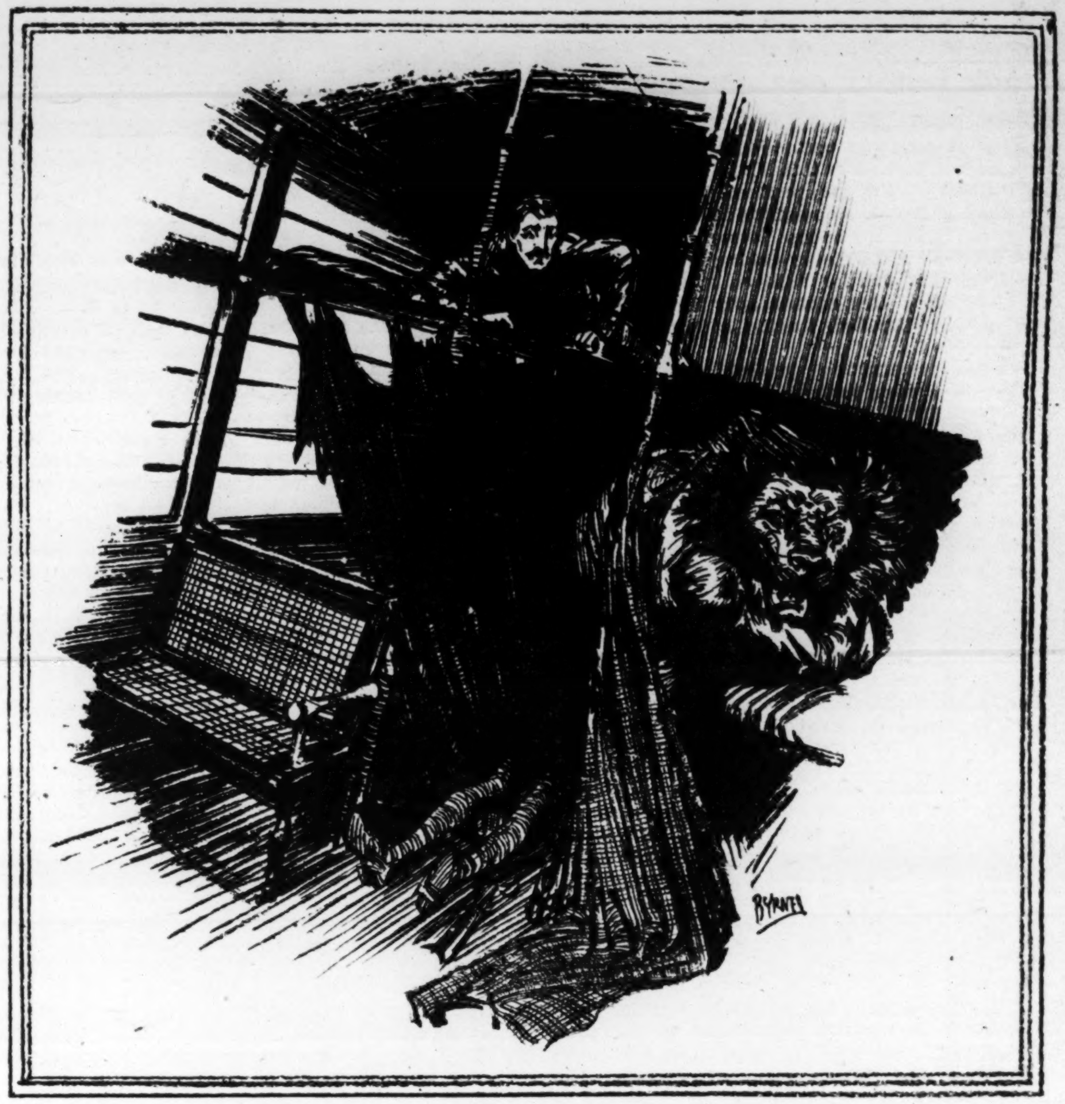
While on a hunting expedition in British East Africa, Col. Patterson dined one evening with Mr. Ryall, Superintendent of Police, in his inspection car on the railway. Neither host nor guest had a suspicion of the frightful fate which was to overtake the former a few months later, in the very coach at which they sat at table.

A man-eating lion, Col. Patterson relates, had taken up his quarters at a little railroad station called Kimaa. The brute was a bit of an epicure, and had developed an extraordinary taste for members of the railway staff. One night, in his efforts to obtain a meal, the lion even climbed upon the roof the station building, and tried to tear off the corrugated iron sheets. The terrified native in charge of the telegraph instrument below, whom the beast was seeking for his dinner, sent the following laconic dispatch to the traffic manager: "Lion fighting with station. Send urgent succor." Fortunately, the lion was unable to get in, but he tried so hard that he cut his feet severely on the iron sheeting, leaving large bloodstains on the roof.

As may be gathered from this incident, the man-eater was a most daring brute. One night he succeeded in carrying off the native driver of the pumping engine, and soon afterwards added several other victims to his list. He was quite indifferent as to whether he dined upon the station master, a signalman or a switchman, but he had a penchant for railroad employes, perhaps because they were better fed and more succulent than the average native.

On one occasion, an engine driver arranged to sit up all night in a large iron water tank, in a hope of getting a shot at the lion. He cut loopholes in the sides through which to fire. But as often happens, the hunter became the hunted. The lion turned up in the middle of the night, and before the engineer could get in a shot, threw the tank over on its side and became busily engaged in trying to drag the man out through the narrow circular hole in the top, through which he had squeezed in. Fortunately, the hole was too small for the lion to get in, and the tank was just too deep for his paw to reach the man cowering at the other end. Naturally, he was half-paralyzed with fear and had to crouch down so low that he could take nothing like proper aim. He fired, however, and succeeded in frightening the lion away for the time being.

It was in an attempt to destroy this audacious and cunning hunter of men that Ryall met his tragic end. On June 6, 1900, he was traveling up in his inspection carriage from Makindu to Nairobi, accompanied by two friends named Huebner and Parenti. When they reached Kimaa, which is about 250 miles from Mambasa, they were told that the man-eater had been seen close to the station only a short time before their train arrived. They at once made up their minds to remain there for the night and endeavor to shoot him. Ryall's private car was therefore detached from the train and shunted upon a siding close to the station. Owing to the unfinished state of the road, the car did not stand level, but had a pronounced list to one side.



He was awakened by a loud cry and looked down upon a hideous spectacle.

The three friends, during the afternoon, went out to look for the lion, but that wary quadruped succeeded in effacing himself entirely. No traces of him could be found, so after a time the men returned to the car for dinner. Afterwards they all sat up on guard for some time, and they remarked upon a pair of very bright and steady glow worms which could be seen not far away in the darkness. The survivors afterwards were convinced that these lights were no other than the lion's eyes, steadily watching them all the time and studying their every movement.

As the hour grew late and it appeared evident that the lion would seek his repast in other quarters that night, Ryall persuaded his friends to lie down, while he kept the first watch. Huebner took the high berth over the berth on one side of the car. The only other berth was on the opposite side of the compartment, and lower down. One of the three would have to sleep on the floor. With a host's kindliness, Ryall begged Parenti to take the second berth, but he declined, saying that he would be quite comfortable on the floor. This choice saved his life. He accordingly lay down to sleep, with his feet towards the sliding door which gave entrance to the car.

It may be supposed that Ryall, after sitting up alone for some time, grew sleepy and convinced himself that the lion would not put in appearance. So he closed the sliding door, crawled into the second berth and went to sleep. No sooner had he done so, doubtless, than the astute man-eater began stalking the three sleeping men.

The sliding door was at the end of the car, and opened on a little platform. To reach the platform from the ground, the lion had to climb up two very high steps. These he managed to negotiate with success and in stealthy silence. The door, as has been said, was a sliding one, which ran on wheels, easily and noiselessly, along a brass sill. Possibly Ryall had not quite shut it; at any rate, it was not securely fastened. It was an easy matter for the lion to thrust in a paw and shove it open.

In a second the lion was inside the car, but then an amazing thing happened. The car was already tilting, and the weight of the brute made it list still more. The easily moving door, under the weight of gravity, slid along its runners and closed. Its movement was vigorous enough to snap the lock tight.

Behold, then, a notorious man-eating lion locked up in a tiny railroad compartment with three men. Remember that Parenti was lying on the floor, directly in the lion's path, and that on either side Ryal and Huebner lay asleep in their berths. The animal, disdaining the man on the floor, walked upon his body and sprang at once upon Ryall. Huebner was awakened by a loud cry, and awoke to look upon a hideous spectacle. Directly beneath him an enormous lion, whose bulk almost filled the compartment, was standing with his hind legs on Parenti's body, while with his forepaws he was clawing at Ryall.

Huebner went half-mad at the sight. There was but one way to escape. There was a second sliding door at the other mobile in rural districts—there should result an important contribution to the problem of the high cost of living. It is pointed out that airplanes are little more expensive, both as to purchase price and upkeep, than the average good automobile; and that most farmers possess excellent landing facilities. The effect would be almost that of moving the farm into the heart of the city; it would be possible to have fruit and eggs on the table the same morning they were gathered.

Many Uses Planned for Airplanes in Peace Time

This is as yet but a thing of the imagination; but there is one important field in which the Department of Agriculture is already employing the airplane. This is in fighting the boll weevil, scourge of the cotton fields.

In Southern Texas, where the pink boll weevil seeks to spread its depredations from Mexico to the United States, the Government has decreed a No Man's Land, on which it is forbidden to grow cotton. The unplanted land thus becomes a barrier to the progress of the pest. But a few misguided farmers feel that this preventive measure is an infringement upon their rights, and have developed a tendency to become outlaw planters. Much of the country is heavily timbered; roads are neither plentiful nor good in many sections; and therefore it was possible for an outlaw planter to tuck away a few acres of cotton in some nook of the woods where there was little probability of discovery by ordinary means.

It happened that one of the aviators at Ellington Field, Tex., was Lieut. Harold Compere, son of George Compere, one of the world's greatest entomological explorers, and himself for years connected with the plant quarantine and inspection service of California. After a talk with Dr. W. D. Hunter, member of the Federal Horticultural Board in charge of field work against the boll worm, Lieut. Compere decided that here was an opportunity to put to use his double skill as a flying man and as a trained expert in entomology. His plane was to search out contraband cotton fields by means of the airplane.

He made a request to this effect, with the indorsement of the Department of Agriculture, to the Division of Military Aeronautics, War Department. He received full authority from the War Department to undertake the work, which was actually begun during the summer of last year. Accompanied by an inspector, he made flights over the barred zone, and speedily located seven outlaw cotton fields in the heavily wooded country along Trinity River and around Galveston Bay. These, despite the vigilance of the agents of the Department of Agriculture, had previously escaped detection.

Lieut. Compere, being honorably discharged from the army, gave up the work a few weeks ago, but left a successor in Lieut. William H. Tillisch. The pilot is usually accompanied by an expert of the Horticultural Board, Carl Heinrich, who has completed maps and charts of the region, by means of aerial photographs and reconnaisances. From an elevation of 2000 feet, on a clear day, Heinrich reports, a view of the country may be had for 30 miles around. At this height, the airplane's speed of 75 miles an hour does not prevent a thorough examination of the ground beneath, and one may easily distinguish whether it is under cultivation or not, differentiate cotton from corn and get a clear picture of the buildings, roads, creeks and wooded areas on the ground. This is easily practicable in districts impassable to the automobile.

Tesla's Plan for Wireless Transmission of Electricity

plex of a total maximum activity of 10,000,000 horsepower, 1 per cent of which is ample to girdle the globe in the transmission of speeches or pictures or ordinary telegrams.

So we can readily imagine what is to follow. The power is generated at Kaieteur, for instance, and "keyed" for projection to some distant receiving station. A hundred or a thousand miles away the owner of a motor launch wants to use his boat. The boat is equipped with something which, for want of a better word, we may call a conductor, not pointed like the Franklin lightning conductor, but rounded to conform with Tesla's newly announced discovery that the pointed Franklin rod is faulty. The boat owner "keys in" with the power station and gets power for his motor direct.

The word "direct" is used advisedly and may be taken to mean here "in a straight line." A mountain may separate the power station from the launch. They may be on opposite sides of the earth. But Tesla has advanced the theory that the electrical energy necessary to run the motor boat will go to the boat direct from the power station. In other words, it will travel through the earth, if necessary, to get there in a straight line.

Even ordinary wireless messages, Dr. Tesla asserts, between stations any great distance apart, do not follow the earth's curvature through the air, but pass directly through the earth itself. To quote him:

"The earth is a conductor of electricity and as such has its own electrical period of vibration. The time of one complete swing is about one-twelfth of a second. In other words, this is the interval the current requires in passing to and returning from the diametrically opposite point of the globe. Now the wonderful fact is that notwithstanding its immense size, the earth responds to a great number of vibrations and can be reasonably excited, just like a wire of limited dimensions."

Tesla maintains that there can be no long-distance effects by radiations transmitted through the air, but rather only by currents through the earth.

"Some experts, whom I credited with better knowledge," said Dr. Tesla, "for years contended that my proposals to transmit power without wires were sheer nonsense, but I note that they are growing more cautious every day. The latest objection to my system is found in the cheapness of gasoline. These men labor under the impression that the energy flows in all directions and that, therefore, only a minute amount can be recovered in any individual receiver. But this is far from being so. The power is conveyed only in one direction, from the transmitter to the receiver, and none of it is lost elsewhere.

"It is quite practicable to recover at any point of the globe energy enough for driving an airplane or a pleasure boat or for lighting a dwelling. I am very sanguine in regard to the lighting of isolated places and believe that a more economical and convenient method can hardly be devised. The future will show whether my foresight is as accurate now as it has proved hitherto."

Dr. Tesla declared that he and all his followers believe that nothing can stop now a tremendous development in the wireless transmission of power, provided the Government does not impose restrictions which will hamper the enterprises and discourage capital.

Rheumatism
A Home Cure Given By One Who Had It

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

"Cure Your Rupture Like I Cured Mine"

Old Sea Captain Cured His Own Rupture After Doctors Said "Operate or Death."

His Remedy and Book Sent Free.

Captain Collings sailed the seas for many years; then he sustained a bad double rupture that soon forced him to not only remain ashore, but kept him bedridden for years. He tried doctor after doctor and truss after truss. No results! Finally, he was assured that he must either submit to a dangerous and abhorrent operation or die. He did neither! He cured himself instead.

"Fellow Men and Women, You Don't Have To Be Cut Up, and You Don't Have To Be Tortured By Trusses."

Captain Collings made a study of himself, of his condition—and at last he was rewarded by the finding of the method that so quickly made him a well, strong, vigorous and happy man.

Anyone can use the same method; it's simple, easy, safe and inexpensive. Every ruptured person in the world should have the Captain Collings book, telling all about how he cured himself, and how anyone may follow the same treatment in their own home without any trouble. The book and medicine are FREE. They will be sent prepaid to any rupture sufferer who will fill out the below coupon. But send it right away—now—before you put down this paper.

"MILLIKEN'S LUCK:" Untold Stories of Late St. Louis Millionaire and His Early Ventures

How a mining stock collapse that wrecked many others saved John T. Milliken — Only one to make money when the Sheridan Mine bubble burst — Dame Fortune turned into his coffers $100,000 a month in gold dust when every one else had to take "John Smith" paper money — How the Guggenheims came to his rescue unwittingly -:- -:-

LUCK, that elusive, nebulous, intangible something, the very mention of which causes those most remotely removed from superstitious influence or suggestion to sit up and take notice, was the outstanding factor in the evolution of the Milliken millions. In view of what has been brought to light since the death of this Midas-like St. Louisan, it was very evident that the planets and the constellations were set just right when he came into being. Everything seemed to be well ordered for the money-getting career that was evidently marked out for Milliken since the beginning, as every cloud that momentarily threatened disaster was quickly dispelled, leaving a golden flood in its wake.

A single transaction, recalled since his death, by one of his closest business associates, made on what was probably the most precarious day of his life, netted him a profit of nearly $2000, and it was closed at a time of dire disaster to nearly everyone else trading in the same commodity. It was back in 1886, when St. Louis was mining-stock mad. The city was overrun with mining stock and promoters, and assays were conspicuously displayed in all the marts—and there were many of them—that dealt in such promise of quick gain.

Among the mines that stood high in the favor of the get-rich-quick following, was Sheridan. There were hundreds of others, but this particular property, on account of the prominence of its promoters, was in prime standing. The late John W. Kauffman, wealthy miller and grain dealer, was then very active in the mining field, and he was one of the largest owners of Sheridan. He bought heavily and had the stock up to $7 a share when Milliken, who had been going the limit in wheat, felt the earth slipping beneath his feet. He was about down and out, and apparently ready to fall into the maelstrom that had swallowed so many others who had wooed fickle fortune and lost.

But Milliken was not a quitter then, or at any other time in his glittering career. He just took an inventory and began to study the Sheridan situation. He had heard something, besides, to which he attached some store.

After he had run the Sheridan up to $7 a share, Kauffman very quietly slipped out to the "hole in the ground" that bore the then talismanic name to make some observations on his own account. His departure was no secret to Milliken, who, though down, was by no means ready for the count. He quietly consulted with his friends, Hubbard & Bartlett, with whom he had been making his trades, and then bought a "put" for a hundred dollars or less, which gave him the privilege of selling 1000 shares at $3 per share. The market price then was $7, and under the system, his only chance to make any profit on his speculation was to have the stock go below the $3 limit. He stuck the "put" in his inside pocket and waited developments, and he did not have to wait very long.

Kauffman returned to the city and busied himself at once unloading his Sheridan. The crash came with a rush, and it by no means stopped with Sheridan. Every other stock, except Granite Mountain, which had made a large crop of St. Louis millionaires, was caught in the debacle, and there was gloom in the community for nearly everyone save Milliken. When Sheridan dropped to $1 per share he cashed his put for $3000, scoring a profit of $2 per share, less the nominal price he paid for his long chance, and thereafter he worked as a favored son of Midas.

All things he touched—mines, oils, chemicals and grains—assumed the golden hue. He made his stake in the nick of time, as the market had been playing havoc with his hopes, and his spirit of optimism was showing some signs of cracking under the strain.

Very few, if any, of the grain trades made by Milliken, were handled through any St. Louis house other than the Hubbard & Bartlett—now the Hubbard & Moffitt—Commission Co. Nathaniel L. Moffitt, vice president of this concern, was one of the most intimate business friends of the late multi-millionaire. This relationship extends back to the earliest days of Milliken's St. Louis history, when he came here as a young man from Paducah, Ky., to seek a place in the big league of speculation.

"I was a comparative youngster myself when I first met John T. Milliken," Moffitt said to the Post-Dispatch writer. "He was like all the other traders from the smaller places, he had a great deal to learn, but he mixed caution with his desire to annex fortune. He had a motto that he often expressed when the market was not going right. It was: 'Save your money and let your judgment go.' This was to cover acute situations. Up to the time he was saved by the collapse of the mining-stock craze in St. Louis, when he made his stake in the Sheridan affair, he was not always lucky. I was then a clerk in this same house and kept in close touch with this very interesting personality.

"It was back in 1882 that I first met him, through his trades with our firm. Our house had confidence in him and his dealings were such as to deserve consideration. The men who conducted this business at that time were not averse to trusting his word and his business integrity, even in his reverses, and Milliken appreciated that attitude on the part of his friends. In his later years he did but little trading, as he preferred to give the bulk of his attention to his large chemical and oil interests, but the fascination for the market remained with him to the end. I can vividly recall that Sheridan incident and I believe it was the foundation of his subsequent successes. It came at what might be called the psychological moment for John, as he was near the end of his string when this opportunity knocked and found him at home. Then began his wonderful career in the grain markets. He was what we call a 'spreader,' a term used for those who buy in one market and sell in another. A million bushels at a time was nothing unusual when he was at the height of his activity as a big dealer, and he went up against the biggest men who ever figured in any of the markets.

"When he quit trading to go to Cripple Creek he had about $400,000 in cash and readily convertible paper, and the lure of the gold mines called him to Colorado. He paid $250,000 for the Golden Cycle to the Stratton interests, and those who had been watching his course wondered. Some predictions of disaster were made, but Milliken was undismayed. A mining venture years before had pulled him out of a narrow and most embarrassing situation, and, besides, the call of his lucky star was in the direction of mines and metallurgy. This mine was a sure enough bonanza and it kept him very busy for a long while. He traded occasionally and kept in touch with the markets on a fairly large scale until the beginning of the war in 1914, when he withdrew almost entirely. He was not what I would call a plunger in the sense of the term as it has been applied to other large operators. Spreader, I would say, was the correct designation.

"He was not what would be considered a very sociable man, and he was certainly not disposed to conviviality. He kept his own counsel, and his head at all times. There are many instances that might be related of the consistent luck that followed him in his mining as well as his other operations. He promoted and established the Union Gold Extracting Co. in Florence, Colo., and put a great deal of money in this enterprise. We also acquired some of the stock, and the venture looked like it was a very bad one for all concerned. We were about ready to charge it off as a loss, when along came the Guggenheims, who were making some big mining purchases about that time. They looked at the Florence plant and concluded that it would fit in very nicely with their plans. They made an offer and you can depend on it that they paid a good price for the property. I recall with some satisfaction that we made a substantial profit out of our interest, and our faith in John Milliken's proverbial luck was greatly increased.

"Another notable instance of this luck was shown in what was considered at the time as a crushing calamity. I refer to the fire which destroyed his big ore mill at the Golden Cycle mine in 1907. It was in the midst of the panic, when "John Smiths" were about the only kind of paper money you could get. The mill was entirely destroyed, and the insurance fell far short of covering the loss, and besides, it was next to impossible to borrow money. That did not disturb Milliken very long. His mine, about that time, got into a richer vein, and he put more miners to work getting out the gold ore at the rate of $100,000 per month. With that sort of capital, he was not embarrassed very long.

"Take his chemical business, as another example. He bought the business and proprietary articles produced by the Beattie company, then a rather small establishment, but with inviting prospects, from the viewpoint of the purchaser. He went into this just like he did everything else, and pushed it with all the intensity possible. Just note the result. From a few products he evolved the wonderful plant that will long be a monument to his business sagacity and his general confidence in his ability to get away with anything he undertook."

When Milliken embarked in the chemical business he launched a campaign of advertising that astonished his competitors. About that time he had completed and taken possession of his elaborate new home at Belt and Bartmer avenues. This was furnished in regal splendor, with no regard paid to cost in the selection of rugs, draperies and other decorations. He also bought many beautiful pictures. One of these was a large figure study called "Stella," which was given a special position in the artistic setting of the main reception room. It was set on a dais with a system of lights and shades so adjusted as to bring out all the beauties of the picture. Then it was that Milliken began entertaining his customers with little parties at his home. Dealers who partook of his hospitality and saw his picture gallery, and particularly "Stella," took pains to tell others about it; and in time druggists and others in the market for chemicals manifested a keen desire to get within the same visual range. Whatever may have been his intention in acquiring this painting, it nevertheless played an important part in the development of his chemical trade, and as an advertising medium, more than compensated its owner for the purchase price.

In time "Stella" was sent out on the road and attracted attention wherever the painting was exhibited.

When it came to oil speculation and purchase of properties, the same character of kindly fortune ran true to form with the departed millionaire. He bought and he took big chances, always with the same result; he made large returns on every investment and seemed insured against any possible reverse.

It was the same tale when he started out to save his brother-in-law, Albert T. Patrick, from the death chamber at Sing Sing, following his conviction on an indictment charging him with the murder of William Marsh Rice. Those who watched his repeated trips to New York and the news of his work there, shook their heads and said that there was little chance, despite the luck that had followed all of his other activities. He was never given to many words and he lost no time discussing hopes or prospective failure. He just said he believed that Patrick was innocent; that he was going to keep on until he secured his freedom, and he kept his word.

end of the car, communicating with the servants' quarters. But between him and the door stood the lion. The only way to reach it was to jump on the lion's back. It sounds scarcely creditable, says Col. Patterson, but this was what Huebner actually did. He leaped on the lion's back and with a second leap was at the door. Fortunately for him, the man-eater was too busily engaged with his victim to pay any attention to him.

But on reaching the door he found, to his unspeakable horror, that the servants on the other side, having been aroused by the cries and roars, were holding it fast on the other side. In utter desperation he made frantic efforts to open it, and fear lent him such strength that at last he was able to pull it open far enough to squeeze himself through. The coolies instantly tied it up again with their turbans.

A moment later there was a great crash, and the whole car lurched violently to one side. The lion had broken through one of the windows, carrying Ryall off with him. Parenti, who had been lying half-dead with terror, with the lion's hind feet planted on his breast, suddenly recovered the power of motion and plunged head-first through the window on the other side, fleeing for refuge to one of the station buildings.

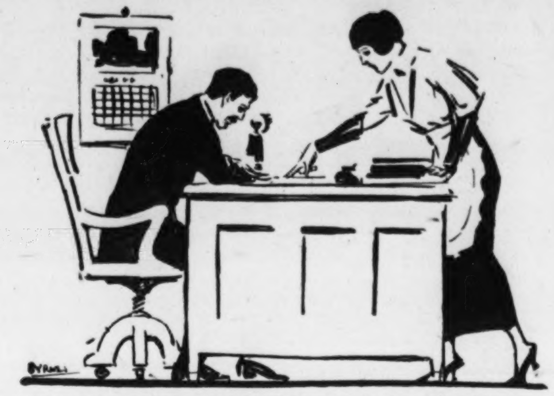
The next morning what was left of poor Ryall was found about a quarter of a mile away from the railroad, and was taken to Nairobi for burial. Efforts to catch the terrible brute responsible for this tragedy were redoubled, and very shortly afterwards the man-eater was captured alive in an ingenious trap constructed by one of the railway staff. The ferocious prisoner was kept in view for several days in a cage; then he was put to death with a volley of bullets.

COWARDICE AN ILLNESS.

SEVERAL cases are reported in Le Progres Medical of Soldiers who, after displaying excellent soldierly qualities and courage for a while, turned cowardly and fell into fits of abject fear, running away in the face of the enemy. Court martial inflicted no punishment, and examination revealed the influence of present or past disease, nerve maladies, gassing, alcoholism, influenza, etc. In some cases the courage of the soldier was incurably impaired, in others rest and treatment cured them so that they distinguished themselves afterward.

Practical Hints for Women in Big Business

Woman manager of big department in St. Louis bank tells her sisters who hope to rise in commercial world that they must observe certain rules —Details of dress, deportment and serious application — Should avoid "mannishness" — Women to have places on bank directorates, she believes -:- -:- -:- -:-



If you have a good idea, don't be afraid to tell it to your employer.

ATTENTION during and since the close of the war has often been called to the greatly enlarged sphere of women in the business world. No longer are they restricted to the less important stations in the great office organizations, and no longer are they dismayed by any unwritten law, that they cannot hope to reach the highest executive positions. There has been a great change in the economic readjustment and the women are playing a leading role in the history-making. The shorthand notebook and the typewriter are no longer considered the alpha and omega of her business activity; she is getting deeper and deeper into the big league of commercialism, and reports generally indicate that she is not only making good, but even gives promise of winning greater laurels.

In her widened station she does not have to jump every time some overlord touches a button; she has buzzers on her own desk, and when she uses them, men as well as women do the hurrying. Whether it is due to the war, or the ever-increasing influence of women in this country, it is a recognized condition far beyond the stage of theory. Some who fear the rising tide of woman's influence beyond the home and family make gloomy predictions and shake their heads ominously when they indulge in prophecy dealing with the spread of feminism in high places. Some of the particularly pessimistic go so far as to say that the home and family are in danger while the greater wave of freedom and opportunity for the women is running its course. And some men in business station who would not mind it so much at home object to having a woman as a boss, even if she has many endearing qualities. These are the men who dwell on the rule of other days, that she ought to marry and raise a family, while presiding over an attractive home. But all the while the women are going ahead making new conquests every day.

Naturally, the question occurs as to what preparations the women who have important positions are making to take care of the enlarged station that has been allotted them. Are they ready, and have they given consideration to the development of the newer and less experienced material that will be called to fill important places as their occupants are advanced to greater responsibility and pay. Among the many women already filling exacting business positions in St. Louis is Mrs. L. D. Sultzer, manager of the savings department of the Mercantile Trust Co. Not manager in the sense of looking after a woman's department, but in reality at the head of the whole savings organization, which brings her into daily contact with a great many people. And her assistants include both men and women.

The increasing importance of the women in business has not escaped the notice of Mrs. Sultzer, who is the only woman in St. Louis occupying a banking position of such importance. She has been the manager for three years and if anyone doubts her ability to handle this job properly, he has only to look at the reports. She has not only managed the savings section, but she has been in charge of a thousand and one details in connection with the sale of Thrift Stamps, War Savings Certificates and four different Liberty Bond Sales, handled almost entirely on the installment plan. Viewing her as an authority on the subject, the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine sought her views on the qualifications and rules of business conduct that young women starting out to annex the more important positions should follow. She did not, as a matter of course, step into her present rank with any great haste. She was with the Mercantile in the service of the president 16 years before she was given her big opportunity and her preliminary training must have been pretty thorough. She said that she did not believe that there was going to be any startling rush of women to take important positions in business.

"There were many additions to the more important positions recruited from women during the war," she said, "but with peace, I assume that we will go back to normal. The natural and economic laws will continue to keep the big business, its cares and its responsibilities in the hands of the men, where it belongs. I don't think there is the slightest danger that the home and family life will suffer by the rush of women to fill places in the business world. Young women will continue to seek such places, start out with the avowed purpose of a career, and will do precisely what thousands have done before—get married, when they meet men of their choice, and then other young women will step in and take the places thus vacated.

"A young woman who starts out to make a place for herself in business must have the will and the determination at the outset to observe certain necessary exactions. She must be serious, pay close attention to her work, make it her business to study and master it, if it impresses her as difficult at the beginning; and it invariably strikes the beginner in just that light. She should never be afraid to do a little extra work when it becomes necessary, and do it in such a manner as to show her employer that it is done willingly. A girl with a real purpose to succeed and the ability and willingness to do her work, will achieve success, and she should not get discouraged, if it is a bit slow in coming. There is a tendency among people who work to do just a prescribed order and take pains not to do any more. This, however, does not apply to the young women exclusively, as the young men also exhibit serious concern lest they do too much in one day or at one time.

THINGS TO REMEMBER

SOME of the rules a woman manager of a department in a big St. Louis banking house suggests to young women who are contemplating business careers:

1. Be serious and don't be afraid of doing a little extra work when necessity requires.
2. If you have a good idea, don't be afraid to tell it to your employer. Also, help him with some of the details he is liable to forget in the press of more important matters.
3. Have as much enjoyment as you think you need, but don't let it interfere with your capacity for work.
4. When you discover that you have nerves, see that they are well fed. Don't be afraid of working too hard, as hard work will kill no one.
5. Be agreeable at all times and show that you are very much interested in your work.
6. Dress sensibly, with good taste and becoming modesty. Don't introduce a new costume that will readily attract attention in the office—in other words, speak for itself. Above all things, don't try to look "mannish."

"A young woman in business life should not be too timid, under the impression that it is showing proper respect to her employer to be that way. If she has an idea that she thinks is worth while, she should not be afraid to give it expression. A busy employer often forgets some detail and he welcomes suggestions in such cases. A young woman is making no mistake when she offers suggestions, but she must use tact in this, as well as all other business dealings. There is a way to do all these things, and the ambitious young woman who strives for advancement should make it her business to know the right way. Now, if she is really serious in her desire to make a career for herself in business, she must concentrate on that subject and not permit social diversions to divide her allegiance. She can have her pleasure as well as anyone else, but she must not subordinate her business to the pursuit of enjoyment. There is no reason why a woman in business life should not be as fine a type as any society woman. She should be a woman at all times, be respectful to others and command respect for herself, and never affect mannishness. I cannot be too emphatic in advising the beginners against imitating the men.

"I think I would also say something about dress, and advise the younger women, as well as the more mature, against extremes. Common sense and modesty should guide in this important matter, and no new costume should be introduced in the office in such a way as to force immediate recognition. There are so many more important things to think about in the office than dress, but, at the same time, I would not like to be understood as condemning good taste and attractive clothes. The main thing is to let good taste and common sense operate jointly in this matter.

"Another thing for the woman in business is to try to forget that she has nerves. When she makes the discovery that she has, then she should keep them well fed. She should live sensibly, and see that she takes proper exercise when she is out of the office. Hard work never hurt anybody very much, and when you analyze it, you will have to agree that, no matter how oppressive it may seem, it is not any harder than the work a woman does in the home, in the proper keeping of her house and the caring for her family. It is well for a young woman to understand and appreciate this fact when she begins to tire from the drive in the office; that is, if she really wants to follow a business career. There are great responsibilities in office work, but they are in the home as well, only of a different kind; and often much more exacting."

Discussing the suggestion that women be given increased representation on the boards of the banks and large business institutions, Mrs. Sultzer said there was no good reason why they should not be in such positions. "Many women you know," she said, "are largely interested in some of these institutions, have a right to be represented, and besides, woman's judgment in business matters is often very good, even if she does not follow the same processes of reasoning as a man. A woman will look at a matter from a differt point of view, and I think, after due contact with the world, with its methods of transacting business, she will not make many mistakes. Sitting in a bank directors' meeting will be a new experience for women in St. Louis, but if it does come, it will be considered as an innovation for only a short while. We just fall into all these radical departures and in a short time

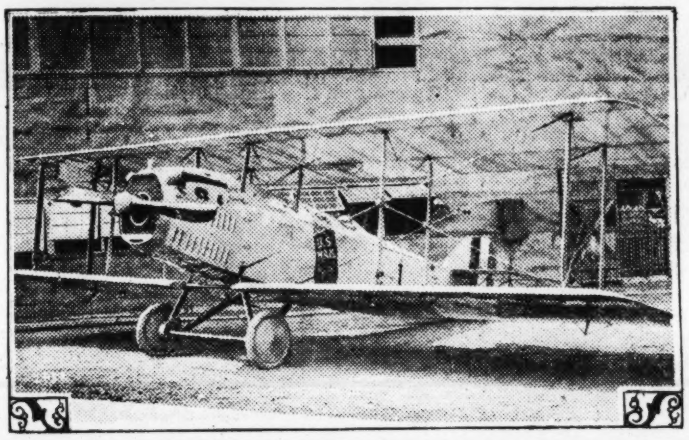
Clergyman would establish aerial missionary service in Alaska, and whalers are looking into scheme for hunting cetaceans with flying boats and machine guns—Government already employing aircraft to fight boll weevil in Texas—Oil men in Texas organize company for carrying passengers and light machinery to and from fields — How airplanes may help farmers—Use probable in coast guard and forestry services.

THE country was startled the other day by the news that a New York business man had purchased the entire aircraft equipment, costing more than $10,000,000, which Great Britain during the war provided for training Canadian aviators. He became the possessor of 350 planes, 700 airplane engines and thousands of parts of equipment, thus taking rank as the greatest individual owner of aircraft in history. Only four nations, perhaps—England, France, Italy and the United States—own more flying machines than this one New Yorker.

The announcement by the purchaser that he intended using his immense fleet of aircraft in opening up commercial airplane routes in Canada was a striking indication of the fact, too little appreciated, that the airplane, forced to swift development in the hothouse of the war, has come to stay, and stay on a grand scale, in the pursuits of peace. The vision of Tennyson, in which he saw magic argosies of the sky dropping down with costly bales, has already lost the vagueness of a dream; it can scarcely be doubted that the next few years will turn into daily routine, as matter-of-fact as railroad or automobile traffic, the passage of streams of aircraft over every city.

Few persons realize the great variety of fields in which use has been found for the airplane. In some it has already been put to work; in others its employment is only a matter of a short time. The provinces indicated range from the postal service to whale fishing, from life-guard service along the coasts to fire-prevention patrol in the forests of the Rocky Mountains and the Northeast.



One of six planes that since last May have carried mail between New York and Washington.

The air mail service is still in its infancy, but how many of us recall that the sky postal route from New York to Washington has been in constant operation since May 15 of last year? Up to Dec. 1, more than 400 flights had been made, and the amazing fact was made public that of all these flights, only nine had been interrupted, and then for trivial repairs that required only a few minutes. Night and day, rain or shine, the postmen of the air have pursued their routes, far surpassing the railroads in speed and equaling them in reliability. Imagine automobiles making 400 trips of several hundred miles each, and being stopped only nine times for tire troubles or other causes! Or even railway trains making the same number of trips and the same mileage and being halted only nine times by signals, wrecks or track troubles!

The showing has been so gratifying that the Postal Department plans to expand the service into nation-wide dimensions.. Second Assistant Postmaster-General Otto Praeger, who is in charge of the service, says the results obtained prove beyond peradventure that ultimately the whole country will be covered by a network of aerial mail and express lines. In this connection should be mentioned an announcement made a few days ago by the Standard Aircraft Corporation of Elizabeth, N. J. Its chief engineer, Charles Healy Day, inventor of the tractor type of airplane propulsion, has designed a single-motor plane, capable of making a nonstop flight from Chicago to New York, carrying a quarter of a ton of mail or merchadise.

The shooting of a whale with a machine gun from an airplane by an American aviator off the Pacific coast, near San Diego, Cal., recently opened up a new field of possibility in the whaling industry. It suggests that whaling ships of the future will be furnished with an equipment of airplanes and a complement of aviators and skilled gunners to scout for and bag these monsters of the deep. An airplane can, of course, pursue and overtake any marathon swimmer among the cetaceans; it can scout far and wide in quest of its prey.

When the steamer Northern Pacific went aground recently off the Atlantic coast, with a big complement of wounded soldiers on board, aviators at once offered their services. It was agreed that an airplane would surpass a boat, which is at the mercy of stormy waves, or a gun, which is of limited range and uncertain aim, in carrying a rope to a stranded ship. But this steamer was too near the shore to make the use of aircraft necessary. But invaluable services in such catastrophes were foreshadowed, and there can be little doubt that eventually every lifeguard and coast patrol station will be provided with airplanes and aviators. They could discover a wreck and establish communication with the stricken vessel where no other agency would avail.

Similar use of aircraft is indicated in the forestry service. As everyone knows, the great bane of this service is forest fires, which break out suddenly and secretly, and, if not checked in time, may gather such impetus that they sweep all before them over great reaches of territory. At present men with field glasses perch day and night on high places, on the lookout for fires. It is pointed out that an aviator could in a short time inspect an area far greater, and do the work with more certainty, than is possible to the range of a field glass. Usually the stationary observer can discover a fire only when it has gained such dimensions that its smoke and flames are visible from a distance. The aviator, passing immediately above,, at no great height, might often be able to catch a fire at its beginning.

Scouting for outlaw cotton fields in Southern Texas.

Oil men in Texas and Oklahoma are calling for aviators to assist in their industry. Suppose an operator decides that the subterranean oil deposit runs southwest, and wishes to make a location some miles away in that direction, in order to sink a test boring. Perhaps there are no roads, and the country is impassable to an automobile. In that case the operator could jump into his aerial flivver and alight at his location in a few minutes. Also, there is constant work of inspection, covering fields at distances apart, which an airplane could accomplish in far less time and much more easily than an automobile.

Already leading oil men have a project on foot to develop this idea from theory to practice. It is announced that C. G. Wood of Wichita Falls, Tex., has organized a company with $25,000 capitalization to purchase and operate a bevy of five airplanes, to be used for better and faster transportation about the fields. The company also plans to apply to the Government for a contract to carry the mails over prescribed routs. It is understood that an army aviator will manage the line and that a complement of skilled pilots will be engaged.

"I am convinced of the feasibility of the plan," says Wood, "and believe that it will not only be self sustaining, but profitable. We expect to deliver passengers and light machinery anywhere in Texas or Oklahoma, and to answer calls for trips whenever demanded. The service will afford great advantages in carrying passengers to and from the different oil fields without the delay incident to congested railroads or to poor conditions of the highways for automobile traffic. The 'ships' will prove of especial value when, as is often the case, a well is at a certain stage and some machine part is required immediately in order to prevent loss."

Stockmen are looking to the airplane to help them in locating strayed cattle. At present the task imposes long and fatiguing rides on horseback, or else by automobile over not too favorable ground. An aviator with a spy glass, they believe, could scout far and wide; at a height of 2000 feet he could survey the country for miles around; and the lost cattle would be discovered with a fraction of the time and effort now enforced.

One of the most curious ideas for the use of the airplane is one originated by the Rev. S. Hall Young, representative of the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church for Alaska. His plan is to establish an aerial missionary and mail service by which the outposts in Alaska may be reached during the long Arctic winters. Relief to sufferers from the rigors of the climate might also be carried, says Dr. Young. When he first conceived the plan, the missionary found an experienced aviator and good Presbyterian in Lieut. Bolney Wilson of Wheeling, W. Va. But Wilson was killed in an accident, and Dr. Young is now to collect in West Virginia a memorial fund for the aviator with which to found the service.

Quick transportation between oil fields in the Southwest.

Some persons will not see at once what help the airplane can be to the farmer. Yet it is predicted that produce-carrying planes may bring the producer and consumer, the country and the city, into almost immediate touch. Herbert C. Hoover, Food Administrator, has estimated that one-third of all the perishable farm products is ruined every year before it can be used; and ascribes this loss, running into millions of dollars annually, to inadequate methods of transportation. If the dream of seeing farmers bringing their produce to market by airplane is ever realized on a large scale—and why may it not come to pass, in view of the universal use of the auto-morning to see Isaacs and bargain with him, but it would be a waste of time to hang about "Isaac's place." It was quite possible that Isaacs might go somewhere else first. Churn would catch him at the train and bring him around to Kit. She must clear up the room and have everything ship-shape in an hour.

But Kit's anger grew steadily as Churn insisted.

"I know why you're mad to get to the Grand Central!" she flung at him. "Didn't you s'pose I noticed the name on that candy box? Bah! I ain't a fool! You said you was sick of bein' boxed up with me. That put me wise!"

Churn protested innocence, and Kit was silenced if not convinced. The man went off jauntily, but Clo looked for further developments. She was excited by a newspaper paragraph she had just read, and the argument next door made her heart beat still faster.

"Kit's mum to put Churn off the track," she thought; "but that woman means to follow him. She's brought no handbag. She can't take the pearls!"

The paragraph that Clo had read concerned Mr. and Mrs. Roger Sands. It referred to the "house-warming party" they were giving at their "recently acquired cottage at Newport." Apparently the affair had been mentioned before in the column devoted to society news, but Clo had missed it. She had fixed her attention day by day on the Westmorland Hotel murder and the personal advertisements.

No mention was made of the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Sands, which had been chronicled on the day of their flitting; but an allusion to the house-warming and dinner dance set Clo's brain whirling. Angel's husband would expect her to wear the Queen's pearls. If he already guessed at the secret, this might be a plan to force his wife's hand.

Angel must have the pearls, at latest, for tomorrow night!

The door slammed after Churn. The girl heard his steps on the creaky stairs, and a second later Kit was knocking on Clo's door and calling to her new friend: "Kid, kid! Let me in quick!"

Clo let her in. Kit was pinning on a wide-brimmed hat, and had her hands full with a veil, gloves and parasol.

"Tie this veil for me, there's a good kid!" she panted. "I'm mad at my husband! He's off to flirt with a beast of a girl in a candy store. They had a mash before we was married. I'm bound to see whether he's lied or not. If he has—but no matter! You're goin' to be in all mornin', ain't you?"

"I thought of running out to phone a friend of mine," said Clo cleverly.

"Don't! There's a phone in the house, in the room under mine—room of a pal who's away till this afternoon. He left his key with Mrs. Mac, and she lent it to my husband last night so he could borrow some novels for me; our pal has lots. We've not given the key back, so when I come home I'll take you down. Save you goin' out in the heat. And I want you to stay in while I'm gone. All you need do is to sit with your door open, and see if anyone knocks at ours. I don't think anyone will. I've got the key of our door; but it's the same as every old key. 'Taint a special one, like—like our pal's. If Violet or Mrs. Mac comes say the room's done up and the breakfast things are all on the tray that I've set on the floor outside. If a stranger, tell 'em to call later; and look close, so you can describe the person. Here's the rest of the candy, kid. Wisht I'd left you more!"

"Thanks, just the same," said Clo. "I undertake watch-dogging in all its branches. Ta, ta!"

As Kit dashed downstairs without stopping to look around, Clo dashed to her own open window. In a moment Kit's parasol—aiding patterned veil and wide hat to mask her face—went bobbing along the street.

The coast was clear, and the big moment at hand; for Kit's manner told Clo, as plainly as words, that she had left the pearls behind.

Kit's opinion of the keys was the same as that already formed by Clo, and the girl was wild to test it. She snatched her own key from its lock, to try it in Kit's door. It went in, but stopped at the critical turn, and could not be coaxed to move.

There were two other rooms on this floor—a small one opposite Clo's tenanted by a young man who went to work at 7 o'clock, and another still smaller, used as a storeroom—a refuge for trunks, dustpans and brooms. The early bird never locked his door; Clo often saw it wide open. Today it was standing ajar, the key in its place; but again the experiment fell short of success.

The storeroom key remained. At first glance Clo thought it was missing, though the door was unlocked; but a second glance showed her the key falling in a corner. If it failed she would have to risk her luck downstairs; but it did not fail. It turned all the way around in the lock, and Kit's door opened.

Clo knew that the pearls had been kept in a drawer; but Kit would not leave them in so obvious a place.

Kit had made the bed and neatly patted the two ill-matched pillows into shape. Clo stripped off the unbleached covers, and looked for some sign that the ticking had been ripped open. There was no such sign; but there was a patch on the larger pillow. One end of this patch was unsewn, and held in place with a pin. Underneath it something hard—something different from the stuffing of cheap feathers—could be felt with the hand.

Clo undid the pin, and, thrusting in her hand, pulled out a packet made of a red silk handkerchief, tied around with gold string from a confectioner's. Clo squeezed the tight folds of silk. They held the pearls!

She was so sure of this that it seemed a waste of time to open the handkerchief. She longed to run out of the house with her treasure, without a second's delay.

The girl was at the door, with her hand on the key, before she realized how mad it would be not to make certain of her find. Her fingers trembled as she undid the gold string, but luckily Kit had been in haste when she tied the knot. A few seconds, and Clo had picked it apart. Then to unwind its lengths, and then to unfold an end of the handkerchief, which was knotted also! Yes, the pearls were really there!

It seemed almost too good to be true, but true it was. She rewrapped the parcel, and again was at the door, when another thought struck her. Better make the bed look as it had looked before!

Who could tell if Kit had met Churn on his way to the Grand Central, and had persuaded him not to go there? Clo might meet one or both of them at the front door, and the longer start she could get before the theft was discovered the better. She returned, put the pillows back into their covers, and set them up in place as if nothing had happened.

During this process she decided that she would spare a moment to search for Chuff's key. Flitting about the room, she pounced upon a key which answered Kit's description. It was on the mantelpiece—a small, flat key, made for a Yale lock.

Clo could have laughed for joy. She had had a lot of patience and a little pluck; and now the great task was accomplished. It had been easy, after all. Now there was nothing left but to run home to Angel and say:

"Here are your pearls!"

A glance told her that she was leaving the room just as it had been when Kit went out. She shut the door softly behind her and locked it as she went out. The borrowed key she replaced in the storeroom. Then she unlocked her own door and, tearing off the blue wrapper, put on a tan-colored linen suit that Violet had bought for her at a sale, for $5.

There was a tan straw hat, too—Clo dared not appear in the brown toque and coat described by the newspapers—and a cheap handbag purchased for the pearls. It was a tight fit for the red silk bundle, but she squeezed it in, and added the big pearl found in Peterson's room. The Yale key and the little money that she had left she slipped inside her blouse.

Everything else she abandoned. Thus it would be supposed at first that she had gone for a walk.

She told herself this boldly, yet, when she heard Violet's voice from somewhere below, her nerves jumped.

"On my way up for them trays o' yourn," the woman was saying with a laugh.

"Trays o' yourn!" To whom was she speaking? Could it be Kit, back already? Yes, it was Kit. Kit was answering:

"I'll run up ahead. I'm in a hurry."

The voices sounded near. The two women must already have climbed one flight of stairs. Clo felt that her blood was turning to water.

In an anguish of doubt, Clo's hands clenched convulsively upon her breast. Her fingers closed upon Chuff's key. It gave her a hope of safety. If only she could hide in Chuff's room before Kit reached his floor!

She stumbled down the last few steps and paused at the room under Kit's. Would the key fit? It did. It went deep into the small keyhole, and turned; but the door stuck.

Kit must be close to the top of the stairs now.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

CLO almost fell into Chuff's room as the door gave way. She locked herself in and went straight to the telephone. Whatever the danger menacing her, she would not call the police; but if O'Reilly were at home, he would undoubtedly make a dash to the rescue.

Her hand was on the receiver when she remembered that she was marooned, as it were. She was ignorant of the phone number, and had never dared to inquire the number of the house or street. She had pretended to know Mrs. McMahon through a friend.

But surely she could not trip over this small stumbling block. There must be some way to step around it. If Chuff's own name was in the telephone book, the house number and street could be found there; but the book was missing.

The girl ran to a table on which were ink, bottles, pens and a blotting book. She opened the blotting book. It was old and thickly patterned with stains, black, red and purple; but it contained not a single sheet of paper.

She pulled out a drawer. There was writing paper in it, but unstamped.

While she fumbled, hoping to find an old envelope or postcard addressed to Chuff, the girl could hear the patter of feet overhead. Kit was in her own room, walking about. Suddenly the boards ceased to creak. She had stopped. Was it at the bedside? Was she already pulling the cover off the patched pillow?

There was nothing in the drawer to serve Clo in her dilemma, and she had turned to a shelf crowded with books and magazines when a new idea came to her. She snatched up the blotter and held it open in front of a mirror over the mantelpiece. From an intricate pattern formed of many written lines, the beginning of one sprang to her eyes.

"Dear Peterson," she read, "Churn will take you this, and"——

The line beneath mingled with others, and could not be disentangled; but the address of the house had been written above, and could be clearly read. With a sigh of thanksgiving, Clo ran to the telephone, called up central and asked for the Dietz Hotel.

The Dietz answered quickly. Mr. O'Reilly was still staying at the hotel, but he had gone out. He had left no word as to where he might be found or when he would return.

Tears started to Clo's eyes, but she had no time to brood over the disappointment. She was trapped now, and must summon Beverley to get the pearls. She had not the Sands' number, and must ask central to call the Park avenue apartment.

When she had done this, silence fell; but it was only for a moment. Clo stood with her ear still at the receiver, when a loud bang on the door made her jump as if she had been shot.

The doorknob rattled.

"You little devil!" shrilled Kit's voice. "You dirty thief! I know you're there. I know what you've done, too! Wait till I catch you!"

Clo made no answer.

"Hello!" spoke a foreign-sounding voice through the phone—the voice of a woman. "Hello! Yes, this is Mrs. Sands' flat. Mr. and Mrs. Sands are not at home."

"When will they be back?" asked Clo.

"I don't know that," answered the cold voice—the voice of Anna Schultz. "It may be a long time."

Clo was almost beaten, but she would not fail.

"I'll try Miss Blackburne," she thought in desperation.

As Kit beat furiously on the door, her shouts mingling with the cries of Mrs. Mac and Violet, the girl called up the jewelry store where Ellen Blackburne was employed. She had, it seemed, been in that morning, for the first time in several days. Her mother had been ill and she had had to leave to stop at home. She had just gone out again, but—wait a second—oh, it seemed that she had returned. She would step to the phone.

A moment later Ellen's calm "Hello!" seemed to come from a far-distant, peaceful world where normal creatures were safe and well and happy.

"This is Clo," replied the girl, conscious that voices outside the door had ceased their clamor in order that ears might hear her message. "Yes, I said Clo! Get into a taxi and rush to the number and street I'm going to give you. Don't stop to ask questions. When you get here, you don't need to come in. I'll drop something out of the window. You can guess what. I'll expect you quick. Good-by!"

"I heard you!" shrieked Kit. "I can guess, too! You've stolen my pearls, and you think you'll pass 'em on to some other thief! But you won't, you little devil! We'll have this door down in five minutes. I wish my husband would come home!"

Still Clo gave no answer. She went to the window, rolled up the shade and raised the sash.

"Why won't you let me call the police?" she heard Mrs. Mac asking. "I tell you it's the only thing. I"——

"She won't let you do it because she stole the pearls herself!" cried Clo, darting across the room to put her lips to the keyhole. "And that's not all she's afraid of. If she don't look out, I'll tell what I know. Maybe she can guess what that is, too!"

"I'll kill you when I get my hands around your throat!" Kit screamed.

"It won't be the first you've killed. Take care!" Clo retorted.

An instant later she was stung with regret for her boldness. There would be no mercy for her now, from either Kit or Churn, when the door gave way. They would know that she had been the woman at the telephone masquerading as Kit.

But if Miss Blackburn came first, before they broke in, she didn't much care. With the pearls safe she could fight for herself.

"Hurrah! By all that's good, here's my boy!" crowed Kit, drowning the girl's threats with her triumph. "Oh, and Mr. Isaacs, too! I was never so glad in my life to see anyone as you both! Churn, there's a thief in Mr. Cheffinsky's room—the girl that's been living next door to us. She's stole that lit-

THE CONTEST ON OVERLOOK

By WILLIAM GERARD CHAPMAN

A MOMENT after the train came to a stop at Greenville, the youthful-appearing passenger in the day coach rose from his seat and walked carelessly down the aisle toward the door. A red-faced man seated further back in the car glanced up, frowned and brought himself together in a quick movement that poised him on the edge of the seat like a plump bird about to launch itself from a limb. The young man stopped at the water cooler, and in a leisurely manner helped himself to a cup of the tepid contents—whereupon the florid-visaged one grunted relievedly and relaxed, though still keeping an unobtrusive eye on the other.

The engine whistled; the train quivered, jerked and started; and the stout person sagged deeper into the red plush and sighingly brought his respiration back to its normal. Then suddenly he leaped to his feet, his lips forming a suppressed oath, and bounded down the aisle. The young man apparently had dropped the tin cup from which he had been reluctantly sipping, jumped through the door, sidestepped the startled conductor who was just entering, and swung off the steps to the cinders. Only a spry youth could negotiate the leap, and, besides, the clumsier man had been blocked by the conductor, and, when he gained the platform, the speed of the train made alighting impossible.

"Blast the whelp!" he exploded. "Hey, conductor, stop the train—stop it, I say! Give you $10 if you'll stop her!"

The conductor, still puzzled beyond speech, looked covetously at the greenback, then spat philosophically over the steps and recovered his tongue sufficiently to say: "Cain't do it, sir; cain't do it noways," and passed on into the car to remove himself from temptation. The stout man, his face now a still ruddier crimson that verged alarmingly on apoplexy, spoke unkind words to himself for his foolish impulse and returned to his seat to speculate on the sudden move of the youthful passenger.

Perhaps the lad's action was entirely natural; he might suddenly have decided that he wanted to get off there—or he had not heard the station called and saw the nameboard just as the train pulled out. He couldn't possibly have known he was being followed, and therefore wasn't trying to evade anyone. Anyway, it would have been an unwise move to follow him from the train in that fashion; it would have given the game away with nothing to be gained. He mentally blessed the conductor for refusing his request.

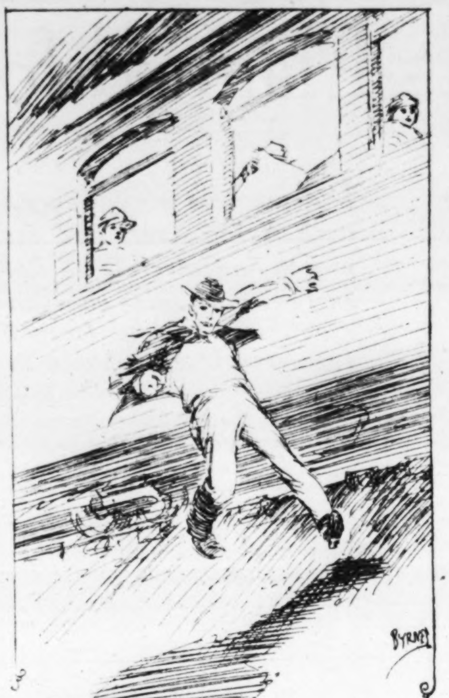
* * * * * * * *

Lane Parker, when the momentum of his flying leap had exhausted itself, dug his heels into the sloping cinder bank, and, turning at right angles to the track, struck off into the hills without even a backward glance at the train. At no time during the hour's ride from Chattanooga had he evinced by look or manner the slightest interest in the stout passenger. A veiled scrutiny of the car's occupants when he boarded the train had satisfied him that this florid individual was the man against whom he had been warned; and his actions as Lane left the train, observed from the corner of an eye, had proven the identity. "Might as well fool him as far as I can; he won't be sure that I was onto him, and he'll try to think that I just naturally decided to get off as I did for purely personal reasons," Lane mused as he trudged over the hills. His objective was a cabin nestling in the hills not many miles from where he had left the train, and he believed he could reach it almost as quickly as though he had gone on to Hickville and thence by buckboard.

Lane "holed up" in the cabin of Jud Waring for nearly a week, to throw his pursuer off the scent. He had visited there a few weeks earlier, after Jud, a former fellow townsman, had written him at his home in the Vermont hills of something peculiar that he had noticed in the soil on a slope of Overloop Mountain. Jud's Yankee curiosity had impelled him to send a specimen of the soil to Lane, who had dipped into chemistry at the academy back home, and Lane had found it to contain bauxite, a disintegration of feldspar rich in alumina, from which commercial aluminum is derived. Large deposits of bauxite are scarce, and the Aluminum Products Corporation was always in the market for tracts containing them, as he had ascertained by careful inquiries of several manufacturers by letter.

All this sounded to Lane very much like the knock of opportunity for which he had held a listening ear ever since Patty Witherspoon had entered into his scheme of life. The acres of his father were few and worn—he had toiled his share in wearing them out since he was knee-high to a milking stool—and his thoughts for two years had centered on the purchase of an adjoining farm, which was for sale. Possession of those acres and the modest house and farm buildings they surrounded would mean possession of Patty. Jared Witherspoon would not give his daughter to a landless, penniless youth—but Patty had been willing to wait. Lane was industrious and enterprising, but it was a discouraging task to get together even the modest sum needed for a first payment on the property, with the very limited business opportunities afforded by a farming community. He never could do it with the savings from farm wages, and he was alert for the chance to get at something more lucrative. And then the glittering prospect of locating a bauxite deposit had come out of a clear sky.

He drew his slender savings from the bank, after confiding to Patty the tale of golden promise, and with her buoyant encouragement singing in his ears, journeyed from his own Green Mountains to the richer hills of Tennessee. Directed by Jud Waring, he had found the slopes containing the rich clay, and satisfied with the depth of the deposit by making borings, he sought the owners and secured options on several small tracts for a few dollars. Only on one side of the mountain did he find the precious clay. The land itself was barren and considered nearly worthless by the owners, and they were delighted with the opportunity to get rid of it at the very fair price Lane offered. He made a mental reservation to pay them a reasonable bonus over the purchase price when the ultimate sale to the aluminum concern was completed. Thus he salved his New England conscience, which began to prick him slightly at the thought of buying these rich deposits at such ridiculously low figures.



The young man sidestepped the startled conductor who was just entering, and swung off the steps to the cinders.

One of the biggest tracts, and from indications, the most valuable, was held by a farmer who was visiting his son in the western part of the State, and Lane learned that he was due to return in about two weeks. He would sell; his wife assured Lane of that. The price offered was well above what the land was valued at, and the farmer's wife was as anxious for her husband's return as Lane was. He must take his chances of meeting this man later, and perhaps it was just as well, as Lane had about exhausted his funds.

He returned home, his pockets heavy with clay, but empty of cash, with his amazing tale of riches held in the common looking stuff he exhibited. Lane sold his horse and buggy and his yoke of yearling steers, borrowed all the money he could, and persuaded his father to mortgage the farm to complete the sum necessary to take up the options. Lane gave assurance of the immediate marketability of the land and showed in substantiation the letters from the aluminum people of whom he had inquired.. With the funds in his possession he returned to Tennessee. The morning after he arrived in Chattanooga there came a letter from his father. The missive read:

"Dear Son: There has been a man here just after you left Wednesday asking for you at the village. I think he means no good. He came down to the house and I told him you had just gone to Chattanooga, and he looked taken back and then tried to pump me. I didn't tell him much. Said his name was Hammersmith, or some such. He went back to the village and took too much and talked about how he knew what you were up to and he would trail you and find out. Lemuel Peters came down to tell me about it. The man showed a letter you had written to some company asking about bauxite. Look out for him. He is a squatty sort of man, fat, with a red face and bald. I am writing this in haste, as I reckon he might turn up down there, as he left the next day and asked Sim Hankins at the depot about train connections for the South."

Lane pondered over this new and slightly disturbing factor in his plans. He had yet to secure the biggest tract, and the interloper, who doubtless had designs on Lane's discovery, might cause complications. He kept an eye out for a squatty sort of man while he remained for another day in the city to buy some new soil augers. Then the next day, on the train, bound for the mountains, he had run squarely into him—or least so it had seemed.

* * * * *

Jud Waring lived alone in a cabin of his own building in the highlands of Eastern Tennessee. A rover by inclination, he had left the hills where he had been born to "see the world," and after a year or so of mild adventure, found himself in the Great Smoky Mountains, where the lure of the wild and rugged knobs held him fast. Rifle and fish hook brought him all that he needed to supply his wants, and he spent his time in prospecting for coal, which lay somewhere in the hills.

He was more curious than hopeful over the result of his enterprise in sending Lane a specimen of the peculiar earth formation he had noticed while on one of his prospecting tours. "I reckon it may be something as good as you say," he said to Lane as they sat before the cabin during the last of their evenings together, "but I can't noways sense its value. I've never heard tell of aluminum, but then you've had a sight more schooling than me, and I reckon you can give me a quarter of what you make and we'll call it square."

They discussed the probability of Lane's follower stepping in and interfering with his plans for acquiring the principle bauxite tract, should he discover the location of the deposits; and various means of throwing him off the trail were suggested. Far into the night they talked, with the result that Lane wrote out an order for delivery of the boring tools to Jud, who would go to Hickstown and get them the next day—when Lane also would leave for the purpose of taking up his options. These would expire in a few days, and when the deeds were safely filed he still had to find the owner of the biggest tract and negotiate its purchase before the interloper discovered the location of the find. Lane felt that the fellow would endeavor to seek out his sphere of activity with the cunning of a fox; his quick jump to Tennessee and picking up Lane's trail at Chattanooga indicated pertinacity and craftiness, and Lane's intuition warned him that he had a dangerously capable opponent in the squatty man with the red face.

Lane took up his options, paying over the cash to each owner, and with the deeds in his pocket journeyed to Hickstown, the county seat, to file them; and not until they were safely in the hands of the recorder did he venture to show himself in the one hotel of the town.

As though in fulfillment of a wish, a short, fat, red-visaged man sat dozing in a chair in the fly-specked, dingy office of the hostelry. Lane saw him glance up, waken instantly, and then drop back into his sleepy state of boredom. Five minutes later, as the newly arrived guest turned on the stair landing on his way to his room, he saw the occupant of the office chair rise, walk over to the register and scan it with seeming satisfaction.

Just after Lane had seated himself in the hotel dining room that evening the stout man entered, and after a word with the negro at the door, was shown to a seat at the same table. As he sat down he looked intently at Lane, started with pleased surprise, and shot out his hand across the gray, spattered cloth.

"Well, well," he cried, "I'm sure it's Lane Parker—aren't you Lane Parker of Mapletown, Vt.? Of course, you don't remember me—you were only a little shaver when I was there last. But your father and I knew paper. Violet would undertake an errand, no doubt, but she could not be trusted for a mission of such importance. O'Reilly must be content with the message passed on by Mrs. Sands.

It was on the ninth day that it seemed as if Clo's patience might soon be rewarded. Kit and Churn had a serious quarrel. The man insisted on going out. He couldn't stand being shut up any longer—not for Kit herself nor for the pearls either!

Clo was not on sentinel duty when the explosion came. It was late in the afternoon of a blazing day, and the girl lay on her narrow bed, disgusted with life.

The quarrel next door was so sordid that Clo had ceased to listen, when suddenly the names "Olga" and "Stephen," spoken loudly by Kit, waked her from a half-doze. With the light swiftness of a cat she sprang off the bed and went to her post, wide awake in an instant.

CHAPTER XXXIV..

"I THOUGHT you'd sure know the whole story," Kit was saying.

"I on'y knowed about Stephen. Dat I had to know," said Churn. "But you knew why Pete came to New York instead of going West, when he got out of stir in Chicago?"

"I know he come to kill"——

"Shut up! Not so loud!"

"Well, I know 'oo he came for, den, if you like dat better."

"But that wasn't the whole reason. Didn't you know it wasn't?"

"I knowed he was goin' to get a hold o' some papers for Chuff—papers dat was mixed all up mit our business."

"H-m! That's what Chuff wanted us to think—that they concerned us. Whether it's true is another matter," hinted Kit. "But if you know about those papers, you must know the rest."

"Vat rest?"

"Why, about Olga."

"I know vat Olga and Stephen vas to each other, if dat's what you mean."

"And who Olga is?"

"Olga Beverley."

"Greenhorn! You never got further than that!"

"No. Vat for I get furder? I never see 'er; never vill see 'er. She's a name to me, dat's all. Nevaire vould I heard even dat name if I didn't take care o' Stephen, when Jake was off on a bust or doin' a job for Chuff."

"Funny we never got on to this line o' talk before!" mused Kit.

"I don't see vy funny. Vat's Olga got to do mit us, anyhow?"

"She's got this much, my boy—if Pete had been found dead, and I hadn't done it, I'd say, 'Olga!'"

"She 'ad something on Pete?"

"She was the woman that had to give up the papers to him. He told me he was waitin' for them to come. You knew that, when I—when I was with him last. He said he wasn't sure whether she'd bring 'em herself, or this girl you seen about in the newspapers—the one that called on him Sunday afternoon. I've told you about the women's voices in the hall, and someone sittin' plump on the trunk when I was inside. Well, if I could 'a' peeped, I bet I'd see Olga. She was one of the women dressed for the automobile they're tryin' to trace an' can't."

"Why didn't you let out dis before, about Olga?"

"Because I thought you was on to it, softy! We two was playin' at cross purposes."

"Would you knowed Olga if you 'ad seen her?"

"Would I? Say, did you ever hear of Roger Sands?"

"Sure, I hear. He was de guy who worked for Heron las' year, and got de gang after him."

"Well, did you hear about his marrying a girl? It was Olga he married."

"So?"

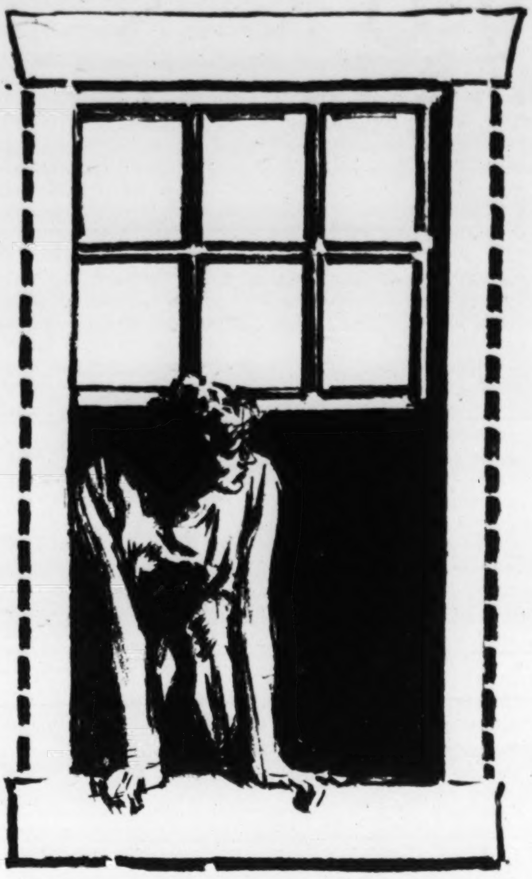
"But not under her own name. She'd took another, so as to get away with the papers. It was Olga who had the job to get hold of 'em. What Chuff told her to do went, for Stephen's sake, I guess; but—oh, it's a long story! I won't go over it all. She had the papers from then till now. The thing that interests me, and maybe will you, is something I thought of today. It popped into my nut today that the pearls are hers. I bet something went wrong with the papers, and she give Pete the pearls instead. Gee, if that's so, she little knew Pete! I bet he was studying how to double-cross Chuff, and square himself when—when my act came on!"

"What 'old would Chuff 'ave on a woman married mit a big fellah like Sands?" Churn wanted to know. "Vy she let herself be skinned like dat?"

"Because of Stephen."

"But Stephen's dead an' stiff dese t'ree weeks or more."

On her side of the wall Clo started and trembled. She feared that the pair might hear the creak that the rickety floor gave; but they went on talking in the same tones as before.



Clo went to the window. There was no taxi in sight.

"Yes," Kit repeated. "Stephen's been dead 'most a month. That's one reason they couldn't let things slide, so the minute Pete was free they put him on the job. He was keen, because of Heron; and John Heron blew into New York just the right time for the plan. Pete was to get the papers first, and then—you know what."

"Yes," the man replied. "I know dat. But when Stephen was gone, what 'old 'ad Chuff on Olga?"

Kit laughed.

Clo's blood rushed to her head. She felt faint. Had she been on her feet, she would have fallen. Even the pearls lost importance for her. She realized that this was the great thing she had heard, the greatest of all for Beverley. Clo hated Cheffinsky with an almost murderous hatred.

The girl was deaf for a moment to the talk on the other side of the wall. She was wondering how she could let Beverley know that Stephen was dead.

"If I dared to telegraph!" the girl thought, for she wanted Beverley to have both the knowledge and the pearls.

Mrs. McMahon had no suspicion that she harbored a spy. If she had had doubts, they had died long ago. Cheffinsky was absent; and a carefully worded telegram ought to be safe.

About this hour Violet was in the habit of toiling up with beer for Kit and Churn and water or lemonade for their neighbor. The woman was due in a few minutes, and Clo spent the interval in concocting a message for Leontine Ressignol.

"Tell your mistress I've had news since I last saw her that Stephen is dead," were the words she decided on before Violet's arrival was advertised by a tinkle of ice.

The telegram was delivered that night at the flat in Park avenue, but Mr. and Mrs. Sands and their household had left for Newport. Only a parlor maid—an elderly woman who had served Roger Sands' dead mother—remained. She detested Leontine, being Austrian by birth, while Leontine was French. Annie Schultz decided to forget indefinitely the telegram for Leontine Rossingol.

When she had sent the message, Clo's thought went back to the pearls. She would soon be driven to leave the house for lack of money. If she had to go without the jewels, she would feel herself a failure. Oh, the net was proving tough for the tiny teeth of a mouse!

That evening Churn again announced his intention to go out. Whither he was bound Clo did not know, for she had missed scraps of talk in the next room, but he had some goal in view which Kit evidently disapproved. She cried, and in the midst of hysterical sobs the door slammed. Churn had gone!

For a moment Clo expected Kit to run after him; but the girl threw herself on the creaking bed and continued to sob.

Clo's blood took fire. She considered various schemes for getting into touch with her neighbor. She could not call through the wall, for that would emphasize the thinness of the barrier; but when she had fixed upon her plan of action she went out and knocked on Kit's door.

"Who's that?" came sharply from inside the room.

"It's only me—the little girl from the next room," Clo explained in a small voice like a child's.

Her hair hung over her shoulders, and she wore a cheap blue muslin dressing gown chosen by Violet. She was sure that she could not be recognized, even if she had been noticed at Krantz's Keller.

Kit threw open the door.

"What do you want?"

"Oh, maybe I oughtn't to have come!" Clo apologized. "I though I heard you crying; and I'm so homesick and miserable myself! I s'pose I meant to ask if there was anything I could do. Don't be angry with me!"

Kit opened the door wide. She, too, wore a wrapper, no doubt chosen by Mrs. Mac. Her bleached yellow hair was unfastened, but it was too short for a braid, and bristled about her face, on which tears had mixed a fresco of powder, rouge and cosmetic from her lashes.

"I didn't know I was howling so loud," she said, looking Clo over from head to foot. "Say, can you hear us talking, me and my husband? I hope we don't keep you awake nights."

"You haven't kept me awake once," Clo assured her with truth. "I guess crying's easier to hear than talking. I felt almost as if it was me. You see, I'm in trouble, and I'm awfully lonely.

Kit was interested.

"You're worse off than me, then," she said. "I haven't any real trouble. Me and my husband worship each other, but sometimes we have a spat, like all married folks, and I'm fool enough to bawl. He's out now. Would you like me to come in and visit you a while?"

"I'd love it!" gasped Clo.

She would have preferred an invitation to her neighbor's room, but she hoped to manage that later. Kit locked her own door carefully and slipped the key down the neck of her dress.

"I haven't any pocket," she explained. "I'm Mrs. Stahl. I think Mrs. Mac told me your name's Ryan."

She accepted Clo's suggestion to sit on the bed, which was more comfortable than the one broken-backed chair, and she did not try to hide the fact that her call was inspired by curiosity. Question after question she put, which cost her hostess tiresome flights of imagination to answer; and when she rose, her tears dried, it seemed that Clo had accomplished very little.

The girl was far from regretting her move, however. Kit had enjoyed their chat, and if Churn were absent long, or if he went out again, she would probably return as an escape from boredom.

It was 11 o'clock when once more Clo heard the two voices. Kit, who had gone to bed, reproached Churn, and Churn defended himself by saying that he had done more good than harm. He had brought Kit an offering of chocolates and chewing gum, and some theatrical papers; also he had seen Jake.

Jake knew where Chuff was, and said that he would probably come home when he heard of their presence in his house. Jake's news of Kit and Churn might not reach Chuff till the next night. There was no use expecting him back, therefore, till the day after tomorrow.

"The day after tomorrow!" echoed Kit. "Then we must get Isaacs here tomorrow."

"I t'ought of dat," said Churn. "I went up dere after I see Jake. Isaacs 'as started for Chicago on business. Ve mus' do de bes' ve can."

Clo drank in each word and focused her mind on its meaning. Tomorrow, or the day after, her hour would surely come; either then, or never.

CHAPTER XXXV.

CHURN'S excursion apparently justified itself. The couple knew what to expect, and the morning after his first absence he went out again. Toward noon Kit, in a ready-made-looking costume, knocked at Clo's door.

"Thought you might like some candy," she said. "Shall I come in?"

Clo was cordial and tried to be entertaining.

Kit dodged back and forth from room to room, lunched in her own quarters on cake and coffee and was at home to receive her husband in the afternoon.

Clo fancied, from Churn's thick voice and the sharpness of Kit's tone, that he had been drinking.

"A nice thing if Chuff surprises you like this!" the woman scolded.

Next morning early Clo heard Churn announce that he would meet Isaac's train at the Grand Central.

Kit objected.

"You might miss him. Best wait at his place," she advised.

But Churn would not be persuaded. He had seen Jake again, and Jake had prophesied that Chuff would not arrive before the afternoon. They had the whole each other well years ago. Ever hear him speak of Godfrey Hammerton?"

"Yes, I think so," admitted Lane, eyeing him with frank scrutiny. "Yes, I am quite sure I do remember him speaking of you. And I really believe I remember you myself, though, of course, it was a long time ago, and I mightn't have recognized you if you hadn't spoken." Lane's smile showed real pleasure at meeting an old friend of the family in such a lonely, out of the way spot.

"This is certainly great luck, my meeting you down here in this neck o' the woods. Just ran down for a few days' turkey shooting. What brings you so far from home, Lane? I suppose I can call you that, my boy."

"O, been visiting a fellow I used to know back home; lives near here in a cabin in the timber. And prospecting around some. How's the shooting?"

"Fine. What say we go out together for turkey tomorrow? Good. We'll get an early start and put in the day."

The meal passed pleasantly for both men, and Hammerton's hospitality, that of an earlier arrival to the newer guest, would not brook the danger of Lane becoming lonely in a strange place. Until bedtime they talked of many things, the conversation frequently being led around by the older man to the possibilities of rich mineral deposits in the wild hills that surrounded them.

"I shouldn't wonder a bit," offered Lane, when the topic had been adroitly introduced for the sixth time. "Fact is, I may want to ask your advice about something."

"Be glad to give you the benefit of what I know about minerals, my boy, any time," interrupted his companion, with a degree of eagerness. "What is it? Here, have a smoke. Now, let's sit here comfortably and let the old man air his knowledge of —what did you say it was you wanted to know about?"

Lane rose and yawned sleepily. "Thank you. That's mighty good of you, but I'm tired to death tonight, and you must be, too. I won't bother you with it now. Some other time. Guess I'll go to bed. Good-night."

Hammerton concealed his disappointment bravely, but his good-natured laugh was a little forced. "Guess you are about all in. Well, another time then. See you tomorrow at 6:30. Good-night."

Lane went to his room well satisfied with the drift of affairs. He no longer feared Hammerton. To keep him occupied with his endeavors to extract the information he sought would be an easy task, and one not wholly unamusing to the Green Mountain boy. Then, until the return of the farmer who owned the big tract that Lane could not bear the thought of losing, he would guide Hammerton's pernicious activities so that they would bring down upon him his just deserts for the questionable methods he was employing to get hold of the bauxite deposits.

Lane had waited until now to read the letter from Patty that had awaited him at the Hikcstown Post-office, and to this pleasant duty devoted himself before turning out the coal oil lamp. Then, with his mind cleared of scheming plans and filled with thoughts of a well-kept farm in the Vermont hills, with Patty singing about her tasks in a snug little white-painted house with green shutters, he sought his corn-husk mattress to dream of the day when this would come to pass.

The quest of wild turkeys the next day led the two sportsmen through a bewildering variety of cover. Hammerton seemed willing that Lane should lead the way, only occasionally taking the intiative himself. The older man made several casual attempts to introduce the subject of mineral deposits, but none was successful. The younger and more enthusiastic sportsman at each allusion to the subject, became vitally interested in the proximity of game, and a warning "S-sh!" brought silence and an interest, well stimulated, even if perfunctory, in the possibility of flushing a gobbler. Between them they brought down three fine turkeys before the morning was over.

At noon they stepped out of a "slashing," dense with brush and second growth, onto an outcropping of rock that overlooked a beautiful and rugged prospect.

As Lane glanced about he came to a sudden stop and turned to face his companion. "Let's find a better place for lunch; it's too windy here." He spoke hurriedly and started back into the timber. His manner betrayed to the older man an agitation that invested the spot with new interest. Hammerton laughed reassuringly, and, seizing Lane by the shoulder, forced him, with an air of amused tolerance, to a seat on a windfall.

"Now let's stay right here, Lane. We can't find a better place for eating lunch," he laughingly insisted. "This little wind shouldn't feaze a Green Mountain boy!"

"O, all right, if you say so," Lane grudgingly assented, and turning away from the view nervously attacked the cold snack they had brought with them.

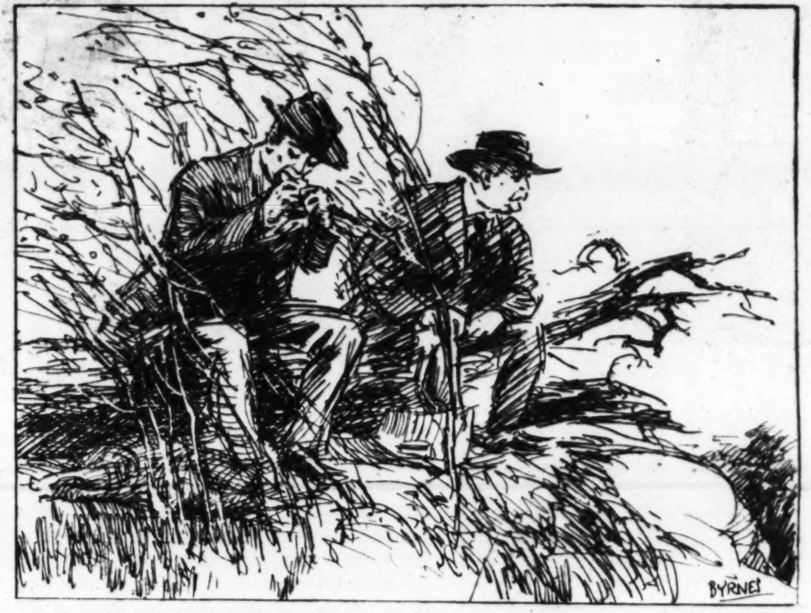
"Great view this," Hammerton remarked genially, and scanned the panorama with appreciative and curious eyes.. Something over on the slope of a high hill, which had been denuded of timber, seemed to hold his glance. He looked curiously at Lane, who seemed oblivious to everything but the sandwich he was munching.

"That's Overlook Mountain, isn't it?" Hammerton asked, pointing to the scarred eminence. "Every been over this way before?"

"That's what they call it, I think," responded Lane, glancing up. "Yes, I've been looking around some hereabouts. Better eat your share of lunch or it'll all be gone."

The slope of Overlook Mountain was dotted here and there with clear evidence of earth borings, and Lane knew that the practiced eye of the bauxite expert had instantly discovered the indications of recent tests. When they finished their lunch Hammerton seemed quite as willing as Lane, that they return to the hotel, and they struck off in nearly a straight line for the town, having mutually agreed that they had shot enough game for one day's sport.

They ate supper together that evening, but both appeared tired from the day's tramping and separated soon after the meal to go to their rooms. When Lane went to bed his mind was busy with a variety of thoughts, which, however, did not prevent him from falling instantly into untroubled slumber.



"Great view this," Hammerton remarked genially, and scanned the panorama with appreciative and curious eyes.

The next morning Hammerton did not appear, and Lane learned from the clerk that he had departed at daylight in a livery rig, saying that he was called away suddenly and would return in a day or two. This was exactly what Lane had expected, and after breakfast he, too, left the hotel.

On the second morning following Lane returned to Hickstown. While seated in the hotel office happily immersed in a letter from Patty, he was brought back to realization of his immediate affairs by a heavy slap on the shoulder. Hammerton stood before him, a self-satisfied grin curving his lips.

"Well, my boy," he rumbled, "that was a corking fine bauxite deposit you uncovered there on Overlook Mountain! Just finished getting under option what I didn't buy outright. Cost me so far $15,000, and worth a whole lot more."

"Do you mean the land that we could see from where we ate our lunch the day we went after turkey?" Lane asked the question coolly.

"Sure. I'd been willing to bet you couldn't keep away from your discovery if I gave you plenty of rope. And you weren't quick enough to keep the old man from spotting it, either, when you tried to turn back." He chuckled gleefully over the memory.

"You're certain it was my discovery you're speaking of?" Lane persisted, seemingly unable to understand the full significance of what he heard.

"You bet I am. It's the slope you tested to a depth of 32 feet. Pshaw! That must have been some work. Saved me a lot, for I only had to look at the cores to see the value of it."

"Then you just depended on what you found on the surface? Didn't make any borings at all?"

"Didn't have to. Don't you think I know bauxite when I see it? Why, my boy, I'm the head of the mining department of the Aluminum Products Corporation, and I call tell the hydrate as far as my eyesight carries."

"Well, all I can say is you're as fine an example of business buccaneer as ever cruised on land. You only lack a cutlass and a red bandanna around your head to complete the picture of one of your distant relatives who looted ships."

Hammerton exploded into a roar of genial laughter. "Why, bless me, my boy," he gurgled, "you flatter me. Can't make me mad. We've got to have bauxite, and if we can't get it one way, why, we must another.

"Glad you feel flattered," Lane responded dryly. "But, seriously, I can't understand why a level-headed business man would be willing to pay out several thousand dollars for land merely on the strength of surface indications."

"Why, what do you mean, boy?" A note of worry crept into his voice. Lane's confident tone was slightly disconcerting.

"Only that you'd better make some borings yourself." Lane eyed the puzzled expert with a tolerant smile.

"Let's have it. Where did my foot slip?" demanded Hammerton with a mirthless grin. Something in Lane's manner convinced him that he had erred at some point in his piratical operations.

Lane recounted his experiences up to the time when Hammerton had recognized him at the hotel as the son of an old friend, not omitting the details of his knowledge of Hammerton's espionage from the time of the latter's visit to Mapletown. The expert's face grew longer and longer as the tale proceeded, but he permitted himself the indulgence of an occasional grin of somewhat sheepish quality as his sense of humor rescued him from utter humiliation.

"But I don't understand yet how you've lit hed me," he complained, as Lane paused. "I've cinched that rich slope of Overlook Mountain, haven't I? That's the main point."

"Yes, you've got hold of the south slope of Overlook Mountain, all right, and it's a fine sheep pasture, though rather expensive at the price you paid for it; but all the bauxite it holds is in the cores of my borings of the north slope, which my friend Jud Waring carried over and spread around. That was while you were trying to pump me here at the hotel and during the morning of our turkey hunt, you know. Jud bored some holes in the south slope and threw the cores in the river, leaving those from my tract around the openings. I've got the deeds to my land in my pocket. Want to buy it?"

Hammerton rose and pulled himself together with an effort. His face gradually worked itself back into its habitual state of good-natured arrogance. Finally the old smile came back and expanded into a laugh of fairly generous proportions, and he slapped Lane almost affectionately on the back.

"You're one wise boy, Lane. I must be getting old. You've certainly put it all over me this trip. Yes, I'll buy your land—pay you four times what you've spent on it. I'm empowered, you know, to pick up any bauxite tracts I locate. Will you sell?"

"Yes, the amount satisfies me. When do you pay it?" Lane almost felt sorry for the man he had bested; he was a good loser; and his crestfallen manner was quite pathetic.

"I'll go out tomorrow and sink a few holes in both slopes just for luck, and then when I've proved it up I'll wire from Chattanooga for the money and take over your deeds there. So long, Pierpont." He bestowed a parting grin of admiration on his late adversary and went off to his room to pack up.

Lane waited until he disappeared around the bend in the stairway, and then rushed over to the railroad depot and sent off three telegrams: one to Patty, one to his father and the other to the owner of the farm on which a little white-painted, green-shuttered house nestled in a grove of maples.

EARTHQUAKES IN 1918.

THE official report of the Georgetown University Seismological Station, Washington, D. C., shows that during the year 1918 there were recorded on the seismographs 98 earthquakes. From dispatches received the location of 37 quakes of importance was ascertained. Of these three were disastrous, the first occurring in Guatemala, the second in China and the third in Porto Rico. No disturbance of any consequence is tabulated as having taken place in the United States.

THE STORY FROM THE START.

Roger Sands, a New York lawyer, married Beverley White, on agreement that her past should remain a secret. Their otherwise happy home life now has one shadow—Roger's vague jealousy or suspicion of Congressman Justin O'Reilly, a former California acquaintance.

Beverley has adopted a little Irish girl waif named Clodagh Riley, whom she intrusts with a secret errand to meet a man named Peterson, sent from Chicago to receive from Mrs. Sands certain important papers. At the same time a costly pearl necklace, a present to Beverley from her husband, disappears. Clo and Beverley, seeking Peterson as the thief, find him murdered by his pals of the underworld, who have escaped with the jewels.

Clo now turns detective, and traces the girl, "Kit," with two men companions, "Churn" and "Chuff," to a low boarding house, where she engages a room adjoining their apartment.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

WITH her ear close to the tiny hole that she had scratched in the flimsy partition, Clo heard Churn speaking in his musical, foreign-sounding voice.

"I wish Chuff would come, and get it over!" he was saying.

"I wonder why he went out!" said Kit. "He ought to have been home all evening. He was expecting Pete on business, you know."

"Can he have got on to de reason dat fellah Pete didn't come?"

"No—no," Kit answered. "I've told you a dozen times, no. He wouldn't have gone to the Westmoreland. Pete had to call on him; but there must have been something important to take Chuff out."

"Vat vas de plan?"

"Gee! You ought to have it as clear in your head as I have! You're in the whole business, as deep as me."

"Not de same way—not on de inside. Chuff makes me do vat he vant. He don' tell me more dan he can help."

"Oh, what does it matter? Tonight's changed everything for me—and for you, too. You are goin' to stand by me, aren't you, Churn, through thick and thin?"

"You betcha life! For de whole of vot I'm worth!" Kit's tone changed. She chuckled.

"You may be worth a lot. You've married a rich heiress—see? I know Chuff don't approve of marriage; but we can do without him."

"Maybe he von't tink he can do widout us," Churn suggested.

"He'll have to when we can get something good on the pearls. What can he do, if we want to quit? And say, Churn, I never thought you could kill anyone and feel no more than I do now. It makes me sick to think of him, the low beast!"

"Don't t'ink, den. T'ink of me."

"I do. I love you, boy! The minute I lamped the pearls—when I sensed they was real—I meant to get 'em, for you and me to set up house far away somewheres, on our own."

"Better tie 'em up in your handkerchief again. If Chuff"——

"Chuff nothing! I feel in my bones, now he's so late, he won't come home tonight. Say, I hope I don't dream of Pete! I don't know as I'd have had the nerve, even for the big prize, if he'd treated me white; but he thought he could say what he liked—the pig! Well, he's paid. Boy, that trunk stunt was awful. You've got to let me get to bed and sleep, or I believe I'll have hysterics and yell the house down! I thought I was all right since I found you, but it's coming on again, that tremblin'."

"Go to bed, den, girl. I'll vait. Dat's easy."

"I will. But once more look at the pearls—our pearls! Did you ever see their beat? But I lost one. I heard it roll. It was so close to him, I—I couldn't" ——

"Don't you care. Dere's plenty left for us. We'll count 'em first t'ing tomorrow, ven ve both feel like ourselves."

"Pete never knew I caught a glimpse. He said, quick as a shot, when I offered to pack, 'Come out o' that, my lady. I do my own packin'.' But he was too late. I seen what he'd wrapped in brown paper, and I nicked a loose one as big as a filbert. They ought to fetch a King's ransom, boy!"

"Dey vill not, den. Dere'll be all de bulls in N'York after dem. Dey must be somet'ing famous by de look. Joke on us, dough, if Chuff was in deal mitt Pete!"

"I'm sure he wasn't—dead sure."

"Vell, I hope you're right."

"You can bet I am!"

Silence fell. When the pair spoke again, it was of other things—things of which Clo knew nothing. After a time she suddenly fell asleep on the floor. She had earned a rest.

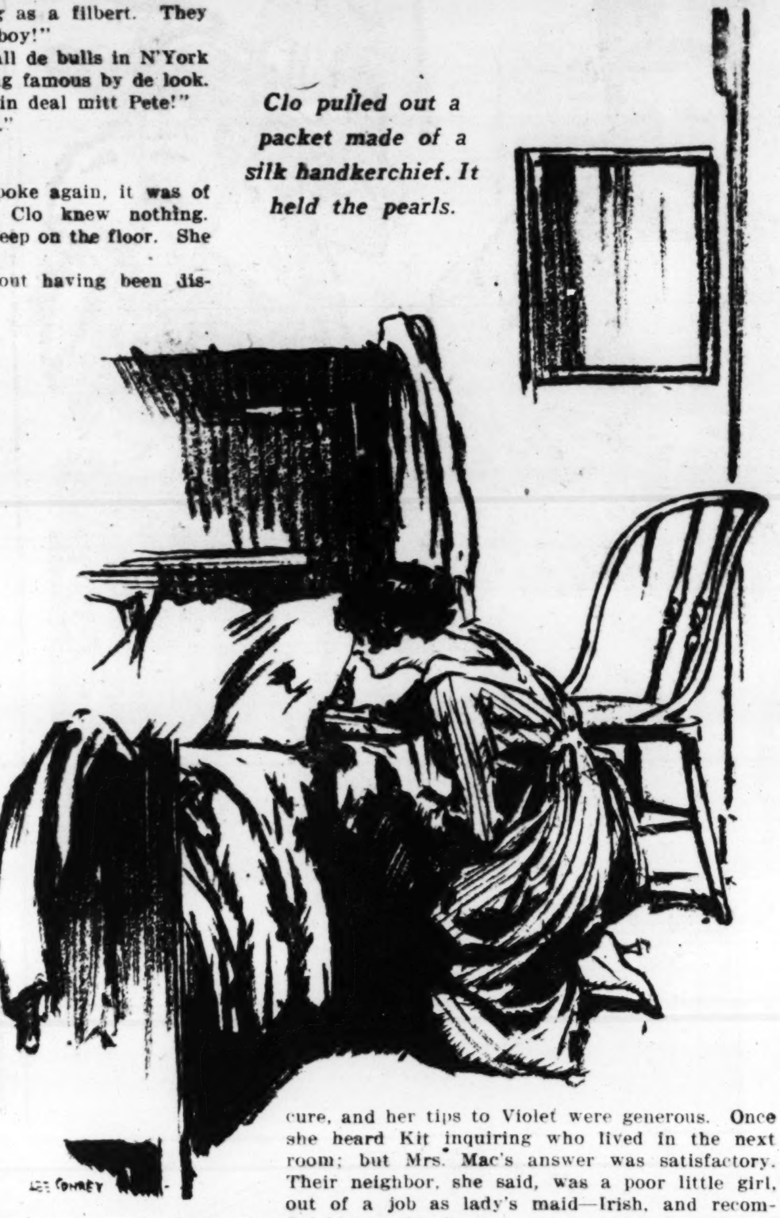
The girl slept till dawn without having been disturbed by any sound.

She was astonished to find herself on the floor, and for an instant she could not remember what had happened; but in a flash it all came back—the whole history of that eventful yesterday.

Quickly, she got up and quietly she undressed, putting on Mrs. McMahon's immense nightgown, before she dropped thankfully upon the cot bed. She did not sleep again, but lay until 8 o'clock, when her neighbors began to stir. Then she listened once more at the hole in the wall, until she feared that Violet might come with breakfast.

As Violet kicked on the door, her hands being occupied with the tray—Clo stuffed a handkerchief into the hole in the wall.

The coffee, though weak, was hot, and Clo felt revived after drinking it. Once more she placed the bed across the door, pulled out the handkerchief from the hole in the wall, and thus, on sentinel duty, finished her breakfast.



Clo pulled out a packet made of a silk handkerchief. It held the pearls.

For a time all was still in the next room. Perhaps its occupants had taken alarm at the voices; but soon they began talking again. Churn reminded Kit that they couldn't catch words from the adjoining room, so they were safe if they didn't shout. They rang their bell—a luxury which Clo lacked—ordered some food, and learned from Violet that "Mr. Cheffinsky had not come home."

Later in the day they resigned themselves to the indefinite absence of Chuff. Mrs. Mac herself came up to see her guests, who called themselves Mr. and Mrs. Stahl. She talked of Mr. Cheffinsky as the "star boarder," and said that she was used to his queer ways. Often he stopped away from home for a day or two, but she never worried. He always came back.

The Stahls were voluble over the nonarrival of their luggage, which seemed to vex them more than the absence of Cheffinsky, their old friend. Whether or no Mrs. McMahon believed their story, she tacitly accepted it, and agreed to supply their needs, ordering a list of things for their selection.

After writing her hopeful letter to Leontine, Clo's expectations of quick success were dashed. Kit and Churn received the clothes they wanted, but did not go out. They decided to eat downstairs, and to take turns in going, while one of them kept constant guard over the pearls. Newspaper mention of the "girl in pink" had frightened them.

After a heated argument they agreed that till they saw how the wind was blowing they would not risk sending for Isaacs. This was a sacrifice, because they wished to dispose of the pearls before Cheffinsky appeared; but they were not sure of Isaacs' loyalty. Who could tell what he might do, if tempted by big bribes to "frame" his pals? They must wait, and consequently so must Clo.

Days passed, without any sign of Chuff, or of the obscure Jake, whose name was sometimes vaguely mentioned. Clo still posed as an invalid taking a rest-cure, and her tips to Violet were generous. Once she heard Kit inquiring who lived in the next room; but Mrs. Mac's answer was satisfactory. Their neighbor, she said, was a poor little girl, out of a job as lady's maid—Irish, and recommended by an old client.

The couple read to each other in low voices, with feverish interest, details of the "Hotel Westmorland murder," as given in the morning and evening papers. Either the police were at a loss, or they wished to appear so. Churn and Kit became optimistic, though not inclined to acts of overconfidence.

They had no fear that suspicion would be aroused by the breaking of Churn's engagements at various night cafes. He had failed his employers before, through illness, or after a spree, and was always being discharged and re-engaged because of his really beautiful voice. There was no reason to connect his disappearance with the murder, since—luckily—the name on the card sent up to Peterson was forgotten.

He often reminded Kit that he was hiding for her sake, and to keep her company; whereupon she would twit him with caring less about her than the pearls. Then she would cry, and they would make up with kisses.

Clo was wild with impatience. Nine days passed. Nothing at all happened, it seemed to Clo, with one exception, but that in its way was important. She came upon a "personal" in the newspapers, and knew that it was a message to her from Justin O'Reilly. It was so worded that no one else could guess its meaning. "C. R., from her cousin, who is just in," was the line that caught her eye. He knew that she knew his name was Justin; and she had first introduced herself as his cousin! "Working out Sunday's problem with expert help," she read, "but need you and want you. Message received insufficient. Won't you let me know where you are?"

This advertisement appeared two days after Clo's voluntary imprisonment, and was repeated each morning; yet the girl dared not answer by letter or news-

Says Miss Wurst, the shorter of the two: "And I saw that cute young girl all dressed up stylish as anything, and, my dear, if it wasn't you!" Just beyond, Mr. Mix is explaining to the little wife that he couldn't be expected to leave before the directors' meeting was over, etc., and the little wife adds that "It isn't because you are late, Joe; it's becauseyou don't care enough for me to keep an appointment on time!" Sitting next to them is a lady who has been shopping all morning and is too tired to care much whether Eva shows up or not. Her feet hurt her and she didn't find what she wanted—at 7 stores. Mrs. Doolittle, clubwoman (sitting next), with a hat guaranteed to add three feet to her height, is quite at peace with the world. Last, but not least, sits Lilyan Smythe, chorus lady, all ready to blow up Charley for being ten minutes late.

"You don't mean to say you're his mother! Positively, I should have said you was his sister!" Waitress, paving the way for a tip.

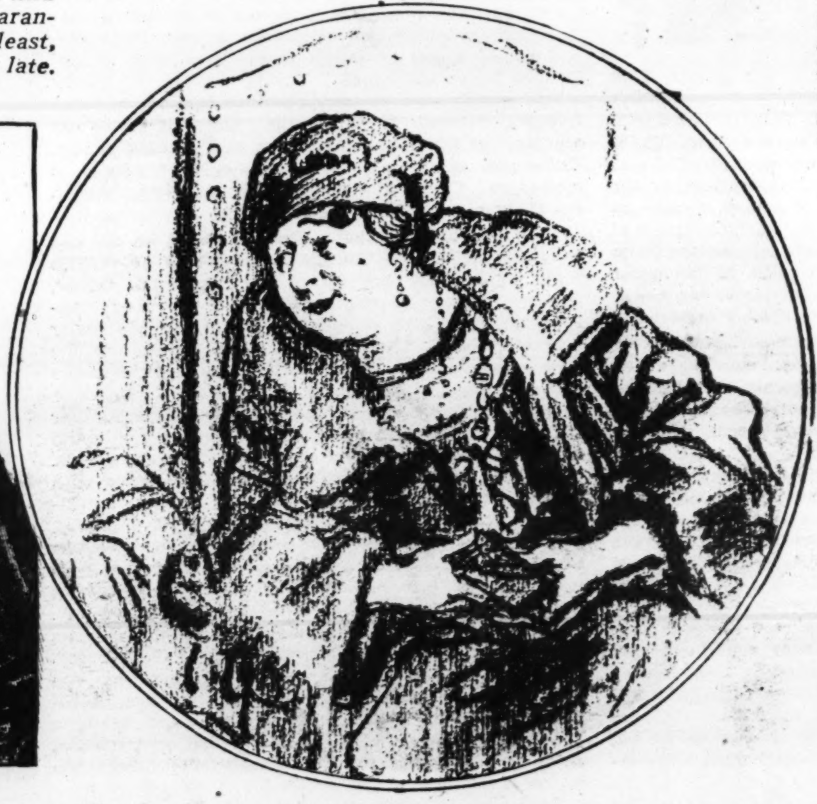
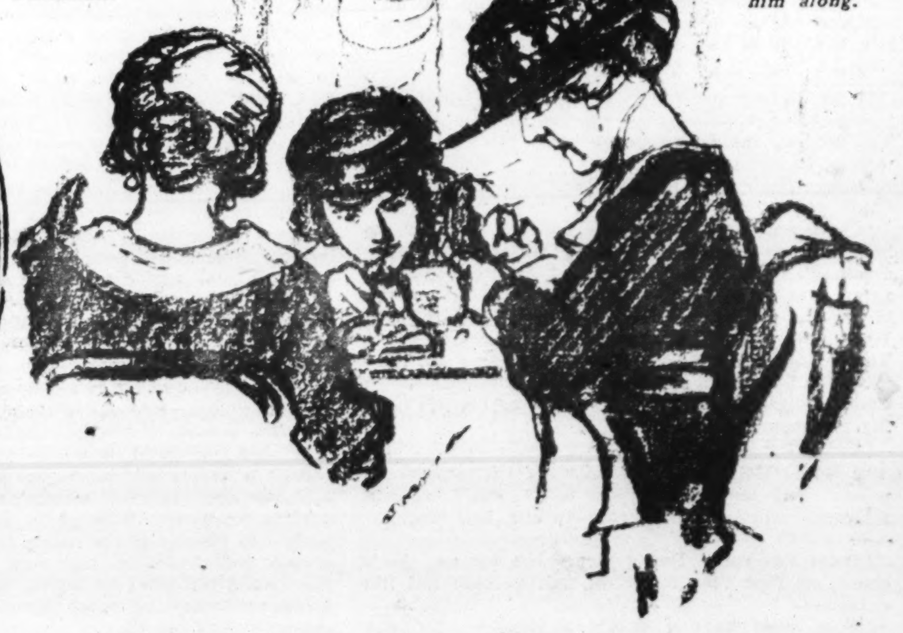
"If you got something to sell, you got to get yourself in a—I should say, the buyer—in a properly receptive mind—in other words, that is—I mean"——Eddie, who is awfully keen on the psychology of buying and selling and personality in business, gets somewhat tangled up trying to impress two college friends.



Mrs. Fergel, getting positively emotional over the rendering of "The Rosary" by the cafe orchestra.



Three ladies from the suburbs, who have thrown discretion and diet lists to the winds and are getting right into broiled lobster.

Facts about Skin-pores and Youthful Skin

A SOAP for the youthful care of the skin must not only be pure. It must do more than cleanse the mere surface or "outer skin". It must also take care of the pores. That is, it must gently reach into the pores and gently cleanse them.

For the pores are the "workshop" of skin-beauty. And unless they are kept free and active the skin cannot be kept fresh and young.

Fairy Soap creams up into a velvety soothing lather. This lather does not remain in pores to clog them and diminish the activity and beauty of the skin. It leaves them cleansed and freshened. It rinses away completely.

Both the pores and the tender outer skin are thus left free and stimulated. And the skin is kept soft, fresh and young.

FAIRY

For a Skin where Youth Lingers

YOU know that a pure soap which will keep your own skin clear and soft in youthful loveliness, is a soap you would not hesitate to use every day in the year—to preserve all the delicate beauty of your skin, and the soft, velvety "feel" of it.

Fairy Soap is wonderfully "mellowed together" of the purest materials which can go into a soap at any price. It is made to take particular care of skins—the pores as well as the smooth "outer skin."

That is why Fairy Soap does so much more than cleanse the mere surface.

Fairy creams cleansingly into the tiny pores. But it does not remain in them. And after it has soothingly creamed out of the delicate pores, it does not cling to the tender outer skin. Fairy Soap is a remarkable soap for rinsing off—easily—completely.

That is why Fairy Soap deals so very gently with tender complexions.

With these soap-qualities in mind, you will do well to buy several cakes of Fairy Soap. Then use it consistently. In no other way can you prove its pure benefits to "a skin where youth lingers."

IT'S TOO BAD MY WIFE DISLIKES JEFF SO. SHE BLAMES HIM FOR KEEPING ME OUT IN THE EVENINGS AND HATES THE VERY SIGHT OF HIM!
SH-H-H! SWEETHEART IS LITTLE CICERO. HOME?
NO! HE WENT TO THE STORE FOR ME! BUT WHY ALL THE. SHSSSSING?
CICERO'S BIRTHDAY IS NEXT WEEK SO I BOUGHT THIS NIFTY ROCKING HORSE FOR HIM. I DON'T WANT HIM TO SEE IT UNTIL NEXT WEEK
OH, MUTT! YOU'RE A WONDERFUL FATHER!
YES, YOUR DEN WILL BE JUST THE PLACE TO KEEP IT HIDDEN FROM CICERO!
DEAR, THIS TOY SET ME BACK $12 BUT I FIGURE NOTHING IS TOO GOOD FOR OUR SON!
ALL RIGHT JEFF, YOU CAN COME OUT. I GUESS THAT WASN'T A NEAT JOB OF SMUGGLING YOU INTO THE HOUSE. WE CAN PLAY PINOCHLE HERE TO OUR HEART'S CONTENT AND THE OLD GIRL WILL NEVER GET WISE!
FINE! IT WAS A LITTLE CRAMPED IN HERE, MUTT!
IT COST ME TWO DOLLARS EXTRA TO HAVE THAT HORSE HOLLOWED OUT BUT IT WAS WORTH IT. I'M ELEVEN DOLLARS WINNER NOW. I ONLY GOTTA WIN ANOTHER DOLLAR AND THE HORSE WILL BE PAID FOR. AIN'T THIS FINE? YOU GOTTA HAND IT TO ME JEFF FOR THIS IDEA.
MY GOODNESS, SUCH A HAND!
MUTT!
KNOCK KNOCK KNOCK
IT'S MY WIFE! QUICK, JEFF, GET BACK IN THAT TRICK HORSE. SHE'LL KILL YOU IF SHE FINDS YOU IN HERE!
BUT I WANT A CHANCE TO WIN BACK MY ELEVEN DOLLARS, MUTT!
WHAT WAS THE IDEA OF LOCKING THE DOOR, MUTT?
WHY, DEAR, I DIDN'T WANT CICERO TO DROP IN AND SEE HIS BIRTHDAY GIFT!
WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH THE HORSE?
FFT! FFT! OUCH! MEOW-W-W!! FTT! FTT!!!
